MITCHELL ON STAND.

First Witness for the Miners.

Under Heavy Fire from Lawyer Wilcox.

Cross-examination Directed at Methods of Union.

Strike May Be Resumed—Federation of Labor—Get Wages Raised.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SCRANTON (Pa.) Nov. 14.—The Anthracite Coal Strike Commission appointed by the President to arbitrate the differences existing between the mine workers of the hard-coal fields of Pennsylvania and their employers, today began the hearing of testimony by which it will determine whether or not the workmen are receiving fair and just wages for their labor, and whether their condition should not be improved. The star witness for the miners—President John Mitchell—took the stand in the forenoon, and when the committee adjourned at 4 o'clock in the afternoon he was still under the fire of cross-examination by David Wilcox, counsel for the Delaware and Hudson company. It was a trying day for the miners' leader, but he seemed to stand the test well. The heaviest fire of cross-questions was aimed at him late in the afternoon session, and when the hour of adjournment was reached, Wilcox was still propounding questions and testing Mitchell's memory.

The opening of the session was a notable day in the annals of the law in the upper anthracite region. The commission's sessions are being held in the beautiful room of the Pennsylvania Superior Court, which is now sitting in Philadelphia. Ranged around three tables in front of the seven commissioners, who occupied the judges' bench, were no less than thirty lawyers, twenty-four of whom were looking after the interests of the mine owners.

Besides President Mitchell of the Miners' Union, the mine workers were represented by Clarence S. Barrow of Chicago, as chief counsel; Henry D. Lloyd, Chicago; John F. Shea and James H. Shea, Wilkesbarre; James F. Lenahan, Wilkesbarre, and John J. Murphy, Scranton.

In addition to these there were many members of the bar present who came merely to look on. The courtroom at both sessions was packed almost to suffocation, and scores of persons were unable to gain admittance. Only one of the heads of the large coal companies, Gen. Thomas of the Erie, was present.

Judge Gray as chairman of the commission, being versed in court procedure, was the only spokesman for the commission. He, at times, asked questions, and at the very close of the afternoon session directed a query at Mitchell, which Wilcox had been leading up to for some time. The chairman asked Mitchell whether his organization approved the act of withdrawing from or denying the necessaries of life to those who had offended the organization, and he replied:

"I should say, emphatically, no."

During the day, Wilcox asked Mitchell many questions as to the policies of the union, the method of strikes, the ability of the union to maintain discipline, and prevent the members of the union from violating the law, and also as to the liability of the union for breaking contracts. It was apparent to many of those present who understood the situation, that Wilcox's object was to prove by Mitchell's own testimony that the contention of the companies that the miners' union was an irresponsible organization, and that trade agreements therefore could not be safely entered into, was well founded.

During the hearing the statement was brought out for the first time since the late strike was begun that the union had disbursed $1,500,000 among the union and non-union men who were on strike.

One of the questions which came up before the commission was the advisability of hearing counsel on behalf of the non-union men who remained at work during the strike. Attorney John T. Lenehan, one of the attorneys for the non-union men, asked the commission what his status before the arbitrators was. Judge Gray informed him that the question would be taken under consideration, and that an answer would probably be given him tomorrow.

It is not unlikely that Mitchell will be on the stand all day tomorrow and probably longer. It is the intention of the miners to next call on Rev. Peter Roberts of Mahanoy City, who has an intimate knowledge of anthracite mining, and is the author of a book on the subject. During the hearing, all the attorneys took copious notes, and it looks as if the investigation would be long drawn out, unless some arrangement for curtailing the cross-examination of witnesses is agreed upon.

MINERS' SIDE FIRST.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SCRANTON (Pa.) Nov. 14.—The proceedings opened shortly after 10 o'clock, when Judge Gray announced that the commission would hear the representatives of the miners first. Mitchell said he would file a further statement on Monday in answer to some of the allegations of the operators. John L. Lenahan of Wilkesbarre, on behalf of the non-union men, inquired of the commission what course the proceedings would take with respect to them. Judge Gray answered that that was a question which would have to be considered.

Wolverton asked the other side to give the operators at least one day's notice, indicating the collieries from which employés will be called as witnesses, so that the mine owners can be prepared to examine them. Darrow, for the miners, agreed to the suggestion. President Mitchell then rose and addressed the commission. His statement contained six thousand words.

MITCHELL'S STATEMENT.

Mitchell prefaced his statement with the hope that the commission "would succeed in establishing a relationship between the operators and miners that will insure peace and stability in the industry for an indefinite period." After reciting the demands for increased pay for the miner, a shorter work day for the laborer, the weighing of coal and an industrial agreement, the refusal of all of which led to the strike, Mitchell spoke as follows on the question of higher wages:

"Of the 147,000 men and boys employed in and around the mines, strippings, washeries and breakers in the anthracite coal fields, 64,072, or 43 per cent., are employed on contract piece work; the remaining 83,000, or 57 per cent., are employed by the hour, day, week or month. Of the 64,072 contract men, 37,804 are miners and 26,268 are miners' laborers.

"The work of a miner and a miner's laborer is fully as hazardous; in fact, it is more dangerous than employment

CHAFFEE'S CAMPAIGN.

Annual Report by the General.

He Warmly Defends His Officers and Men.

All Save the Moro Country Under Civil Rule.

Colombia Proposes Modification of Canal Treaty—Tingley Appeal.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The annual report of Maj.-Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, just made public, closes September 30, the date when he relinquished his command of the Division of the Philippines. The report covers the campaign of Gen. J. H. Smith, in Samar, refers to some friction that occurred between the civil and military authorities regarding Leyte, and discusses the actions of various officers and the work of the army in the suppression of recent insurrections. Gen. Chaffee warmly defends the officers and assumes full responsibility for all that was done under official orders. He says that the various Filipino bands were of little military importance, and in time they can be handled by the insular constabulary.

Speaking of the campaign in Samar, Gen. Chaffee says that he finds nothing in the written instructions which was not required by the conditions there to be overcome. He says the formation of concentration camps was necessary to suppress the insurrection in the provinces of Batangas, Laguna and Tayabas. He asserts that the civil authorities in some instances aided the insurrectionists, and says: "It was found necessary to arrest and confine three hundred or four hundred of the intelligent class in order to remove the influence of the masters over the masses of the people."

Gen. Chaffee requests the removal of all censure that has been passed publicly upon Gen. Bell regarding the orders, circulars and instructions which he issued while putting down the insurrection. An interesting feature of Gen. Chaffee's report relates to the Moros in Mindanao and Jolo. He says that it will require time, tact and patience to establish United States authority over all the Moro settlements. In this connection he says:

"The sooner the Sultan of Jolo's title, actual or assumed, as sovereign and as sole owner of land in the Jolo archipelago, is quieted, the better for the situation. Probably there is little doubt that a money consideration would relieve the situation of his claim and his presence. Should this be done, laws, just, but simple, and so plainly stated as to be understood by the Moro population generally, could be inforced through the Dattos upon their followers without much trouble or frequest resort to force. It will be impossible for many years to ignore chieftainship—Dattos—and to deal directly with the individual Moros, as is done with the civilized, Christian people.

"It will, however, be a long step ahead for the inhabitants of Jolo archipelago when the Dattos are independent of the Sultan and recognize the United States as the only sovereignty to which allegiance is due, and as the only authority empowered to enact laws for the government of the inhabitans and the country; that all the inhabitants are equal before the law; that Christian people have a right to live. These few simple propositions acknowledged, the government of the Moro people would not be at all difficult. But to advance so far will consume much time, and may result in national conflict; for the modification of present beliefs to accord with the above ideas will in some cases require that military force be used."

Gen. Chaffee says that force has been used only to the degree necessary to make it understood plainly that persons entitled to protection cannot be murdered, and that the authority of the United States cannot be questioned. The intentions of the United States forces have been misunderstood, and the Dattos have believed the troops to be cowards and afraid to attack their defenses. He says force must be applied to humble their pride and assume invincibility. Commenting on other sections of the island, Gen. Chaffee says htat, at the time of wwriting his report, the army was on a peace status. Troops are being withdrawn from all participation in civil affairs, as rapidly as civil organization can be erected. This has been completed in all except Batangas and Samar, where it is expected to be accomplished by the end of the year. He said:

"All parts of the archipelago, except what is known as the Moro country, have been formally organized for civil government, and turned over to its officials, thus freeing the army from supervisory or actual control over its inhabitants and their affairs."

Gen. Chaffee points out the necessity for more barracks, and says the $1,500,000 appropriated for the army in the Philippines will not provide more than temporary shelter, built largely of native materials. He thinks permanent sites should be purchased and suitable buildings erecetd at healthful points in the islands. Concerning the health of the command, the general says:

"The oscillation of the percentage of sick in the command has not exceeded 2½ points during the year. The maximum was 8.51 per cent. for August, 1901; the minimum, 6.01 per cent. for May, 1902. The deaths in the division for the year as a result of battle are 9 officers and 125 enlisted men, as against 20 officers and 219 enlisted men for the previous year. Of the 26 causes of deaths tabulated by the chief surgeon, dysentery is the most prominent."

Deaths from cholera he ascribes to willful disregard of timely-explained dangerous practices and failure to avoid known localities of infection. While the number of deaths of natives and others not of the military service reaches nearly 44,000, the lives of many thousands of natives have been saved, he says, through the influence exercised by the army in localities where precaution is regarded as of little or no avail.

Under the Reorganization Army Act there have been organized fifty companies of Filipino scouts, a total strength of 5000, composed of six different tribes. Gen. Chaffee says: "They are fairly efficient and effective, and when carefully officered serve their purpose well."

In a highly-commendatory statement, Gen. Chaffee acknowledges the assistance which the army has received from the navy. In conclusion, he makes a statement of the general character of the army and the duty of the troops, which is in the nature of a reply to criticisms that have been made. He says:

"The officers and enlisted men of the army who have served in the division during the past year have faithfully and efficiently performed their duty as it fell to their lot. A very considerable lot have been dispersed by company or detachment to occupy stations for purposes of observation, and to give moral support to municipal authorities and municipal police. This duty has been performed without friction, so far as known to me, with but comparatively few exceptions. Some alleged wrongs done natives by soldiers it has been impossible to redress, because of failure to identify the responsible party or parties, but when established, disciplinary measures have been enforced. The assumption and statement that the presence of soldiers in a community is very demoralizing with respect to the natives is not true as a broad proposition; in my opinion the opposite view is most worthy to be noted. An individual soldier here and there has no doubt wronged a native, and with threat of physical force compelled obedience to his demands, but these incidents are exceptional, not the rule, so that unless alleged demoralizing influence broadens so as to make the presence of the white race, as a race, demoralizing to the native races, the influence for evil by the soldiers is indeed small and undeserving of comment, compared with their many virtues, which, by precept and example, are object lessons for good."

Accompanying Gen. Chaffee's report are the reports of the staff officers and general officers who command various departments. Gen. J. P. Sanger, as Inspector-General, makes a strong recommendation in favor of the reestablishment of the canteen. The termination of organized resistance to the government, he says, renders necessary the establishment of something to occupy the attention of the soldiers and a place of amusement separate from that appointed in most of the places where troops are stationed.

Lieut.-Col. Adair, chief surgeon, calls attention to the fact that venereal disease continues to increase slowly. The rate has not approached that of the British army in India, but he thinks the difficulties of contending with such diseases are now only in their infancy. He adds: "The regulation of prostitution will continue to be taken from the hands of the army by the establishment of civil government," and says: "In America the distaste to recognize the existence of prostitution is so great that little will probably be effected."

He goes on at length into what has been done to suppress cholera, and says: "Unless checked by more stringent measures, cholera must soon spread widely among the inhabitants of the islands, as the streams are little more than sewers, and it is extremely difficult to enforce cleanly methods in the preparation of food."

GEN. WHEATON REPORTS.

Maj.-Gen. Lloyd Wheaton, who was Gen. Bell's superior, in a report of the operations in Northern Luzon, says: "I authorized the policy and fully approve of the methods by which the insurrection in the provinces of Batangas, Laguna and Tayabas was ended. The humane code of the laws of war, as published during the administration of President Lincoln, was followed in all operations against semi-civilized insurgents habitually violating every law of war and treating their own people with every barbarity that can be inflicted upon the helpless."

Gen. Davis, now in command of the Philippines, made a report on July 3, 1902, on the subje of slavery. The report was based upon the action of Col. William M. Wallace, commanding at Jolo, in which he refused to return escaped slaves. The Sultan made a complaint to Gen. Chaffee in regard to the matter, which was referred back to Gen. Davis, in command of the department. Gen. Davis declared that escaping slaves should be protected in their freedom, and that all should know that the taking and owning of slaves is forbidden by United States laws. He says that it would be impracticable to secure the freedom of slaves by remuneration to their owners, as tens of thousands would continue voluntarily their service. They are not especially unhappy, and have few wants or necessities. He expressed the opinion that slavery is not uncommon among Christian Filipinos, and adds that "slavery will never be eradicated in these islands until public sentiment in the communities is opposed to it, and this sentiment is slow of growth."

SMEDES (Miss.) Nov. 14.—A lean black bear which weighs 235 pounds is hanging up at the President's camp on the Little Sunflower, but to the regret of all the members of the party, the first trophy of the hunt did not fall to the President's rifle. The bear's trail was struck by the hounds soon after the party started this morning. The members of the party, except the President, Foote, Parker and Hoke Collier, had been stationed at the various crossings, and as soon as the dogs gave tongue, the President and his guides plunged through the dense underbrush in pursuit.

Within a few minutes the dogs showed the direction the quarry was taking, and Hoke Collier, with the instinct of an old bear hunter, made up his mind as to where the animal was to come out. To save the President useless hard riding through the brush, he directed Foote to take the President along the trail to a certain cut-off. This was done and the President and Foote rode to the assigned station. On the way several swamp deer were jumped, but no effort was made to get a shot at them. For several hours the President and Foote waited. The trail of the bear carried the yelping hounds out of hearing, and shortly after noon Foote abandoned hope that the quarry would come back their way, and he and the President returned to the camp for lunch. Had they remained the President would have had a shot, as the bear, with the pack at its heels, crossed at the spot where Hoke had indicated.

About a mile beyond this point the bear, exhausted by his long race, ran into a water hole and turned on the dogs, one of which he killed. Collier roped the bear and tied it to a tree, but the President, who was summoned, declined to shoot it, and Parker dispatched it with a knife.

On the way to camp with the dead bear the dogs struck a fresh trail, and the President, Foote, Mangum, Secretary Cortelyou and Dr. Lung followed it. Fish and Parker returned to camp, but at dark, when the Associated Press correspondent left, there was no sign of the President, and some anxiety was manifested lest the President in his enthusiasm would get too far away and be forced to sleep on the trail.

None of the small army of newspaper men and photographers who followed the President here succeeded in reaching camp today. The only newspaper men allowed there were the three press association representatives, who came with the party. All kinds of expedients were attempted by the others to get to camp, but without avail.

YOUNG THEODORE ILL.

TROUBLE WITH HIS EYES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., left here last night in charge of three physicians, en route to Washington, says a World dispatch from Groton, Mass. He is said to be suffering from some trouble with his eyes, which made it desirable that he go home at once. No details are obtainable here.

Later.—Theodore Roosesvelt, Jr., passed through New York early last night under the care of two physicians on the Federal Express bound for Washington. The conductor in charge of the car in which the President's son was berthed said he did not know how ill the young man was, or the cause of his trouble.

ATTACKED BY MANIAC.

Three Men Stabbed by Madman While Endeavoring to Prevent Him from Doing Injury to Others.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—While protecting Mrs. W. R. Gardiner of Bath Beach from the attacks of a supposed maniac armed with a long knife, three neighbors received stab wounds, one of them, John McMahon, being injured so seriously that he probably will die.

Considerable mystery surrounds the affair. Mrs. Gardiner was sitting on the verandah of her home, when the man entered the back door, rushed through the house, and after making sufficient identity of the tenants, he rushed at them with a long knife. All evaded him but one, who received a slight cut and fell off the verandah, breaking an arm. Their screams brought many neighbors to the rescue.

McMahon and his son attempted to seize the invader. Both fell before his knife. He then fled into the Dyker meadows, the crowd in pursuit.

Dismal Prospect Ahead of Col. Butler.

Three Years in Prison Given Him by Jury.

He Obtains Stay of Sentence by Appealing to the Supreme Court.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

COLUMBIA (Mo.) Nov. 14.—Col. Ed Butler, millionaire and politician of St. Louis, charged with attempting to bribe Dr. Chapman of the St. Louis Board of Health, in order to influence his vote on the indorsement of a garbage contract with the city, has been found guilty by the trial jury, which assessed the punishment at three years in the penitentiary. The verdict found last night was announced today.

T. H. Hickman, foreman of the jury, says the verdict of guilty was reached on the first ballot, but it took three hours for the jury to agree upon the sentence. Some of the jury wanted to give Butler the limit. One man wanted to give him only a fine and jail sentence.

Col. Butler, his wife, his two sons, Congressman James J., and Edward, Jr., and their wives, were in the courtroom when the verdict was received.

A motion for a new trial was overruled.

When asked by Judge Hockaday if he had any reason to offer why sentence should not be passed on him, Butler said:

"I have nothing to say, Your Honor, further than that I am not guilty of the charge preferred against me."

"The jury has passed on that question, Mr. Butler," was Judge Hockaday's reply. "In accordance with the verdict, I sentence you to imprisonment in the State penitentiary for a term of three years."

The filing of an appeal to the State Supreme Court followed. Judge Hockaday fixed Butler's bond at $10,000, which was signed by prominent citizens of Columbia.

CURTAILING POWER OF THE MINORITY.

GERMAN REICHSTAG DETERMINED TO DO BUSINESS.

Voting Rule Takes Away Principal Weapon of Obstructionists—Exciting Scene Causes President to Make Uncomplimentary Allusion to Reichsrath.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Reichstag today, by 197 to 78 votes, decided to abandon voting by roll call and adopt a method of voting by card, similar to the practice of the French Chamber of Deputies.

The Socialists and Moderate Radicals, being in a hopeless minority, offered only a listless opposition. For three hours until the decisive vote was taken at about 3 o'clock, the time was spent in monotonous roll calls on minor propositions. Four bronze cups were carried by servants up and down the aisles. Each cup was attended by an assistant secretary. Into these cups the members dropped cards, on which their names were printed, and with "yea" or "nay," or "not voting," also printed on them. Each member marked out two of these designations, leaving one standing as his vote.

The Socialists attempted to waste time in preparing their cards, but after all delays the vote, which was 194 to 71 on an obstructive motion of the Moderate Radicals, was announced in eighteen minutes, as against thirty-five minutes for the old way. It is calculated that when the members get accustomed to the method, 300 votes will be taken and counted in five minutes.

"If any member doubts the correctness of the count," said President Von Ballestrem, "he can verify the ballots in the secretary's room."

Herr Spahn of the Center party said, "We shall have to adopt a rule to limit debate, before our Parliament is as effective a working body as the United States Congress."

A subsequent vote was taken by the new process, and Herr Singer, Socialist, complained that members dropped their cards into the cups themselves, instead of handing them to the secretaries for deposit. This occasioned a stormy passage, during which, amid Socialist cries of "It is false!" "It is a swindle!" President Ballestrem rang his bell and excitedly exclaimed:

"Gentlemen, remember this is the German Reichstag, and not the Austrian Reichsrath."

Such an exclamation from the president of the Reichstag is considered likely to produce comment in Austria, but may possibly call for an official disclaimer here.

The tariff obstructionists in the Reichstag have by no means given up the fight, but by the adoption of the new voting rule, their principal weapon is now taken out of their hands.

BOSTON BANK FAILS.

Comptroller of Treasury Orders Bank Examiner Neal to Take Charge of the Central National.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—The Central National Bank of this city did not open for business today, the Comptroller of the Currency having ordered Bank Examiner W. A. Neal to close its doors and take charge of its business as temporary receiver.

The closing of the bank is said to be due to excess of loans and a lack of quick assets.

The bank was organized in 1873 with a capital of $500,000. Its deposits aggregate $2,700,000, and it is believed that this amount can be paid in full without an assessment on the stockholders. Otis H. Luke is president and J. Adams Brown cashier.

The Central National Bank never fully recovered from a blow it received twenty years ago, when with the Pacific Bank, which failed at that time, it was involved in the collapse of the Lebanon Springs Railroad in Vermont. The Central Bank then lost $130,000, and an assessment of about 100 per cent. was made on the stockholders, and no dividends were paid for thirteen years.

The National Shawmut Bank announced today that it would advance to depositors of the Central Nationl Bank 50 per cent. of their present balances in that institution.

MEXICO.

TREASURES OF AZTECS FOUND IN A CAVERN.

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY MADE BY PARTY OF AMERICANS

By Means of a Chart on a Stone Tablet the Aladdin's Cave Was Discovered, and Despoiled of Its Riches—Government Investigating.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

HERMOSILLO (Mex.) Nov. 14.—A remarkable story, duly authenticated, of the discovery of hidden Aztec treasures, has just been reported to the government authorities at Tepic by Rev. Pablo Martino, the parish priest of Yesca.

The priest makes a statement, which is concurred in by several reliable witnesses, that a party of Americans headed by an archaeologic expert who gave the name of Heverick, arrived at Yesca several weeks ago, and went from that place into the mountains, accompanied by three Mexican guides.

The archeologist obtained his bearings by means of a chart which he claimed to have copied from an Aztec stone tablet in the National Museum in the City of Mexico. He located a vast cavern in a mountain near Yesca. Immense stone images stood about this chamber. In one end was a handsome altar, above which burned a bright flame supplied by natural gas from a crevice in the wall.

In a chamber adjoining this main temple was found a great store of ornaments and utensils belonging to the Aztecs or some other prehistoric race.

Twelve burros were required to transport the articles from the cave to San Blas, where they were shipped to San Francisco, accompanied by the Americans.

As such articles cannot be removed from Mexico without the consent of the government, an investigation is in progress.

ILL-FATED MAXIMILLIAN.

FALSE CHARGE OF COWARDICE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 14.—Gen. Bernardo Reyes, Minister of War, some time ago set on foot an examination into the authenticity of a letter alleged to have been sent by Archduke Maximillian to Col. Lopez of his own army during the seige of Querataro, in 1867 by the Republican forces. In this letter Maximillian earnestly charged Col. Lopez to keep a certain secret which would be damaging to the writer's reputation. The secret was believed to be that Lopez surrendered the Convent of La Cruz by order of Maximillian, who was thus put in the light of betraying his followers to save his own life.

The Investigating Committee completely clears Maximillian from the grave imputation against his character. It is shown on the evidence of the military writing experts that the letter is an undoubted forgery, and that Maximillian had no need to write to Lopez, who was at Queratoro at the time and had frequent interviews with Maximillian.

BURIES HIS WIFE ALIVE.

District Judge Madden of Kansas Decides That Prof. Vanora Has the Right to Do It.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

EMPORIA (Kan.) Nov. 14.—Judge Madden in the District Court last night decided that a man had the right to bury his wife alive. The case was the City of Emporia vs. Prof. Vanora et al., an injunction being asked to prohibit the professor giving an exhibition of hypnotism by burying his wife under ground and leaving her buried six days. The city claimed the exhibition endangered life. The hypnotist claimed the city had no right to draw a distinction against this kind of exhibition.

Col. Michael J. Dady of Brooklyn complained to the detective bureau of Havana that his confidential agent in Cuba is missing, together with $10,000 alleged to have been intrusted to him for the purchase of the waterworks at Cienfuegos.

CRAZY CONVICT SETS LOVERS A-SIGHING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

POUGHKEEPSIE (N. Y.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Superintendent Pilgrim of the Hudson River State Hospital took steps today to notify men all over the country who had answered the matrimonial advertisement of "Miss May Gaynor," a pretended Vassar graduate, and millionaire's daughter, that the advertiser was an insane convict who had been in the institution since 1898.

Away out in Livermore, Cal., a lover has been sighing and waiting for "the letter that never came." In Los Angeles there are three lovers in a similar miserable plight; two in San Francisco, and one each in twenty-five cities and towns scattered between New York and the Pacific Coast.

Letters from these men began to arrive in September. "May Gaynor" having failed to call for them, they were advertised. The postmaster's advertisement was seen by the insane man, and then the hoax came out. The man laughed heartily at the joke he had played on lovesick men all over the country. He wrote the advertisement and had it smuggled out of the hospital and mailed to a matrimonial paper, together with the photograph of an actress.

The most persistent of the correspondents lives in Houston, Tex. He wrote four letters to "Miss Gaynor," one in verse, and sent "her" his photograph. Then, when no answer came, he wrote: "Please do answer my letter. I will give you 1500 acres of good oil and rice land on the wedding day. Now, won't you let me call you darling, and let me feel the loving tendrils of your rosy lips to mine, while the stars of twilight shine."

port eleven Cuban children who had arrived at New York, bound for her Point Loma institution, and her appeal was allowed by Assistant Secretary Taylor, pending an investigation by Commissioner of Immigration Sargent, who is now in California.

Secretary Taylor said that he today directed Commissioner Sargent to proceed immediately to Point Loma and investigate the "Raja Yoga" school. Upon receipt of his report, a decision will be made regarding letting the Cuban children into the country. The children will be held at Ellis Island immigrant station, New York, in the meantime.

AVOIDING YELLOW FEVER.

MARINES TO LEAVE PANAMA.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—As a measure of precaution in view of the appearance of yellow fever, it has been decided to order the marine battalion away from the Isthmus of Panama. They will be taken on board the Panther to Culebra Island, where they will go into camp and remain for the present.

The flagship Wisconsin will probably proceed leisurely up the Pacific Coast to San Francisco, and if another vessel is needed at Panama, the cruiser Boston, at San Francisco, will be sent there. The Montgomery, now cruising in Haytien waters, being no longer required in that vicinity by reason of the practical cessation of hostilities, will be sent to Colon to replace the Panther, in case it is necessary to have a warship in that neighborhood.

FOUND A NEW ORANGE.

HALF JAP, HALF FLORIDA.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] For ten years the Department of Agriculture has been experimenting with orange growing with a view to getting an orange that would grow in colder climates than California and Florida, and the department experts say they have been successful at last in producing a hardy hybrid orange which may work as great a revolution in the orange-growing business as did the introduction of the navel orange. The new orange is described as being half Japanese trifoliate and half Florida sweet orange. This combines the hardiness of the Japanese evergreen with the sweetness of a Florida orange.

Dr. Herbert J. Webber, who made experiments resulting in the production of the new orange, is confident that its discovery will result in growing sweet oranges all over the Southern States, and possibly as far north as Washington, and will result also in pushing the California orange fields many miles further north. While the new orange is pretty successful for an experiment and will undoubtedly grow in a pretty cold climate, it has not been perfected as to flavor. It is a little too tart for eating purposes, but makes excellent flavoring for drinks and works well into marmalades. It is juicy; has no seeds, and is about two inches in diameter. Experts say they will have no trouble in bringing its flavor up to the standard.

PROPOSAL FROM COLOMBIA.

TO MODIFY CANAL TREATY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Cromwell, counsel for the Panama Canal Company, called at the State Department today and had a conference with the Secretary regarding the next step to be taken in view of Atty.-Gen. Knox's report on the sufficiency of the canal title to carry out the transfer of the property to the United States government.

The Spooner act requires a treaty with Colombia to be made before the canal company's property is actually purchased by the United States, but this treaty is now well advanced toward completion, so that it is deemed proper to consider other measures relating to the French title. It is also understood that, after a conference with such Senatorial leaders as have been in Washington recently, Secretary Has has pretty well satisfied himself that if such a thing were desirable, Congress would readily amend the Spooner act so as to wipe out the condition that a treaty must precede the purchase. In such case the canal property having been bought, the United States government would go ahead with the work of construction, leaving the treaty negotiations to follow. But, as already indicated, the negotiations between the Secretary and Señor Concha have progressed so satisfactorily as to warrant the belief that no such recourse to further legislation will be necessary.

The present status of the treaty negotiations is that there is now in the hands of Secretary Hay, who is waiting to submit it to the President, a proposal from Colombia suggesting modifications of the treaty which the United States originally proposed. This is being considered point by point, and while it is not doubted that it will not be accepted as a whole, yet there is said to be fair ground for compromise betewen the two propositions.

FINANCIAL STRINGENCY.

FRETS TREASURY OFFICIALS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The anxiety of Treasury Department officials regarding the financial outlook in New York was materially increased today by another request from San Francisco for a deposit of $3,000,000 in the New York sub-treasury and its withdrawal from the San Francisco sub-treasury. This makes a total of $6,000,000 asked for by San Francisco within three days.

It is realized that the requests from San Francisco are forerunners of similar demands from all sections of the country for funds with which to meet obligations maturing on January 1. Money is needed to move California fruit and cereal crops. A great mass of miscellaneous obligations falling due with New Year's means unusual demands for funds. Smaller country banks having money lent in eastern financial centers are beginning to ask for the return of their money.

Secretary Shaw and other officials of the Treasury Department hope there will be no further decline in the stock market. The continuance of the slump experienced in the past four days would precipitate acute liquidation, with serious consequences. In such an emergency the banks and other financial institutions must take care of themselves. The Treasury Department can render no additional assistance.

DEFALCATIONS IN HAWAII.

ONE OFFICIAL GETS AWAY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Official reports of defalcations by two prominent officials of the Hawaiian government were received by the Secretary of the Interior today, from Gov. Dole. William H. Wright, Treasurer of the government, admitted that he was $17,950 short, and H. B. Wright, chief clerk of the Department of Public Works of Hawaii, is charged with embezzlement of $8272.

The former escaped on the steamer Alameda, which sailed from Honolulu September 26, for San Francisco, and he has not been found, but the latter was arrested, and held for trial this month.

HELD FOR EXTORTION.

Marked Bills Given to Two Men, One of Them Said to Be United States Army Engineer.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—A man giving the name of Harry A. Williams, but who, the police declare, is Henry C. Wilson, for twenty years chief clerk and civil engineer in the Department of the East, United States Army, with offices in this city, was arrested tonight charged with extortion. Benjamin F. Whitmore, who says he is a reporter, was arrested with him on a similar charge.

The two men are accused of trying to hold up the Water Front Improvement Company of Jersey City, which is engaged in filling in crib work on Rikers Island in the East River, under contract with the street-cleaning department.

The men are charged with extorting $4500, which the police say was given to them in marked bills, under threats of stopping the work of the company, by causing to be withdrawn an army tug, a dredge, and some scows which had been lent, in order to expedite the execution of the contract.

ILL-FATED THIRTEEN.

ST. MICHAEL (Azores) Nov. 14.—The Norwegian ship, Telafon, Capt. Thorsen, which left Norfolk, Va., October 21, for Cardiff, Wales, has been abandoned. Thirteen of her crew were drowned, including all the officers. The survivors were picked up and landed here by the steamer Warfield, Capt. Battie, from Savannah for Bremen. At the time the Telafon was abandoned, she was dismasted, and in a water-logged condition.

GETTING EASY ABOUT MASCAGNI.

ROME, Nov. 14.—The latest news which has been received here regarding the Mascagni affair has convinced the Italian press that the American authorities did their utmost within the limit of the law to mitigate the composer's situation. The Italian Consul at Boston has telegraphed to the Foreign Minister here that it was impossible to do more than they did for the composer.

ROME, Nov. 14.—The eruption of the volcano Stromboli is increasing in violence and is accompanied by shocks of earthquake and alarming detonations. Ashes thrown up by the volcano are falling on boats out at sea.

HARRIMAN ROUTS KEENE'S ESPEE POOL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Not since the great panic of May 9, 1901, when J. P. Morgan cornered the Northern Pacific, has there been so much excitement in the stock market as there was today, because Edward H. Harriman executed a coup that places him in the forefront among the big financiers of the country.

Heading the Union Pacific pool, he routed the Southern Pacific pool, led by James R. Keene, and by the purchase of $12,000,000 of stock, has secured control of that system. This practically completed the biggest railroad deal in the history of the country.

NO WESTERN CHEAP RATES.

NORTHERN LINES "KICKING."

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—A strong probability exists that cheap passenger rates will not be put in effect in the territory west of Chicago during 1903. A movement is on foot to abrogate cheap rates for conventions and gatherings, to which they have usually been accorded, rates for excursionists and reduced rates for colonists.

The movement is due to a determined protest made by the so-called northern lines, the Canadian Pacific, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific. Several conferences have been held regarding the matter, and no settlement has been reached. The last conference was held here today, and was attended by J. C. Stubbs of the Harriman lines, Vice-President Bosworth and General Passenger Agent Kerr of the Canadian Pacific; General Passenger Agents Fee and Whitney of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern; General Agent Fall of the Union Pacific, and Darius Miller of the Burlington.

The northern lines complain that the cheap rates which are employed by the western lines during the summer months, destroy the northern harvest of tourist travel during the summer.

RATES MUST ADVANCE.

PRESIDENT RIPLEY TELLS WHY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—President Ripley and Vice-President Morton of the Santa Fé arived here tonight. In an interview, Ripley said that, in recent months, construction material of all descriptions and labor had advanced to such figures that little or no margin was left for profit. As a consequence, it is only a question of time, he said, when rates must also be advanced.

In regard to the labor situation on his road, Ripley stated that the railway employés are very conservative, and the best of feeling exists between employers and their men. While undoubtedly there will be a demand for higher wages on the Santa Fé, the problem, Ripley thought, would be quickly settled in a manner entirely satisfactory to all concerned.

RICHARD BLAISDELL ARRESTED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FREEPORT (Ill.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Richard Blaisdell, a resident of California, who located his wife and six-year-old daughter at Oregon, Ogle county, a few weeks ago, was arrested here today on the charge of kidnaping the child, and was taken back to Oregon. Blaisdell, who married a daughter of the late Charles Gossage, a wealthy dry-goods merchant in Chicago in pioneer days, has been separated from his wife for several months. Learning that they were at Oregon, he went there a few weeks ago, and while Mrs. Blaisdell was away attempted to abduct the child.

DIED WHILE HYPNOTIZED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OMAHA, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Rev. Thomas Anderson of Calvary Baptist Church has received an anonymous letter which declares that Rev. W. C. Rabe and Miss Augusta Busch, his secretary, who were found dead locked in each other's arms, had been hypnotized. According to the writer, the couple had been hypnotized by a man whose power they scouted, and he had made them play all kinds of tricks, and had then put them to sleep in each other's arms.

Among the beneficiaries are several Roman Catholic institutions in Chicago. Watson lived a most eccentric life, and occupied a little shanty, denying himself all but the barest necessities of life, not from notions of economy, but as a self-imposed penance for some real or imagined shortcoming.

The bank was short of $150,000, which, it was claimed, Johnson lost in gambling operations.

BATTLE TO DEATH WITH BAND OF BURGLARS.

ONE OF THE OUTLAWS KILLED AND CITY MARSHAL WOUNDED.

Three Citizens of Elyria, Ohio, Prove Their Mettle, Each One in His Turn Giving a Warm Reception to the Would-be Thieves.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ELYRIA (O.) Nov. 14.—Marshal Henry Krohm was seriously shot and an unknown burglar had his head blown off in a battle here early today. The shooting occurred during a fight with four robbers, who terrorized the town. The gang stole horses and rigs, entered several houses and shot recklessly in a wild charge down the main street.

J. E. Baird was awakened by burglars in his house. He saw two masked men standing on either side of his bed. Drawn revolvers were pointed at his head, but he jumped from bed and grappled with the intruders. In the darkness they broke away and fled.

The burglars then entered the home of Town Marshal Kronm, who opened fire on them. When he had shot three times, one of the robbers, who had jumped into a buggy, got out and began blazing away at the Marshal. At the third shot the latter fell with a bullet through his hip.

Baird, who had meantime arrived, picked up the officer's gun and continued firing. The robbers, however, drove rapidly away.

Baird followed them to the home of W. J. Hilliers of the Cleveland, Elyria and Western Railway. Even after Baird opened fire on the robbers they walked into the Hillier home, after smashing in the door. The noise aroused Hillier, and he reached for his gun, loaded with quail shot.

A burglar cautiously opened the door, and Hillier blew his head off with the first discharge. The other robber turned and ran, but Hillier discharged the second barrel. The robber yelled and tottered, but did not fall. He ran into the street and disappeared.

A posse is pursuing the robbers.

Marshal Krohm is seriously, perhaps fatally, wounded.

The dead robber's linen is marked "Davis." He had in his pocket a mileage book, sold at Oil City, Pa., to "Mr. Davis."

COAST RECORD.

DUEL WITH DEADLY ACID.

Husband and Wife Scar Each Other's Faces.

Both of the Combatants are Under Arrest.

Lawyers Pursuing a Fee—Ho Yow to Depart—Seek Pardon for Neal.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Archibald Bryant and his young wife, lashed into uncontrollable fury by jealousy, quarreled at their East Side home yesterday, and fought each other with carbolic acid. As a result each must go through life with scarred features.

She rebuked him for deserting her and marrying another girl named Emma Wittenberg. For this he was arrested and narrowly escaped punishment for bigamy. She bewailed the disgrace he had brought upon her young life, and the suffering he had caused her. She implored him to love her as a wife and to keep the marriage vows. To this prayer he made a sneering answer.

The outraged woman could bear no more, and seizing a bottle of carbolic acid, she dashed it into the face of the husband to maim him, that his favors with other women would cease for all time.

He retaliated, and today both were under arrest.

ALASKAN BOUNDARY STORY.

PRINTED BY VICTORIA PAPER.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Nov. 14.—The Province this evening says: "In the quietest possible manner and with every precaution to secure secrecy, the United States has encroached upon Canadian territory to the northeast of Cape Fox, and appropriated to itself thousands of square miles of land lying within the boundaries of British Columbia to the westward of Portland Canal.

"Large stone huts termed 'Houses of Refuge for Mariners,' have been erected comparatively recently on the western shores of Portland Canal, and from the headwaters of the canal a line has been surveyed along the mountain ridges and across divides in a northwesterly direction toward the [illegible] River, where it joins the Stickine.

"In brief, such is the all-important sensational information which has just been brought to light through the haphazard wanderings of some Indian prospectors through the territory in question.

"The line from Portland Canal runs westerly for a short distance and then runs nearly due west, finally connecting with the Iskoot River at its confluence with the Stickine. At that point there is to be found an old post, formerly erected by the Hudson Bay Company, and by running the line there is apparently the claim of the American government that the post [illegible] was placed in position by Russians. The survey line is distinctly marked by squared and cut stone monuments."

MISSION INDIANS.

RELATIONS WITH UNCLE SAM.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Indian Bureau officials say that if any discontent exists among the Mission Indians in the neighborhood of Indio, Cal., as reported from San Bernardino, it is the result of misinterpretation of the government's motive in arranging to transfer what are known as the Warner Ranch Indians and their kinsfolk from the lands the latter have occupied for years to a tract of land the government is about to buy for their home.

The Indian Bureau has received no word of any discontent existing among the Indians except at Warner's Ranch, where the Indians are anxious to remain, though the courts have upheld the claims of the white men for the land.

The land known as the Palma tract has been selected by a government commission for the Warner's Ranch Indians, and the abstract of title to the tract is now on the way here. There is no apprehension here of serious trouble among the Indians, who always have been among the most quiet and tractable of the red men.

POINT LOMA SCHOOL.

SARGENT TO INVESTIGATE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—The fight to prevent Mrs. Catherine Tingley from importing Cuban children for her Point Loma institution is to be transferred from New York to this city. W. J. White, secretary of the California Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, said today that telegraphic advices from New York relating to the status of the Cuban children there, and those now in Mrs. Tingley's charge at Point Loma, had been received by him.

White declined to state what course the societies interested would take, but intimated that the matter would be taken up in vigorous fashion.

United States Commissioner of Immigration Sargent, who is in this city studying Chinese immigration problems, will also investigate the Point Loma matter during his stay in Southern California. Such investigation will be within the limits of Sargent's official duties.

AGED COUPLE ASPHYXIATED.

STRANGE CASE OF FOSSUMS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—For the past few days the home of Sivert Fossum and his wife on Twenty-second street has been closed and their daily papers accumulated on their doorstep. Tonight a police investigation was made and the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Fossum were found upon their bedroom floor. The bodies were clothed in sleeping apparel. The couple had evidently been asphyxiated, although there are no gaspipes in the house. There was a strong odor of illuminating gas in the place when the police entered.

It is the theory of the detectives who investigated the case that a gas pipe running under the house had burst and the fumes overcame the couple. They were of advanced age, both being about 70 years of age. They were last seen Sunday night. Fossum was a retired ship carpenter and was reputed to be wealthy.

COIN OUT OF THEIR REACH.

KNOTTY POINT FOR LAWYERS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 14.—Adolph Rosenthal, the German Consul at this port, appeared in Judge Graham's court today to explain why he should not be made to appear in court. Some weeks ago he received about $70,000 from the estate of Andres Barrott, under probate in the courts of Alameda county, for distribution among heirs residing in Germany. Shortly after he took possession of the money, a law firm which had represented some of the heirs in court, filed suit for $4100 for services they had rendered. To enforce the collection of the money they obtained an attachment, and sent a deputy sheriff to serve it upon the Consul.

When the officer visited Rosenthal's office, that official refused to recognize the attachment. He declared that under the treaties existing between this country and Germany, he was exempt from process of the State courts.

This morning, the lawyers brought the whole matter up before Judge Graham. Consul Rosenthal was in court with his lawyer, and made the same point that he presented to the deputy sheriff. He declared that the only courts to which he was amenable were the United States courts, and suggested to the attorneys that if they had any cause of action against him they should take it to the Federal tribunal. In reply, the attorneys declared that there was no proceeding in the United States courts which would help them to collect their fee, and they insisted on their right to remain in the State courts.

Judge Graham took the matter under advisement.

ACCUSED OF INSANITY.

SHOLTO'S MOTHER-IN-LAW.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Margaret Mooney, whose daughter, Lauretta, married Lord Sholto Douglas, second son of the Marquis of Queensberry, several years ago in this city, was taken into custody today on a complaint sworn to by her son, alleging insanity.

Mrs. Mooney appeared this morning before Police Judge Mortimer Smith, on a charge of drunkenness. She was released on $6 bail. In a short time, while the Police Court was in full swing, Mrs. Mooney returned, and in a loud voice announced she was not getting a square deal, and wanted her bail money back. Her request was refused. This served to make her angry, and force was necessary to remove her from the courtroom. She reappeared shortly after her ejection and again made a scene. Her son was sent for, and he swore out a complaint charging insanity.

BLUNDERS OF EXPERTS.

CAUSED NEAL'S PUNISHMENT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—The President has been asked to pardon Lieut. John Neal, convicted of embezzling army funds, and now confined in the penitentiary at San Quentin. Neal was first accused of embezzling $5000, but the late John W. Mackay, a friend of Neal's wife, came to his rescue, made good the amount, and Neal was allowed to go free. The army accountants, through an error, returned $400 of the $5000 furnished by Mackay to Neal, with a statement to the effect that his shortage was only $4600. Later the accountants found that a mistake had been made, and demanded a return of the $400. Neal was unable to make the amount good, and was tried and sentenced.

The petition, which is now in the President's hands, is signed by some of the most prominent army people in the service. It is believed that the prayer for Neal's release will be granted.

JESSE R. GRANT'S SUCCESS.

NOME MAKES HIM WEALTHY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Jesse R. Grant, son of the former President, has made a comfortable fortune by successful operation of mining properties at Nome, in which he became interested three years ago. His home is in San Diego, whither he returned today on returning from his annual visit to Nome. With other Californians, he purchased interests in Nome placers when they were first discovered and is now realizing a large income from them. He is also interested in Mexican mines, and thinks he knows more about mining than any other kind of business, because he has been financially unsuccessful in all his business ventures except mining. He expects to continue that pursuit the remainder of his life.

Grant is about 40 years old; appears like an athlete, and made friends with all Nome miners with whom he came in contact.

ACCOUNTANT ARRESTED.

WANTED IN HONGKONG.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—R. P. Moffitt, an expert accountant from Hongkong, was arrested on board the steamship Hongkong Maru, by Detective Freel of this city today, upon information received here by cablegram requesting his detention upon a charge of embezzlement, until requisition papers can be executed and served.

Moffitt, who sailed under the name of Murphy, was accompanied by his wife when the arrest was made, and seemed to take the matter as a great surprise. At the city prison he has refused to make the slightest explanation, and has denied himself to all callers. The local police know nothing of the case, beyond the fact that the Hongkong police are eager to lay hands upon the traveler.

The cablegram received here contains the information that Moffitt is wanted for embezzling $2000.

ROUGH EXPERIENCE.

CROSSING THE BAR.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—The British ship Indore had a rough experience this morning, as she was crossing the bar into this harbor, after a voyage of 115 days from Hamburg. A stiff southeaster was blowing, and the bar was extremely rough, and as the Indore rode through the breakers to the inner harbor, she was swept from stern to bow by a tremendous sea, which carried away her compasses, skylights, and did other damage. Capt. Parry was carried off his feet, and severely bruised before he was rescued from what appeared to be almost certain death. The Indore's cabins were flooded, and it is feared that her cargo has been damaged.

TRIP UP THE YANG TSE.

ROBLEY REPORTS ON IT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Rear-Admiral Robley D. Evans, senior squadron commander of the Pacific Squadron, has made a report to the Navy Department of his recent trip up the Yang-Tse River in the Helena, to investigate the conditions in the interior of China. It was feared at the time that the Boxers were on the verge of an uprising, but Admiral Evans, writing from Ichang, says the abundance of the crops indicates a plentiful supply of foodstuffs, and he thinks there is little probability of rioting and other disturbances due to famine.

TWO WHALERS.

BACK FROM THE NORTH.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—The whaling bark Andrew Hicks has arrived from the Okhotsk Sea, with only eighty-three barrels of oil, obtained from one sperm whale. This is the poorest catch yet reported. At Hakodate, Japan, where the Hicks put in, five sailors refused to do duty and were put in irons until subdued.

The steam whaler William Baylies has arrived from the Arctic, having been as far north as 74 deg., 10m. Her catch amounted to five whales, which produced 9500 pounds of bone and 300 barrels of oil.

Three weeks ago, on the way home, Seaman Charles Turner stabbed his shipmate, C. Lopez, of the William Baylies, in the neck, narrowly missing the jugular vein.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

Adams, whose majority of two as Sheriff-elect of Tuolumne county, was converted into a majority of one for his opponent by the refusal of the canvassing board to count the vote of the Springfield precinct, has sued out a writ of mandate, citing the Supervisors to show cause why they should not canvass the returns from said precinct. The matter will be heard before Judge Nicol next Monday.

In the mean time, the Supervisors are estopped from declaring the result of the late election in this county.

Carried Over the Dump.

SONORA, Nov. 14.—John Boye, a well-known and wealthy miner, met with a tragic death at his claim near this city today. He left the collar of the shaft with a heavy carload of waste for the dump. Failing to return to the hoist, his partner, Neils Henricksen, came to the surface. At the bottom of the declivity lay the body of Boye, an almost unrecognizable mass, and near by the car. Boye had pushed the car off the end of the track, and in an attempt to save it was carried over the dump. He fell a distance of eighty feet and his neck was broken.

HOW THE BEEF TRUST WORKS BOTH ENDS.

PRICE OF CATTLE MUCH LOWER, BUT MEAT REMAINS THE SAME.

Packers Taking Advantage of Heavy Receipts of Live Stock and Paying the Shippers Twenty-two Per Cent. Less Than They Paid in July.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The continued heavy receipts of cattle during the past two months has demoralized the market, and packers are taking advantage of the situation, and making prices to suit themselves. The cattle have to be put on the market when they reach here, and the decline in the past four days has been from 25 to 40 cents per hundred pounds.

From the high point of the season in July, when sales were made at $9, the best cattle are now selling at $7, a decline of 22 per cent. Hogs that sold for $8 for the best heavy packing, two months ago, are now $6, a loss of 25 per cent. This has come out of the pockets of the farmer, and cattle and hog raisers, but at the same time the prices of dressed meats to consumers have not been lowered, and the consumer, as usual, has to stand the brunt of it. They were forced to pay higher prices when cattle advanced from $6 to $9 early in the season, but now that such prices have declined almost 25 per cent. from the high point in July, they get no benefit.

VOTES TO EXPEL HINSEY.

Action of Grand Tribunal of Illinois in Case of Former Head of the Endowment Rank.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—After a hearing that lasted nearly all week, the Grand Tribunal of Illinois, Knights of Pythias, has voted unanimously to expel J. A. Hinsey, who was retired from the head of the Board of Control of the Endowment Rank last year.

Hinsey has appealed to the Supreme Tribunal, which will meet at Indianapolis in February. At the recent meeting of the Supreme Lodge in San Francisco he was suspended from its membership pending the action of the Illinois Grand Tribunal.

Dr. A. I. Duffeleur, who was Medical Director of the Endowment Rank during the Hinsey administration, has been suspended for a year by the Illinois Grand Tribunal. Secretary H. D. Stolt, who was also to have been tried, died last month.

In the sixteen months since the Hinsey administration was retired the Endowment Rank, according to its announcement today, has paid up $500,000 of overdue death claims and has now nearly $6,000,000 cash on hand.

BOLD BLACKMAILERS WENT AFTER BIG GAME.

MADE MISTAKE OF TRYING TO BLEED MULTI-MILLIONAIRES.

Wrote Letters Assuming Role of "Russian Nihilists" and Containing Dire Threats Against the Recipients if They Failed to Disgorge Large Sums.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] As a result of the arrest of William Becker, ship's carpenter on board the steamship Americus, accused of being one of "Russian Nihilists" who for weeks have annoyed prominent millionaires and bankers in this and other cities by writing threatening letters, the police have extorted a confession that has put them on the trail of the boldest gang of blackmailers that ever operated in this country. Becker, who is not a Nihilist, made a confession today, in which he implicated five men, and gave their names.

At first the police thought that the supposed Nihilistic letters to J. P. Morgan, John W. Gates and other millionaires, were written by cranks, but from the startling revelations they have learned that the writers are some of the most famous criminals in the United States, and that they have been operating successfully, and collecting fortunes in blackmail for months.

Emboldened by their success, they thought they could frighten such men as Morgan, the Vanderbilts and John W. Gates with their blood-curling epistles into disgorging to them great sums.

Death or life-long insanity through the agency of subtle poison was the penalty named in their blackmailing letters for failure to send $1000 to "C. C. Barton," at the general delivery.

This morning not a boy nor a girl reported.

FELL INTO THE PITS THEY MADE FOR LAMBS.

FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS LOST BY POOL MANIPULATORS.

Speculators Who Boosted Espee Stock the Hardest Hit, Their Losses Being Estimated at Seventeen Millions—Leader of Pool Accused of Treachery.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The big brokers in Wall street remained downtown late this evening to take account of the slaughter in the street, for most of them were interested in the operations of the pools which have gone to the wall in the slump prices. There have been fifty of these pools operating in various stocks. Many of them were composed of mushroom financiers from Boston, Philadelphia, Montreal, Toronto and other cities—men never before known in the rôle of manipulators. These men attempted the familiar Wall-street game of digging pits for lambs, and fell into their own traps.

It is conservatively estimated in Wall street that in the wreck of these pools $50,000,000 has been lost to their own members.

The New York City News Association sent out this statement today in its report of the stock market: "The most interesting story was that of the collapse of the Southern Pacific pool, members of which it was said, must have sustained among themselves in varying amounts a loss of nearly $17,000,000. The pool is pronounced the greatest fiasco since the whisky pool. It is reported that one big operator who headed the pool sold it out, throwing his own stocks on the market and breaking the price. It is said this operator had quarreled with his broker, and had transferred his business to another firm."

New Pomelo.

What Mr. Fairchild considers his most important find during his last far-eastern tour is a seedless grape fruit (pomelo) from Siam. This tree would not come true to the seed, so it was necessary to ship the young plants in a Wardian case. They arrived after their long voyage in excellent condition, and are now growing in the department greenhouses. Mr. Fairchild has an idea that this splendid fruit may supplant all other kinds of grape fruit, or at least, be as important an accession to our fruits as was the navel orange. And now what is a Wardian case? In order to send living plants a long distance by sea, and protect them from the salt air and spray, which might be fatal to them, the plants are potted and put into the botto mof a small house with a glass top. This is hinged to allow watering. The whole case is netted to keep out rats. It is, in fact, a small portable greenhouse. The Wardian case enabled the Department of Agriculture to secure valuable plants which it could not otherwise have saved. They tell of a Japanese gardener, who in the old days, was engaged by the Mikado, and spent ten years of effort before he successfully introduced a particular breed of orange from China into certain provinces in Japan. The Japanese, Mr. Fairchild says, are now erecting a monument to this gardener. Strange that with the Mikado's exchequer behind him, he did not construct some sort of a Wardian case. Perhaps he was more anxious to keep his job alive than he was the plants. Such things have been known even in our time and in the United States, and they are probably not new to the Orientals.—[Cultivator.

Advice That Was Worth It.

"I was once a slave to the coffee habit, and became almost a confirmed invalid by drinking it," says Mr. C. H. Aitken of Whiting, N.J.

"I tried to break away from coffee but every time I stopped I suffered from severe sick headaches, and for relief went back to coffee again, only in the end to suffer from extreme nervousness and severe billious attacks.

"I became so irritable that I made life miserable for my family and myself. Finally I went to New York to consult a specialist. After thoroughly questioning and examining me, he said I must give up drinking coffee as it had greatly undermined my health, and he further said that coffee killed more people than rum. I laughed at him, but he said it was the truth and that in his practice he had seen many evil effects from coffee drinking.

"He said it was of no use to prescribe for me, unless I gave up coffee, and recommended that I use Postum Food Coffee, which he highly recommended. He charged me $12 for his advice, which I thought rather high priced at the time, but today I think it very cheap. I bought several packages of Postum from the grocer and it was the best day's work I ever did for myself.

"I had a pot of Postum made for my supper that night; that was in the spring of 1898 and I have drank it ever since with the best of results to my health. The sick headache and nervousness I suffered from drinking coffee have entirely gone; I am never billious and have increased in weight; I have a happier disposition and am much more agreeable company to my family and friends."

LABOR.

in any other important industry in the world. The number of persons killed and injured is greater than in any other industry. Each day the anthracite coal mines are in operation two and six-tenths persons lose their lives and three times as many are maimed, and yet these men receive less wages annually than are received by men performing precisely similar work in other fields, under favorable and less hazardous circumstances. The number of years a man can retain his health and strength in this occupation is limited. If he escapes death or injury by falls of rock or coal, he cannot escape attacks of miners' asthma. There is scarcely a mine worker who has not contracted this malady. The mine workers are compelled to work in powder smoke, in foul air, many of them in water, and their work is difficult. Reputable insurance companies will not issue policies to this class of workmen. The risks are so great that the premiums would be prohibitive to men whose earnings are so low. The entire 20 per cent. which they demand as an increase in their wages would not suffice to carry an insurance of $1000.

"It seems but fair and just that wages paid these classes of workmen should be as high, if not higher, than wages paid to skilled artisans in other industries. It is certainly not unjust to ask that these miners should receive as high wages as are paid to miners in the bituminous coal fields, in the silver and gold mines, or in the iron ore and copper mines, in all of which work is less hazardous, freer from liability to disease, requiring less expense and less skill, and is better paid than labor in the anthracite coal fields."

DEMAND FOR SHORTER DAY.

In supporting the demand for reduction of hours of day laborers Mr. Mitchell said that it ambunted to a demand of 20 per cent. increase in compensation for 83,000 men, or 57 per cen. of all mine employés. Continuing, he said:

"The eight-hour day is the standard working day in the mining industry. Eight hours constitute a day's work in the coal mines of Great Britain, in all the silver, gold and copper mines, and in the bituminous coal mines in the States of Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, Western Pensylvania and the Indian Territory.

"The reports of the United States Geological Survey demonstrate that more coal has been produced annually since the inauguration of the eight-hour work day than in any other preceding year. Each miner produced more coal per working day in the eight hours than he formerly produced in ten hours, and there is no reason why the same results would not be obtained in the anthracite field. The bituminous workers receive in many instances from 20 to 40 per cent. higher wages for eight hours' work than are paid in the anthracite mines for ten hours' work."

DEMAND NUMBER THREE.

Defending the third demand, that coal shall be weighed and paid for by weight and that 2240 pounds shall constitute a ton, Mitchell declared the present method of measuring the coal produced by the miners in the Lackawana, Wyoming and Lehigh regions, "has been the source of more discontent than any other of the many injustices imposed upon the miners, and there can be no contentment among these workers until an honest system has been adopted. Paying for coal by the car, or by the ton weighing from 2740 to 3190 pounds is a flagrant injustice. The cars have been made larger, more topping is required, and there has been no corresponding increase in the amount paid per car or per ton. The miners have been forced to produce a constantly increasing amount of coal for which they receive no additional compensation.

"The miners should be paid for every pound of coal he mines that is sold by the operators. If 2240 pounds constitute a ton when coal is sold to the consumer and when railroad companies are paid for transporting coal to market, what justice can there be in denying the miner the right to be paid for his labor upon the same basis?

"The anthracite companies, not satisfied with the extra legal ton of from 2740 to 3190 pounds, have a system of docking through which they appropriate an additional part of the miner's earnings. A miner is docked all the way from 500 to 1000 pounds upon a car as a penalty for loading impurities for which he has already been penalized to the extent of from 700 to 900 pounds in excess measure of weight; in other words, he is punished twice for the same offense.

"A system somewhat similar, but less unjust, obtained in a portion of the bituminous coal fields many years ago, but the miners are now paid by weight upon the basis of a legal ton; they are not only permitted, but are encouraged by the opartors to employ check-weighmen to see that the product of their labor is properly weighed and a correct record made thereof."

WORKS IN THE UNION.

Mitchell then took up the fourth demand of the miners for a trade agreement with the necessary machinery for the adjustment of local grievances. He outlined the history and policy of the United Mine Workers of America, and explained that by its constitution the anthracite and bituminous mine workers had home rule for the local government of local affairs.

"The only manner," he said, "in which the national organization is permitted to interfere is that, before a strike is inaugurated by district organization, the approval of the president of the national union must be obtained, but the president of the national organization has not power to inauguratea strike. Thus the coal mine operators are afforded a greater measure of protection against strikes than they would have under a separate and independent organization."

As to the responsibility of the mine workers' organization, Mitchell said:

"At the present time the United Mine Workers of America has contracts with the operators of fourteen States and districts, fixing the amount the miners shall receive per ton, the amount the various classes of labor shall receive per day, the number of hours which shall constitute a day's work, and the methods and machinery for the adjustment of local grievances by joint conference with the mine owners. These are mutual contracts, which are advantageous to both miner and owner, and protect the public against the effects of strikes or lockouts.

"The reports of the United States government on strikes in the mining industry show that the number and duration of strikes have been materially reduced each year since the system of joint conference and mutual agreement has been introduced.

"Where the United Mine Workers of America is recognized and contracted with, it assumes the responsibility of disciplining its members. The trade agreement has proved effective in restraining workmen from engaging in local or general strikes. There have been no strikes of any magnitude in any of the coal mining States in which trade agreements exist. We seek to establish the same method of adjusting wage differences in the anthracite field.

CLAIM OF BENEFITS.

"It is said that the competition between anthracite and bituminous coal is a reason upon which the anthracite operators oppose a recognition of the miners' organization. That this objection is neither valid nor consistent is clearly demonstrated by the fact that many of the railroads officered by the same men who control the anthracite coal mines enter into trade agreements with railroad organizations, a majority of whose members are employed upon other and competing roads.

"We demand recognition because we know that permanent peace and friendly relations can best be maintained through a trade agreement with the organization which our people elected to join. Fully 90 per cent. of the employés of the anthracite coal mines are members of it from choice, and they desire to retain their membership in it. It was the United Mine Workers of America that conferred with the President of the United States in relation to the submission of the issues involved in the coal strike to this commission; it was the United Mine Workers of America that was requested by the President to end the strike; it was the United Mine Workers of America that declared the strike at an end; it was the United Mine Workers of America that sent the men back to work, and it is the United Mine Workers of America that pledged to accept the word of this commission.

"Failure to recognize the organization was the cause of the many local strikes against which operators and mine workers jointly complained. There have been many local strikes during the past year, the fault of which rests upon operators and miners alike. The miners, failing to secure redress for their wrongs, (the companies having refused to treat with their representatives) had no choice but to submit to injustice, or inaugurate a strike.

"Recognition of the union does not mean dictation or interference by men not employed by the companies; it simply means that officers selected by the mine workers shall exercise supervision over the organization, or shall counsel with the mine workers as to how their trade affairs shall be conducted. The miners have as much right to select spokesmen to act for them, to present their grievances, to manage their affairs, as have the stockholders, or any one of the anthracite coal companies to elect their officers to perform like functions.

PROPOSES A PLAN.

"For the information of the commission we herewith outline more specifically a plan of procedure which, if adopted, would prevent local strikes, and preserve peace and harmony during the time covered by the award which you are empowered to make.

"First, the rate of wages, the hours of labor, the method of weighing and paying for the product of the miners' work should be incorporated in an agreement between the representatives of the various coal companies, and the representatives of the organization of which the complainants in the case are members.

"Second, there should be a committee of conservative representative mine workers selected by the employés at each colliery; it should be the duty of this committee to coöperate with the mine foremen in the adjustment of local disputes, which cannot be settled between the mine foremen and mine workers.

"Third, should the mine foremen and mine company fail to adjust the grievance complained of, the matter in dispute should be referred to the company superintendent, and a general grievance committee, which should be constituted of representative mine workers from each colliery operated by any one company. Should they fail to adjust it, it should be referred to the general manager of the coal company, and the district president of the miners' organization, and should they fail to adjust it, they should call on the services of some disinterested person, whose decision should be final.

"Pending an adjustment in the manner set forth, the mines and the miners should continue at work."

PLEA FOR THE CHILDREN.

Mitchell concluded with a plea for the children. He said:

"Our little boys should not be forced into the mines and breakers so early in life; our little girls should not be compelled to work in the mills and factories at an age when they should be in school. These children are the future citizens of our nation; their parents should be enabled to earn wages sufficiently high to give them at least a common-school education, so as to equip the mto bear the grave responsibilities that will ultimately devolve upon them. The wealth and the future of the nation are not to be measured by its palaces and millionaires, but rather by the enlightened contentment and prosperity of its millions of citizens, who constitute the bone and sinew of our land."

Responding to a question by Judge Gray, Attorney Darrow said the miners would at the outset put on some witnesses, and that he would call Mitchell first. It was agreed that all witnesses should be put under oath.

PUT UNDER OATH.

Mitchell was then sworn. He said that 90 per cent. of the anthracite miners are members of the union, and that the president or the Executive Committee never ordered a strike except upon the affirmative vote of the miners themselves.

Responding to several questions, Mitchell explained the relations between the union and the bituminous operators and said that by reason of the contracts entered into by them there had been no strikes of considerable magnitude. Through the amicable relations with the bituminous operators, Mitchell said, wages had been increased since 1898 an average of 50 per cent., and that there had been a reduction in hours of from ten to eight, and also in the number of children employed. The price of fuel, both bituminous and anthracite, he said, had gradually increased.

The work of mining he characterized as the most hazardous in the world. Last year 513 men were killed in the mines, and 1200 injured. The number of deaths in the bituminous fields in proportion to the number of men employed was not so great as in the anthracite regions.

Mitchell said the wages paid in the bituminous fields were from 40 to 50 per cent. higher in some classes of work, and from 20 to 30 per cent. in others, than in the anthracite region. He had visited the homes of miners in this region, and in the bituminous fields, and, generally speaking, the conditions in the soft-coal fields are better than in the hard-coal territory.

He said the agitation for high wages was begun two years ago. This had crystallized into a demand to be paid by weight, which, in his opinion, was the only honest method of determining the amount the men earn. He spoke of the increased size of the coal cars, and the demand of the operators that more "topper" should be put on, which he said had been a source of more trouble than any one thing he knew of.

"Were you willing to submit to arbitration?" Darrow asked.

"Always," said Mitchell.

Darrow's next question brought out the first public statement made since the late strike was inaugurated regarding the amount of aid given the strikers. Mitchell said that $1,500,000 had been distributed among the workers, and that non-union men on strike had shared equally with the unionists, although they had paid no dues.

TEN PER CENT. RAISE.

EXTENDED ALONG THE LINE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14.—The officials of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh gave notice this morning that the wages of all employés receiving less than $200 per month would be advanced 10 per cent. to meet the increase made by the eastern system of the Pennsylvania yesterday. The advance will affect about forty thousand employés.

RAISE FOR SWITCHMEN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 14.—The Burlington Railroad posted a notice today making the new wage scale agreed upon between the general managers of the railroads and the switchmen at Chicago effective here tomorrow. Eight hundred men in Kansas City will get an advaince, the switchmen an increase of 3 cents and the foremen an increase of 4 cents an hour.

SANTA FE MEN WAITING.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) Nov. 14.—The Santa Fé engineers firemen and switchmen are expecting a satisfactory response to their request for more wages. The advances made on other roads have made the way easier for the Santa Fé men. During the past week the Grievance Committee of the engineers and the firemen in session here have made good progress toward a new wage scale. Next week some time, the Grievance Committee of the switchmen is expected to be here on a like mission.

RECOGNITION OF UNION BONE OF CONTENTION.

RUMORS OF POSSIBILITY THAT STRIKE WILL BE RESUMED.

Financial Interests of the Country Said to Be Seriously Alarmed About the Danger of a Failure of the Work of Arbitration Commission.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Rather startling information comes from the coal fields of Pennsylvania regarding the outlook for settlement of the coal strike. It is that the outlook for settlement is not so good as was supposed would be the case when the Strike Arbitration Commission was preparing to commence hearings, but that on account of the growing bitterness between President Baer and President Mitchell over recognition of the miners' union, settlement of the difficulty may be seriously delayed, if indeed a settlement be reached at all.

Some information that comes from Scranton has been pretty pointed to the effect that the strike may be resumed within a month. Up to date President Baer for the operators and President Mitchell for the miners have taken directly antagonistic positions with reference to recognition of the union, Baer declaring in his answer to the demands made by Mitchell that he would never consent to deal with or recognize the union, and Mitchell insisting upon recognition. It is known that some members of the strike commission fail to see how arbitration can possibly be successful when both sides to the controversy declare upon one of the most important points at issue that neither side will yield under any circumstances. If Baer and his associates in the coal business will not agree to abide by the decision of the Strike Arbitration Commission, should the commission decide that the union must be recognized, Mitchell does not see why the miners should abide by the decision of the commission in case it decides against recognition of the union.

From several sources news of possible early trouble has been brought to Washington. Some of the financial interests of the country have already become seriously concerned about it. A Washington coal dealer who is now at Scranton telegraphed his firm here to stop selling coal in any considerable quantities for future delivery. A gentleman who is just back from Scranton and who is upon excellent personal terms with Mitchell, says he is convinced that the strike must be resumed again within a short time if both sides hold anywhere near their present attitude on recognition of the union.

FEDERATION OF LABOR.

PRELIMINARY BUSINESS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 14.—Another day was devoted by the American Federation of Labor to work preparatory for the actual duties of the convention.

Reports of committees and the introduction of resolutions took up all of the time. No action was taken on any of the resolutions. They were simply received by the presiding officer and by him referred to the various committees whose report upon them will be submitted later to the convention for action.

Promptly at 2 o'clock President Gompers called for the presentation of resolutions, and for an hour they came in a stream. Under the rules of the federation no resolution can be introduced after the end of the second day, and this afternoon was the last chance. When this work was finished, the Committee on Credentials announced itself ready with two more sections of its report, the first of which was to the effect that the protest against the seating of the delegates of the United Brewery Workers was not sustained, and that they should be allowed to act. The second was that the dispute over the seating of Delegate Cole of the Sheet Metal Workers had been compromised, and that P. J. Downey, the contestant, would act jointly with Delegate Cole, the vote being equally divided between them. Both portions of the report were adopted.

LAST GREAT STRIKE.

On cross-examination Attorney Wilcox questioned Mitchell regarding the strike of 1900. He asked how the strike was inaugurated, how many men were affected and how many were members of the union. Following this Wilcox took up the method of dealing with the men.

SMITH-SMYTHE MEETINGS.

Large Crowds Nightly at Immanuel Presbyterian Church — Serviecs All Next Week.

The increased attendance at the Smith-Smythe meetings has forced the ushers at Immanuel Presbyterian Church, corner of Tenth and Figueroa streets, to throw open the galleries, and from present appearances even these will be taxed to accommodate the people during the coming week.

Last night another large congregation greeted Dr. Arthur J. Smith, who chose for his text, III John, 5: "Verily, I say unto you, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God."

Dr. Smith said: "Nicodemus received a reply for which he had not asked. He had not sought knowledge concerning the kingdom of God; but, doubtless, Christ saw into his heart and answered him accordingly.

"Most men are desirous of knowing about the kingdom, and desire to enter it, even if they do not acknowledge it. The answer of Christ is plain. There is no spiritual life in the natural man. It must be born into life through the will of the man who surrenders himself to God.

"On the occasion of Ole Bull's last visit to this country, he called on his old friend, John Erricson, the famous inventor, and invited him to a concert. Erricson replied that he had no time and no interest in music. A few days later Ole Bull brought his violin to the busy man's shop and for an hour Erricson and his men left desk and bench to listen entranced to music as a master can express it. As Ole Bull stopped, Erricson exclaimed. 'Play on, I never knew what was lacking in my life before.'

"So there are men too busy to care, who are awakened into a new life at the touch of the master.

"The man who built the famous clock of Strassburg was not fully paid for his work, and one day by means of a secret spring, known only to himself, he stopped the wonderful mechanism. Not a clockmaker in all the country could discover the fault or how to remedy it until the maker was finally called in. Stepping to the proper place he touched the secret spring and the great clock was again in full motion. It responded to the touch of its maker. So men wake into a new life, as they respond to the knock of the Savior and open the heart to Him."

H. G. Smythe sang "I Shall Be No Stranger There," and "The Savior Stands at the Door Tonight," which made the usual deep impression upon the listeners.

Dr. Hugh K. Walker, the pastor, spoke of the gratifying results of the meetings, and announced that they would continue all of next week.

There will be no meeting tonight; but tomorrow night there will be a special service. In addition to the regular quartette there will be a chorus of young people, new songs by Mr. Smythe, and a praise service of songs from the new book furnished by the evangelists. This service begins promptly at 7:30.

The morning service will begin at 10:45, instead of 11:45, as printed on the invitations and window cards. The subject of Dr. Smith tomorrow night will be, "Reasons Why Some Men in Los Angeles Are Not Christians."

A large number last night expressed their determination to begin a Christian life.

SAN DIEGO COUNTY.

RANGER IN SEA OF ASHES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 14.—The United States steamer Ranger arrived this morning from Panama, where she left October 26, after being relieved by the Wisconsin. She stopped a few hours at Acapulco. She came in here to get surveying instruments which she left last June. She will leave probably next Tuesday for Mare Island. Capt. Field declined to talk about the recent friction on the isthmus.

Officers of the ship witnessed the display attending the eruption of Mount Santa Maria, which caused great loss of life and destruction of coffee plantations in Guatemala. From the ship great masses of smoke and pillars of fire could be seen shooting from the volcano, and rivers of lava poured down its steep sides. The ship's decks and the sea were covered with volcanic ashes. The officers said that buckets were lowered overboard and brought up full of ashes. Details of the disaster on land could not be ascertained from the Ranger's men, as no boats were sent ashore. The vessel was at anchor about twenty-seven miles from the volcano.

SAN DIEGO BREVITIES.

The committee in charge of the teachers' institute to be held here the week before Christmas has secured a fine assortment of speakers and scholars. Among those who will give addresses are George C. Gates, president Pomona College; President David Starr Jordan, Stanford; Prof. Frank J. Browne, Berkeley, ex-State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Washington; Edward Hiatt, superintendent of Riverside schools, and probably Charles Mills Galley, professor of English language and literature, University of California.

Gen. J. W. Barlow, late Chief of the Engineer Corps, U.S.A., and Señor Jacobe Blanco, of the engineering department of the Mexican government, arrived last evening to prepare for their journey of inspection of the iron monuments that mark the international boundary line beween here and El Paso. They probably will start tomorrow on their 700-mile journey.

The T. J. Daley residence at Twelfth and E streets has been sold to John T. Kaidel for $10,000.

STRONG, HEALTHY, AND FULL OF VIGOR AT 104.

SIXTY-FIVE GRANDCHILDREN LIVING AND MARRIED.

Mr. Ralph Bullock of Brooklyn, N. Y., Who Is In His 105th Year, Says He Is as Young and Active as Any of His Grandchildren---He Weighs 175 Pounds and His Only Medicine Is

DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY

"I was always fond of life," said Mr. Bullock to a reporter last evening. "I saw a great deal of it when I was young, and to this day I can laugh as heartily as the youngest of my grandchildren. I am good for some more years, and I scarcely feel my age. My vigorous constitution and remarkable freedom from disease is due to the daily use for many years of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Though I am past 104 years of age, I feel as young and hearty as forty years ago. I weigh 175 pounds, my appetite is good, and I still do all the chores. I cannot say too much in favor of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which is indeed a blessing to old people and invalids. I know it has prolonged my life many years."

Mr. Bullock's wife died twenty years ago, and he is living with one of his grandchildren. Sixty-five grandchildren are married, and they are all strong and healthy. His descendants, who live in Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn and Manhattan, are the McDonald, Watts, Hurst, Bullock and Clark families.

The health and vigor of Mr. Bullocks' children and grandchildren show that their father thought of his descendants and kept his constitution strong and vigorous with a pure stimulant and tonic, leaving all kinds of drugs and medicine alone. So it is with a woman; she should keep herself healthy and strong. If the fathers and mothers kept their constitutions strong and free from disease, there would be no sickly, puny children. It is an easy matter to keep the body in a state of normal health by using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, the only absolutely pure stimulant and tonic which is free from fusel oil and other dangerous ingredients. Do not fill your system with patent medicines and drugs.

There are thousands of cases similar to that of Mr. Bullock's, and if every one used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as directed, the average life would be prolonged at least twenty years.

CAUTION—WHEN YOU ASK FOR DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY BE SURE YOU GET THE GENUINE. UNSCRUPULOUS DEALERS, MINDFUL OF THE EXCELLNCE OF THIS PREPARATION, WILL TRY TO SELL YOU CHEAP IMITATIONS, AND SO-CALLED MALT WHISKEY SUBSTITUTES, WHICH ARE PUT ON THE MARKET FOR PROFIT ONLY, AND WHICH, FAR FROM RELIEVING THE SICK, ARE POSITIVELY HARMFUL. DEMAND "DUFFY'S" AND BE SURE YOU GET IT. IT IS THE ONLY ABSOLUTELY PURE MALT WHISKEY WHICH CONTAINS MEDICINAL HEALTH-GIVING QUALITIES. LOOK FOR THE TRADE-MARK, "THE OLD CHEMIST," ON THE LABEL.

It is the only whiskey recognized by the government as a medicine. This is a guarantee. The genuine at all druggists and grocers, or direct, $1 a bottle. Medical booklet free. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

RALPH BULLOCK. 104 YEARS OLD.

I Cure Men

I have given twenty-seven years to the study of men's diseases. In my early career I was associated with several eminent specialists in Germany, assisting them in their work and absorbing all their store of medical learning. My researches into this special field of medicine, my early training, and my twenty-seven years of active experience has given me such absolute command of knowledge that I make no hesitation in promising a cure to men, in whatever condition they may be. I understand the short roads to health—and there are many of them. By striking at the root of a disease I am often able to accomplish in a short while a cure which would require months of patient doctoring by the old-fashioned methods. I have studied how to cure without pain and suffering, and while in some cases it is necessary for a trivial application, that may cost a moment's unpleasantness, yet my treatment is never painful, even to the most timid and sensitive men.

If you suffer from a disease of any kind I have a PERFECTED METHOD of treatment which WILL CURE YOU. I am pleased always to CONSULT WITH MEN, and will give them a thorough examination. I WILL EXPLAIN their EXACT condition and my method of treatment. FEES for treatment are MODERATE, consultation, whether by mail or in person, is ALWAYS FREE of any charge. I am so positive of my ability to cure, that the price of treatment may be deposited with any bank, not to be paid until patient is thoroughly satisfied that he is permanently cured.

Contracted Disorders

Owing to my twenty-seven years of continuous and successful practice of ailments of this order, I am fully qualified to master any trouble in this category of diseases. Ofttimes the severest complications arise from using the wrong remedies. It is an hourly occurrence every day in the year for men to come and place themselves under my care after going through untold suffering, just through taking a friend's advice to use a never-failing remedy, or through the misdirected effort of the family doctor, or else the bungling work of some alleged specialist.

Blood Disorders

While these are the most persistent of all diseases and the most treacherous in their nature, I have had no exceptions in my list of cured patients, going back over twenty-seven years. Frequently I have been called into consultation by physicians, who, having succeeded in removing all visible traces of the diseases, find their treatment had only driven it deeper into the system.

My method strikes the disease at its root, driving it from the blood, as well as the skin. After treatment no trace remains of the deadly disease, and the patient is found to be sound and healthy.

Goat Lymph

Dr. Gross is the only physician who has used successfully Goat Lymph on the Coast, in all cases of nervous debility, locomotor ataxia, paralysis, lost vitality resulting from early indiscretions, etc. Those who have failed in getting relief elsewhere, call on him and he will give you a free demonstration of his Goat Lymph Treatment. He will not take a case unless he is positive that it can be cured. No charges for consultation.

His treatment has been indorsed by the ablest medical men in the East, as well as on the Coast. Rev. Wilson wrote as follows: "My Dear Doctor: I tried in vain to be relieved from my nervous prostration resulting from overwork, by the most able specialists here as well as in the Middle States, without results. Your Goat Lymph in one month restored me so that I am able to again resume my duties and I now enjoy my work and recreation as well as I ever did."

Why Be Weak?

Many men of middle age, who should be enjoying the prime of life in every way, wear the easily-distinguished mark of weakness. Do not continue to neglect this dread condition, as it will lead you swiftly down the path of despair. Weakness is often brought on by nervous overwork, but usually it is either the result of varicocele, enlarged, inflamed prostate, abuses, excesses or from badly-treated disorders. The known permanency of the cures I make in cases of this description is merely another demonstration of my ability. I will be found at the offices of the Anglo-American Doctors.

Varicocele and Results

Varicocele produces a large bunch of knotted and twisted veins on the left side. They can be readily distinguished by the feel. I only want my patients from five to seven days to guarantee a radical and permanent cure of every case.

STOLE BASES AND SLUGGED.

Sacramento Makes a Way to Victory.

Los Angeles Fell Two Runs Behind.

Programme for the Opening at Ingleside—Ball Game at San Francisco.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 14.—Daring base stealing and timely hitting won another victory for Pitcher Thomas today, although his delivery was very effective and had a deal to do with winning the game. Capt. Graham was out of the game, and sat on the bench nursing his disjointed finger, a great deal harder work for the nervy catcher than playing half a dozen games. Hogan replaced him and did excellent work, never allowing a stolen base. Mills pitched a good game for the visitors, but failed to keep his hits as well scattered as his opponent did. Toman and Sheehan carried off the fielding honors for their respective teams.

JEFFRIES AND HIS PLANS.

WILL TOUR WITH FITZ.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

OAKLAND, Nov. 14.—Champion Jim Jeffries arrived here today to consult with his trainer, Billy Delaney. According to Jeffries, the next time he and Fitzsimmons get together, it will be in a more pacific line of business than formerly, and for an equal share of the purses.

"I talked it over with Fitzsimmons in Los Angeles," said Jeffries, "and we practically arranged to tour the country together. We will show in Los Angeles and San Francisco, and then go North and East."

When asked as to future contests, Jeffries turned to Billy Delaney and said: "How about that, Billy?"

"Jeffries feels as he always has," responded Delaney, "eager to meet any man in the world. They all look alike to him—he has no preferences. But I want to say one thing, and that is this, whoever he meets from now on can rest assured that Jeffries, champion of the world, will do a little dictating himself. There will be no more bandages worn and no more division of the purse, and everything that takes place must be done out in the open." When Jeffries fights hereafter, the purse will split 75 per cent. and 25 per cent., and if he cannot get a contest on these terms he will quietly retire from the game, the only undefeated champion who ever quit the ring. He will leave the championship behind him, to be contested for by the remaining heavyweights who may aspire.

Both Jeffries and Delaney had read the reports of their alleged break in business connection, and both laughed over the report as they talked it over. "If there has been a break," said Jeffries, "Billy and I don't know it. I'm up here to get my orders from him."

HOBOKEN ITALIAN.

GAVE GANS HARD FIGHTING.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BALTIMORE, Nov. 14.—Joe Gans, the light-weight champion, got the decision over Charley Sieger of Hoboken, after thirteen rounds of hard fighting before the Eureka Athletic Club. The champion was called upon to do some very hard work to beat the Hoboken boy, who was no match for Gans in sparring or ring tactics. Gans blocked many vicious swings, but found that Sieger was capable of taking a remarkable amount of punishment.

The Italian came up strong in the twelfth and thirteenth and managed to hold his own, although being sent to the mat in the latter round. The champion rushed him in the fourteenth round, and had him down and practically out in one minute and twenty-five seconds. His seconds threw up the sponge to save him.

INGLESIDE PROGRAMME.

RACES ALL WELL FILLED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Indications point to fair skies and a good track for the opening of the winter racing season at Ingleside tomorrow. A fine card is offered, the feature being the opening handicap at one mile. A field of fourteen accepted the weights, and the majority of them are sure starters. All have been specially pointed for the event, and a fine contest is expected. Green Morris is represented by Sombrero and Homestead, two high-class performers. Other well-known horses are Corrigan, Eonic and Autolight. The other races have filled well.

ELEVEN INNINGS.

SHARP BALL GAME.

Americans, 1; Nationals, 0. Eleven innings.

The Americans won in their regular turn at Chutes Park yesterday, but the sort of ball they put up would license them to win anywhere, except were it not that their opponents played an equally brilliant game, and lost merely because of baseball luck. When neither team is able to score a man until the eleventh inning, the skill of the pitchers and the work of the fielders is easily imagined.

Joss was in the box for the Americans, and Donovan for the Nationals. There is little to choose between the two, six hits being made off of each one's delivery, and each giving two passes. Donovan had the best of the strike-outs, getting six to Joss's three. Joss got one put-out, and an assist, while Donovan got merely one assist. Joss looks, grins, acts and delivers the ball much as did our late unlamented "Rube," but is not so clownish.

The one run came after two men were out. Cross flew out to the right fielder. Sullivan died at the hands of Left Bower Crawford. Then Joss drove a grounder over second base for two bases, and came home a minute later on Hartsell's single to the same region. Jones, the next man up, flied to Ritchey.

In the seventh it looked good to the Nationals. Crawford beat out an infield hit to the pitcher. Beckley dropped a pop fly just back of third out of everybody's reach for a single. Ritchey pegged both runners up a notch with a neat sacrifice. Then the Americas braced up, and put the next two men up out of business in short order. Irwin was out on a drive to third, and Dexter was out at first on a pretty pick-up and throw of Williams.

NEXT MILL.

M'VEY-RUSSELL MATCH.

Manager Tom McCarey announced yesterday that McVey and Russell will meet at Hazard's Pavilion on December 4 at catch weights for a purse, and a side bet, and that he is arranging for two preliminaries to the main event, to consist of eight and ten-round bouts.

In their battle at Oxnard recently, Russell was defeated by McVey in five rounds of hard fighting, notwithstanding that Russell has had much the longer ring experience. However, McVey has fought six or seven pretty good ones, and has never failed to put out his man, and it is a moot question among the sports who saw the mill whether Russell can redeem his lost laurels or not.

One preliminary will probably be an eight-round go between Bresino and Taylor, who furnished a good preliminary to the Smith-De Courcey mill. The second preliminary is not yet determined.

Johnson of Bakersfield, Frank Carrillo's protégé, has posted a forfeit of $1000 with Harry Corbett of San Francisco, and wants to meet McVey. He will probably be given an opportunity here.

Afraid of Griffin.

The managers of the Britt-Erne fight in San Francisco have been looking for a couple of good men to go in a preliminary and as one star captured "Toothpick" Kelley, but have not as yet succeeded in getting another. Hank Griffin's manager offered Griffin's services, but "Toothpick" got cold feet when the Angeleño's name was broached, and refused to get into the ring with Fitzsimmons's sparring partner.

Exciting Bowls.

The match game at the Coliseum alleys last night, between Burke and Woods on one side, and Dee and McGrath on the other, was a very exciting contest, and was not settled until the last frame went down. Dee and McGrath won the purse of $25, by the very narrow margin of 12 pins.

WOES OF AN AMATEUR.

Many Troubles of a Young Man With a Camera—Many Kind Friends Ready to Give Advice.

[New York Sun:] On a bench in Lafayette Square on a sunny afternoon a few days ago a young man sat, disconsolately contemplating a hand camera.

Another young man approached. As he wore an engaging smile and an automobile coat, the man on the seat accosted him.

"Say," he said, politely, "do you know anything about photographs?"

"A little," was the answer. "Do you wish to tell your troubles to me instead of to the policeman; the troubles of the amateur with the camera?"

"Precisely," responded the man on the seat. "Washington is one of the best cities in the world in which to make photographs. The streets are wide, the long lines of trees make exquisite perspectives, the public buildings are fine, the atmosphere is clear, and, altogether, the capital is pre-eminent for photographic purposes, and local amateur camera artists have lots of fun which is shared by our visitors.

"The fever struck me a few weeks ago, and this camera is the fifth I have had, with corresponding rising price, until I can't pay any more for a hand-shooter. But I can't take satisfactory pictures—the fault of the camera, of course."

"That is odd," rejoined the other man, with a smile.

"Very," replied the local man. "I tried the Star building, which, by the way, is one of the best photographic objects in town. The plate developed the Star building tumbling over on the Raleigh, the Raleigh pitching violently into Twelfth street, and the pedestrians on Pennsylvania avenue running for dear life. What was the trouble?"

"You didn't hold the camera straight, that's all."

"Is that all? Thanks. I next took a photograph of a horse at Fourteenth street and Ohio avenue. The head and neck of the horse stretched from that corner to the New Willard, 1000 feet away—that is, in the photograph, of course, as it would have hurt the horse's neck to have literally stretched it that distance. My fault again?"

"Certainly. It was just out of focus. The next time you take a measured distance photograph focus the object exactly right, and do not juggle with a focus on another object and distance, as you did that time."

"Thanks. My next roll of films developed irregular black blotches like splatters of ink, and then, printed white like jagged leopard spots."

"Oh, you fogged the film that time."

"That sounds fine, say it again—fogged the film? What in the name of photographic art is 'fogging the film?'"

"In changing the roll you allowed a little light to enter; next time wind your film roll all up good and tight before taking it out."

"The next roll developed a beautiful jet black, every film as black as coal; defective no doubt."

"Oh, no, you merely snapped at objects with the shutter facing the sun. You must get the sun's rays over the shoulder; put your back to it, and also be careful not to allow the rays to come between you and the object; don't forget."

"You certainly are an obliging young man. My succeeding effort developed circular black disks the diameter of the lens in the center of the film, the rest of the film not having anything upon it. You can't tell the reason this time, for a cigar."

"That's dead-easy. You thought you had pressed the bulb and had snapped the shutter, but you didn't; squeeze harder next time."

"Then I got a picture with landscape, buildings and pedestrians all in undulating, wavy lines, like watered silk, and as if everything and everybody had the St. Vitus dance. My fault again, I suppose."

"To be sure. Your hand trembled. In taking snapshits you must hold the camera perfectly rigid; don't think you are doing it, but do it."

"Another picture showed the scene clear in one portion and blurred in others. Now then?"

"You didn't set the indicator to a fraction of a hair on the proper line on the graduating scale. It must be set true to give a perfect focus in the center as well as in the four corners of the photograph."

"In fact, my friend," concluded the young man with the engaging smile, as he wrapped himself in thought and his auto coat, "half of the fun in photographing is the learning how. You are learning now and having the fun. You have nine hundred and ninety-nine things yet to learn before you will take photographs which will please you perfectly. Just think of all the fun still in store for you. Just think of all the sport you will have when it comes to developing, printing, hypo's, solutions, flashlights, time exposures, interiors, cloudy days, juggling with one-hundred-and-fiftieth-part-of-a-second shutters, tonings, iris diaphragms, and the thousand and one other things and jimcracks connected with photography, and be happy."

BY ETHEL.
There is nothing known that resembles borax. It cleanses and preserves at the same time, which is remarkable. A cleanser that makes the hands rough and red will eat clothes. Borax preserves both hands and clothes. It makes washing surprisingly easy and leaves the clothes sweet and fresh. A cleanser that is used in the toilet to keep the hands soft and the complexion clear, and in the laundry to cleanse clothes quickly, to hold colors and to preserve fabrics, certainly is worth more than passing notice.

HOW THE TIMES TREATS LABOR.

THE LOS ANGELES TIMES regularly pays to its skilled, reliable and acceptable workmen wages that average from $3.75 to $4.50 per day for time work, and from $4 to $5.50 per day for piece work. These rates are higher than are paid by any competing newspaper; and another advance has recently been agreed upon. The Times pays larger sums weekly, monthly and yearly for labor than any journal in all the Southwest. Its cash disbursements on this account between August, 1890, and the end of September, 1901, aggregated $1,007,020.81, and its annual expenditures for labor of all classes, both skilled and unskilled, now average more than $175,000 per year. There never has been any attempt, in any quarter, to deny these specific and telling facts, and the proprietors challenge such denial if made. Not for years has The Times had any trouble with its workmen, who are independent of unions, loyal to their employers and themselves, well satisfied and prosperous. The Times controls its own business in its own way, subject only to the laws of the land; and no interference with that control can be lawfully or justly made. The result of its fixed policy has proven highly beneficial to all concerned, and the justness and correctness of its course have for years past received public approval in most marked and conspicuous ways, the circulation and advertising patronage of the paper steadily and largely outstripping that of all local rivals.

THE TIMES-MIRROR COMPANY.

H. G. OTIS, President and General Manager.

Since no attempt whatever has ever been made in any quarter to refute, or even dispute, the accuracy of the foregoing authoritative statements, our defeated maligners are estopped; and the public is amply warranted in giving no credence to contemporary hostile assaults upon The Times management in the matter of its relations to its workmen, or vice versa. Falsehood must yield to truth.

BUSINESS.

The credits exchanged at the Los Angeles clearinghouse yesterday amounted to $999,803.07, as compared with $661,896.30 for the corresponding period of last year.

Corn and wheat were higher at Chicago. Shorts in December are scrambling to get enough stuff to fill orders. Heavy liquidation and a violent drive by an organized bear party caused a slump in the New York stock market to the lowest prices of the week.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS IN THE PHILIPPINES.

The shameful vilification of our soldiers who have served and are serving their country in the Philippine Islands was fittingly rebuked by the popular verdict rendered at the polls on Tuesday, November 4. The bitter, unjust, and unjustifiable attacks made upon our men at the front were part of a cheap and wretched political scheme to overturn the Republican majority in Congress. No one knew better than those who were guilty of these attacks that there was no real foundation for them. The sole object was political. The truth was distorted in every possible and impossible way. Our soldiers in the Philippines were represented as monsters of cruelty and barbarity, who were waging a relentless war of subjugation or extermination against an inoffensive people. And all this for the pitiful purpose of turning a few votes against the Republican administration, which has maintained the policy that has kept our forces in the Philippines.

But the traducers of our soldiers overleaped the mark. They underestimated the patriotism and common sense of the American people, who easily saw through the deception and easily fathomed the purpose. The answer of the people to these attacks was given in the vote of November 4, returning to the lower house of Congress a strong Republican majority, and electing State Legislatures which will insure the retention of Republican control in the United States Senate, probably by an increased majority.

Maj.-Gen. S. B. M. Young, in a brief address at a banquet given in Washington on Thursday evening, on the subject of "Our Soldiers in the Philippines," called attention to the significant fact that the complaints against our soldiers "come from unreliable persons, and from comparatively few individuals;" also that the complaints "did not come from the Filipino people or from the foreign press, but originated with our own people." In other words, with a few unscrupulous persons who were willing to sacrifice the good name of their country in the hope of thereby carrying a political election. Gen. Young concluded his remarks as follows:

"The election is now passed. Those who expected to gain political advantage by assailing the army have failed in their objects. For the results have buried the question forever as a political one, and I feel now that I can speak the truth about our soldiers without being accused of having political bias or of defending them for political effect. Taking into consideration the circumstances surrounding them, our soldiers in the Philippines behaved remarkably well, better than any other nation expected or than we had any reasonable hope to expect.

"I say that the American army is the most humane army that ever waged war and I could bear out my assertions by the Filipinos and Chinese and even the Spanish prisoners. If it had not been for the intense desire of the American people to carry on an easy, persuasive war with the Filipinos, and the good faith in which the American officers acted to carry out that desire, the Filipino war would have ended in much less time."

There is no doubt whatever of the truth of Gen. Young's assertion that the American army is the most humane army that ever waged war. This fact will stand out in luminous relief when the dispassionate history of the Philippine insurrection shall have been written. That there have been instances of cruelty and rapine is entirely possible—we have such instances right here on the mainland in the midst of smiling fields and orchards all a-bloom—but that a general policy of oppression and cruelty has been the rule in our soldiers' treatment of the Filipinos is as black a lie as ever emanated from a black heart and foul lips. Our men at the front in the farther American possessions have lived the strenuous life bravely, patriotically and as becomes men and soldiers in all ways. Gen. Young has spoken as it was his right and duty to speak. It is for those persons who have been calumniating our brave men to eat their words. It is for the Boston backcappers and slanderers to take to their holes. It is for the anti-expansionists to be sorry they said it. And it is for those who have stood by the administration and the country to be proud thereof, and to continue to stand fast. Our soldier in the Philippines is the same there as he is everywhere—the best soldier and the best man on the face of God's green earth.

TAKE NO CHANCES.

It is encouraging to note that much attention is being directed throughout the country to the important question of the restriction of immigration. The annual report of the Commissioner of Immigration, of which a digest was recently published in the dispatches, shows that during the year ended June 30, 1902, the number of immigrants arriving in this country was 730,798, an increase of 167,930 over the previous year, and this number did not include arrivals from Mexico and Canada. That is to say, we received nearly once and a half as many persons as constitute the population of the city of Boston. The arrivals aggregated the heaviest figure in our entire history, with the exception of the year 1882—as a matter of fact, they were substantially up to the level of that record-breaking period. It is not, however, so much the size of the immigration that excites alarm as it is the character. Approximately, 75 per cent. of the arrivals last year were from Italy, Austria-Hungary and Russia. Commenting upon this, the United States Investor says:

"The enormous influx of Italians, Magyars, Slovaks, Roumanians, Bulgarians, Montenegrins and Russians is bound, if kept up at the present rate, to modify the character of our civilization in a very pronounced manner. In fact, there is indubitable evidence that this result has already been accomplished in an appreciable degree. For the last five or six months a state of anarchy has existed throughout a large district of the State of Pennsylvania, traceable to the influence of irresponsible agitators on a large ignorant foreign population."

The journal quoted thinks that it is not going to be an easy task to better the situation. There is pending in Congress an immigration bill with an educational test, but it is estimated that if it had been in force last year it would not have shut out more than 15 per cent. of the actual arrivals, and in all probability the proportion would have been considerably less. The Investor says:

"It looks as if it might be a matter, either of resorting to very drastic measures to curtail, or at least improve the character of, immigration, or of contenting ourselves with letting things take their course. When the question of drastic measures is raised, the mind naturally turns to the Chinese exclusion law. We do not pretend to say that the situation will ever reach that point; but no one knows what the future may render necessary. The philosophy of the American people may be equal to the contemplation with equanimity of a continuance of the present state of affairs, and possibly even of an aggravation of it. No one can actually say that in the long run the republic will not be benefited by the admixture of the blood of all the ignorant, downtrodden races of Christendom. We are at present engaged on the most stupendous sociological experiment in the annals of the human race, and the result will not be known to any one now alive. Many of the constituents in the alembic of our racial development appear unsightly and noxious, but who can say that the result will not be analogous to a real chemical change into something very grand and beautiful. Nevertheless, it might be well to take no chances. If anything can be done to improve the character of the immigration into this country, it should be done with the least possible delay."

Indeed, as our contemporay says, it might be well to take no chances. It certainly would be the height of unwisdom to take many chances in this direction. The United States is a wonderfully great and wealthy country, with vast undeveloped resources. It can absorb and assimilate a vast amount of foreign material of a mixed and sometimes dubious character, but there is a limit even to Uncle Sam's powers to digest along this line, and it certainly begins to look as if we were approaching very close to this limit at the present time. There is undoubtedly a strong sentiment abroad in the land that the time has come when the United States should shut down the bars against the promiscuous immigration of people who are not fit to make good citizens of the greatest country on earth.

SOUTHERN REPRESENTATION.

The movement looking to a reduction of representation from the Southern States in Congress ought to succeed, and by the same token there should be a reduction in the representation from that same belt of States in future national conventions of the Republican party. More than one national candidate for office has been nominated against the wish of the Republican States by representatives from States of the South in which the Republican vote is of but beggarly proportions. But for the southern vote in the convention held at the city of Minneapolis in 1892 Benjamin Harrison would not have been renominated to the Presidency and the election of Grover Cleveland with the attendant years of awful disaster to the nation would, in all human probability, have been obviated. In successive conventions of the party the Southern States have held the balance of power, but with no ability whatever to assist in the election of candidates forced into nomination against the sentiment of the States upon which success on election day depends. If the South is to be represented in Congress it must be upon the same basis that rules in other States. If southern Republicans are to dominate national conventions, then let the South "show us" that it can help in the winning when the fight comes on. The injustice of the present system of representation is so rank that it smells to heaven!

KEEP THE STREETS CLEAN.

In a growing city like Los Angeles, there is always more or less obstruction of the streets, which is unavoidable, being among the incidents of rapid growth and development. But it should be the aim of all to reduce annoyances of this kind to a minimum. Those who are in authority should make it a point, among their other duties, to see that the ordinances regulating the use of the streets are enforced, to the end that the public thoroughfares, which belong to the people, shall be, so far as possible, kept free from obstructions, in order that the people may have proper and legitimate use of that which belongs to them.

For something like a year the sidewalk around the old postoffice site has been fenced in in such a manner as to allow scarcely room for two people to pass. Work on the building has been at a standstill for months, even the demolition of the old building not having been completed. Only an all-wise Providence knows when work will be resumed. In the meantime, people whose convenience or necessity requires them to pass that way are subjected to great annoyance and inconvenience on account of the obstructed sidewalk. Inasmuch as no work is being done on the building, and none is likely to be done for months to come, it would seem that the sidewalk should be opened to the use of the public, at least until there is some necessity for closing it.

This is only one case in point. There are others. Throughout the city there is too much laxness in the matter of keeping the public thoroughfares clear so far as possible, for public use. Existing ordinances are probably sufficient to correct this abuse, if they were strictly enforced. If they are not sufficient, let new municipal laws be enacted which will accomplish the desired result.

The rapid growth of the city's population necessitates a stricter enforcement of the ordinances regulating the use of streets and prohibiting the abuse of street privileges. Our streets are thronged with people daily, and the rights of these people to the free and unincumbered use of the streets must not be ignored. Where extensive building operations are in progress, some obstruction of streets and sidewalks is, of course, unavoidable. But the obstruction should be no greater than is necessary, and should be removed as soon as possible.

The tariff is not to be tinkered, according to Representative Grosvenor of Ohio. But if it is tinkered the friends of the tariff will do the tinkering. And there we are for a continuance of prosperity, with all that that word implies to the American who lived through the other thing when the Democracy and Grover were a-horseback.

This country leads the world in gold production as well as in the sowing of the filthy stuff broadcast for the purchase of creature comforts, articles of virtu, fast horses and horseless fast things, flying yachts, special cars, gewgaws and baubles, and handsome raiment. Sam Gompers is worrying considerably because the labor unions are likely to eat each other up. He wants them to feed on nothing but employers. But Sam forgets that a quail a day for thirty days will gag the most ravenous eater. A change of diet is a good thing, Sam, as you ought to know.

Those European youngsters of Austria-Hungary and Belgium who might wear crowns, but are declining with thanks, probably are wise enough to foresee the federation of the nations, the Americanizing of the world. If not, why so shy of the glittering baubles that stand for authority?

California hasn't a large cotton crop, as yet, but it's because we haven't tried to grow it. Give the soil of the Golden State a chance and it will grow almost anything. Sheep on a thousand hills and cotton in the valleys are equally easy to this prolific soil upon which we walk the floor.

The dictum has gone forth that no laborer shall be permitted to work in Los Angeles unless he joins the union. But it is one thing to issue a proclamation and quite another thing to enforce it. We doubt if this metropolis is given over to slavery quite yet.

A popular vote for the disposal of the remnant of the American Boy battleship fund is entirely in order, but let us hope that the election officers will know how to figure out the returns so they will not look like tracks made by wild animals and birds.

A MODERN IDIOSYNCRASY.

Some Peculiar Habits That are Picked Up from Reading the Lost and Found Columns.

[New Orleans Picayune:] "The lost and found column of the newspaper is responsible for a rather peculiar habit," said an observant citizen, "and it produces a rather singular mental condition. It has caused a great many persons to make a rather close study of the sidewalks of the city, and no doubt many of them live in constant hope of picking up something very valuable. They have all sorts of wild dreams about finding jewelry, more or less valuable, and big rolls of money, and things of that sort. I am not speaking of the unhappy and extremely unfortunate class we find in the city whose life is spent in searching the sidewalks and the gutters for whatever trifle they may pick up. I have in mind a different sort of people, people who are more cultured and refined, and whose minds have by degrees beat into the groove. Maybe some of them have found something at some time or other, and this has caused them to search more or less diligently the sidewalks as they rush along the street.

"I know of one case of this sort, a young man who has been so influenced by the habit that he goes along the street with his head down, often passing his nearest and closest friends without seeing them. He made the statement to me a few days ago that during the past year he had found six silver dimes on the sidewalk, and he had gradually drifted into the habit of searching the sidewalk with his eyes as he passed along the streets. 'Besides,' he said, 'I am always reading the lost and found column in the newspapers, and the thing has a sort of fascination for me. It has produced a perpetual condition of mental excitement, and, of course, I get a great deal of pleasure out of it.' Now here is a curious thing. Men for some time have indulged in the foolish haitb of counting cracks in the sidewalk, or telegraph poles, or touching things with their hands, but few of us have been aware of the existence of a class of men who are constantly trying to find something as they brush along the street. When we have found men looking intently at the sidewalk we have supposed that they were counting the cracks, or trying to keep from stepping on the cracks, or making some sort of curious study of the sidewalk's topography, but instead, we now learn that they are actually looking for wealth, trying to find something that somebody else has lost. What strange flights fancy doth take in these latter days."

LOCAL RAILROAD RECORD.

BIG AMBITION OF RUSSELL.

An Electric Line to San Francisco.

Plan to Extend from Ventura Up.

Road Will Be Operated Without a Trolley by Underground Currents.

Trolleyless will be the proposed electric road of the Bakersfield and Ventura Railway Company—unless the present plans of the management fail.

Such was the announcement made yesterday by Maj. H. M. Russell of this city, who for the past year has been working out the preliminary details of a road from the ocean to the Sunset, Midway and Bakersfield oil fields. So far has the work progressed that it has become necessary to determine what shall be the system employed in installing the proposed electric railroad.

"We have given this matter the carefullest consideration," said Maj. Russell yesterday, "and have concluded to instal the block system. This system does away with the overhead trolley, together with the expensive poles and wire and maintenance, and affords what is believed to be the safest electric system in the world, by means of underground currents. When I say we have 'concluded' to install this system, I mean that the management eagerly wishes to do so, provided we can make satisfactory arrangements with the Chicago firm, that owns the patents, and does the work. I expect a written proposition from those people next Monday. As we understand them, they will install the system and guarantee satisfaction before any money need be paid.

"If the block system is put in over our line, it will be the only one in the West, and the company is extremely eager to demonstrate here the practical utility of the new system, which is working successfully between several eastern points."

Maj. Russell stated that he hoped to begin active work at tracklaying by the first of the year.

EXTENSIVE RAILWAY.

The proposed road will run from Ventura and Hueneme to Bakersfield. Work is to be begun at the ocean end. Whether Ventura or Hueneme shall be the lucky point, depends upon circumstances, with the odds favoring Hueneme, ahead of which town the railway company feels is a great future, both commercially and as a summer resort.

"Our surveys are all made," said Maj. Russell, "and from Ventura and Hueneme to Sunset all franchises and rights of way have been obtained. Since May 1 we have kept four surveying parties in service at an expense of over $20,700, and before all of the preliminary work is completed such expenses will aggregate about $30,000."

CAT JUMPS OUT.

Then Maj. Russell let a newsy cat out of the bag. When he saw what he had done, he made a desperate grab for the feline, but she was beyond reach.

"You know," said he, "we are going to extend our line from Sunset on up to San Francisco, and now have surveyors at work staking out a route. But that is not generally known and perhaps it is not best to make it public. Just say nothing about that."

The proposed road from Ventura to Sunset includes about 125 miles of bed, with forty more miles for the extension to Bakersfield. Then there will be several miles of siding.

FREIGHT POSSIBILITIES.

Maj. Russell is positive that his road will in no wise cut into the business of the Southern Pacific.

"But, rather will it be a great benefit to the Southern Pacific," said he, "and will greatly develop the business of that road. Why, sir, we have carefully canvassed the possibilities of the freight traffic of the section through which we go and find that yearly there are 27,800,000 pounds of freight per year now promised us, and to be hauled as soon as our road is in operation. We figure that there is $700,000 revenues in sight for the road the very first year. Nor does that enormous estimate include any oil figures at all. And we can haul oil cheaper than convey it by pipe line.

"We hope to have the line in partial operation at least within eight months."

Maj. Russell is well pleased with the company's prospects, and paid high tribute to the services of John W. Burson of Ventura in securing franchises and right of way. The company's engineer is Gervaise Purcell of Los Angeles. All these parties are sure that the extensive sugar interests of Oxnard and the walnut, beet, bean, borax and petroleum interests of the section, all unite to guarantee a roseate future for the proposed railway, and the block system of electric propulsion will make it unique in this part of the country.

SIAM CUTS US OUT.

Los Angeles may hang her head in disappointment—or disgust—for the Crown Prince of Siam has cut her out of his calling list. Instead he will spend nearly two days and a half in San Diego.

Santa Barbara has also been cut out.

It was officially announced at the Santa Fé headquarters yesterday that His Royal Highness will pass through Los Angeles tomorrow for San Diego, and will return here at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, leaving for Del Monte on the same evening at 7 o'clock. The original plans included a stop of two days in Los Angeles.

The dignitaries of the party include His Royal Highness, the Crown Prince of Siam; His Royal Highness, Prince Chakrabongse; Hon. Herbert H. D. Pierce; His Excellency, the Siamese Minister; Col. David B. Sickles; Col. Phya Rajavallobh, first aide-de-camp; Capt. Luang Sabasiddhi, second aide-de-camp; Mom B. Anuvatra, private secretary; Edwin Morgan; Luang Surayudh, aide-de-camp of H.R.H., Prince Chakrabongse; E. H. Loftus, secretary Siamese legation; J. H. Gore, Columbian University, Washington, D. C.; H. Y. Darnell, tourist agent, Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

RAILWAY NOTES.

The railrod men in the uptown offices of the Southern Pacific and those in the freight department have been invited to attend a smoker at the home of G. A. Parkyns, assistant general freight and passenger agent, next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Inasmuch as Mr. Parkyns is a genial and lavish entertainer, the invited guests are guaranteed an unusually good time.

John Graves, for a long time employed in the Santa Fé auditor's office, has been given a substantial promotion and is now assistant ticket clerk at La Grande station.

C. Clifford, general agent of the freight department of the Union Pacific at San Francisco, is in Los Angeles.

RANDSBURG CLEAN-UP.

Fine Showing from Butte Mine and Santa Ana—Quicksilver from Oceanic. Stilwell Purchase.

A recent clean-up at the Red Dog mill in the Randsburg camp, from 80.75 tons of ore taken from the Butte mine, resulted in three bars worth $5824, or an average of $72 a ton. In addition to this, a check for $4607 was also paid to the Butte company by the same milling, as a result of the treatment of 680 tons of tailings, that were recently cyanided. This represents a gross total production of the Butte mine for October of $10,431, or the largest single month's output thus far.

It is stated that the increase in production of the ten months of this year over the corresponding ten months of last year, is over $14,500.

The company is now engaged in sinking another shaft of 100 feet.

A good clean-up was also made recently from the Santa Ana mine, now under lease to George Huff and L. W. Hoffman. The showing reported is quite unusual, as it is stated that the milling of twenty-seven tons of ore a few days ago resulted in a clean-up of $3460, or $132 to the ton. This was the result of one month's work.

The Santa Ana property is owned by the Napoleon Consolidated Mining Company, and is considered one of the coming properties of what is known as the Stringer camp.

OCEANIC'S QUICKSILVER.

Specimens of elegant quicksilver ore were received yesterday at the office of George Kislingbury in this city. They were from the Oceanic mine, situated near San Luis Obispo, and owned by F. W. Braun & Co. As development progresses on this property new and valuable deposits of ore are being opened up.

CLAIMS FOR STILLWELL.

The Stillwell syndicate, which has been purchasing numerous mining properties in Mexico, has secured other valuable claims. The Chihuahua Enterprise says the company has been fortunate in acquiring good properties at Terrazas and at Victordeno, where they have 355 pertenencias. One of their claims, the Stillwell, of nine pertenencias, which belongs to one of the branches of the Tri-State Development Company, adjoins the rich America, where the strike has been made, and it is believed the veins and ore bodies run in that direction. The rich chamber of the America is 150 meters from the line of the Stillwell. Mr. Nathan, the general manager of the company, has already done considerable development work in that camp, and the British investors in these companies will find as large a profit in the mines as they will in the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient road, upon its completion.

GRAHAM COUNTY SALE.

An important mining deal was closed in Arizona this week, under the terms of which the Ken-e-chy group of twenty mining claims in Graham county was sold to a syndicate of Detroit, Mich., capitalists. A company will be organized, and work will be begun within three months. Considerable low-grade, gold-bearing ore has been exposed, and indications are that there is better to be found with depth.

THEY BORE LINCOLN'S BODY.

Two Survivors of the Men Detailed to the Martyred President's Death Chamber.

[Washington Times:] Of those six men who were detailed to carry the body of President Lincoln from the Peterson house on Tenth street, where he died, to the White House, where the body was prepared for burial, there are today but two survivors. These are John E. Weaver of Philadelphia and William Reith of this city. Mr. Weaver, in a recent letter, recites his part in the duty devolving upon him.

"It has always been a source of pride to me to know that I was one of the six men detailed to carry the body of our martyred President to the White House. I was a soldier in the quartermaster's department at that time, when detailed to assist in carrying the body of Lincoln from the Peterson house, on Tenth street, opposite Ford's Theater, to the White House.

"Arriving at the White House, we carried him to his bedchamber, where his body was given in charge to Government Undertaker Sands. While in the room looking upon the face of him we called Father Abraham we felt only too deeply our great loss, but no one seemed to be as grief-stricken as Secretary of War Stanton, for he was the most grief-stricken man I ever saw. Since then I have often thought that it was no wonder that Stanton's death occurred so soon after Lincoln's.

"It was not only my fortune to be honored as one of the detail to carry Lincoln's dead body to the White House, but I am one of the survivors of the 'First Defenders of Pennsylvania,' who arrived in Washington on the evening of April 18, 1861, and who, on the morning of the 19th, Lincoln grasped by the hand and said: 'I wondered what State would first respond to the proclamation calling for 75,000 men, and here you are, the old Keystone State.'"

In the Lincoln Museum on Tenth street are the photographs of these two old survivors, to which is appended a document, which reads as follows:

"During the twenty-sixth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, held at Washington, September, 1892, two comrades met for the first time in many years, who performed a very sad duty on the morning of the death of President Lincoln. These two soldiers, with four others (Eli Morey, David Frantz, John Richardson and Antonia Bregazzi,) all of whom are now dead, were detailed by Gen. Daniel H. Rucker to place the body of the deceased President in a coffin in the room in which he died, at No. 516 Tenth street, Washington, carry the coffin to the hearse, and from the hearse to the White House, and then dress the body, after which Gen. Rucker gave to these six men the white linen shirt taken off Mr. Lincoln as a souvenir of the sad occasion. A piece of the same is here attached.

"The two participants on this occasion are now living, and have retained their portion of the shirt until the present time.' William Reith, the upholsterer, Washington, D. C., and John E. Weaver No. 2021 Mervin street, Philadelphia, Pa., are the two survivors of that sorrowful detail on the morning of April 15 1865. William Reith was sworn into the service on April 11, 1861, as a private in Co. A, Eighth Battalion, District of Columbia Volunteers, for three months, and reënlisted as an artificer in the quartermaster's department under Gen. Rucker. He is now a member of the Union Veteran Corps, Eighth Battalion District of Columbia Volunteers. John E. Weaver was sworn into the service at Harrisburg, Pa., as a private in Co. B, Twenty-fifth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He is a member of D. B. Birney Post, No. 63, G. A.R., Philadelphia, Pa."

Youth's Unrestraint.

"Don't you sometimes long for your childhood's happy days?" said the sentimental person.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne; "there are times when I would enjoy hanging on the fence and making faces at people I don't like, instead of having to say, 'How do you do, dear? So glad to see you.'"—[Washington Star.

To Form a Habit.

Most people go through life with closed eyes and minds. They do not notice what goes on about them; they have no curiosity about trees, birds, stars, the mechanism of locomotives, the art of sailing, the wonders of electricity, the endless variety and movement of things in the world in which we live. They do not learn as they go on in life, because they have not formed the habit of learning.—[Success.

The Drop Curtain.

A youngster had been to the theater and upon his return, his uncle asked him how he liked the play.

"Oh," he replied, "the play was all right; but I didn't see nearly all of it."

"Why, how did that happen?" asked his uncle.

"Because," answered the youngster, "the roller must have been broke, for the window blind fell down two or three times."—[Chums.

Clever People.

"Not at all," replied the professor. "It's the man who can shove others out of his way that succeeds best."—[Pearson's Weekly.

INVASION OF "BLIND" BOSS.

The Latest Purchase by "Chris" Buckley.

He Owns Half of Local Crib District.

Buckley is Friend of Mayor Snyder and is Working for Him.

Christopher H. Buckley, the "blind white devil" and erstwhile political boss of San Francisco, is now owner of nearly one-half of all the "crib" property in Los Angeles. He and Bartolo Ballerino, the notorious Portuguese capitalist of Pico Heights, are the almost exclusive landlords of "Little Paree," the tenderloin district of this fair city. Between them they control property that is said to produce an income of nearly $100,000 a year—an income that is a direct rake-off from the wages of sin.

It is significant that Buckley did not make his big investment in Los Angeles only till after the Democratic City Convention had renominated Mayor Snyder.

Buckley is known to be a friend and admirer of Mayor Snyder. Indeed it was Buckley who first suggested the gentleman with the pink whiskers as a Democratic candidate for Governor. Buckley probably knew at the time that Snyder was an impossibility as Chief Executive of the State, but he already had in view the acquirement of "crib" property in the Eighth Ward, and he thought it good policy to tickle the vanity of the Mayor, whom he subsequently hoped to see reëlected as head of the municipal government.

Be that as it may, it is certain that the Buckley influence is behind Mayor Snyder in the present campaign. It is also stated on good authority that the blind boss has staked out his Councilmanic candidates of both parties.

HIS SAN FRANCISCO REVENUES.

Buckley's investment in Los Angeles "crib" property need be no surprise to the unsuspecting public. For years he was the chief owner of houses of ill fame in San Francisco, and he waxed immensely rich under police protection of his interests. So long as he was the political power of the metropolis, his income from rentals of property in the slums was sure and easy, but with the advent of the Phelan administration, the cribs which he owned, or controlled, were abolished and Buckley's revenues were reduced.

In the mean time, the blind boss had become familiar with the situation in the Los Angeles tenderloin by reason of his being administrator of the Thiel Bauer estate. Buckley made a good thing out of his trust, and the heirs of the estate were some time subsequent to the decease of both him and his wife, settled up to the satisfaction of all parties concerned, save several unsuccessful litigants, who contended for a share of the [illegible].

Bauer, "king of Little Paree," was at one time a mighty power in the [illegible]. He made a pile of money and prospered so long as his wife lived and managed his financial affairs. But after her death a horde of parasites and financial leeches took advantage of his mental weakness, brought on by years of dissipation, and despoiled him of most of his substance. Buckley got himself appointed guardian and trustee for the chief of the macquereaux, and his astute management is all that saved anything from the wreck of the Bauer fortune.

The prospect of succeeding to the vast income which formerly went to the mighty wrestler, Bauer, was so alluring that Buckley could not resist the temptation of becoming the chief landlord of the fallen women of Los Angeles.

A BLIND DEAL.

Buckley made his purchase about two weeks ago, but it was not placed on record before Friday of last week. Buckley's name does not appear in the deed as the purchaser. The name of a dummy, Jane Johnston, is used as the person to whom the property has been conveyed. In the published transcript of real-estate transfers for November 7, the transaction was modestly stated as follows:

William Ferguson and Flora M Ferguson, [illegible] Ann Briggs, Lillie May Briggs and Grant McGowan to Jane Johnston, lot at southeast corner Ferguson alley and Alameda street, [illegible].

The property conveyed is known as the Ferguson and Briggs cribs. It is in the very heart of the tenderloin, and consists of a rookery of one-story shacks divided into small compartments called "cribs," which are rented to fallen women of all nationalities, at a rental of $1.50 to $2.50 per night, cash in advance. It is estimated that the income from these cribs, if steadily occupied, as they usually are, will amount to about $36,000 per annum. How much of this princely amount will find its way into the pockets of political grafters is problematical, but [illegible] Buckley has always been reputed to be a liberal giver of douceurs, and if his sort of people get into office he will probably lose nothing by protecting his interests.

THE RECENT PURCHASES.

The history of some of the recent deals in crib property is as follows:

Chris Buckley, as trustee of the Bauer estate, had a five years' lease from the Larronde estate of tenderloin property, adjoining the Ferguson and Briggs properties, three years of which is yet to run. This leasehold includes the notorious Basket saloon on Alameda street, conducted by "Johnny" Manning, brother of "Billy" Manning, ex-champion pugilist and professor of san[illegible]. About four months ago Bartolo Ballerino sold his interest in the Ballerino tract on Pico street for $55,000. With the proceeds of this sale he bought of the Larronde estate all that property running from Los Angeles street through to Alameda street, subject to the lease of the Bauer estate at that time controlled by Buckley as trustee. Buckley made an arrangement with Ballerino by which the latter was given immediate possession of all the Larronde property, except that portion fronting on Alameda street.

Ballerino improved his new possessions by erecting several rows of cribs and establishing alleyways, electric lights, etc., for the guidance of depraved humanity to the haunts of vice. This is known as Ballerino's addition to "Little Paree." He already owned a good portion of it before the addition was made.

The Bauer estate had a lease from the Briggs and the Fergusons to the part of the block not belonging to the Larronde estate. That lease was to expire before the end of the present year. Under the Buckley administration of the Bauer estate, a number of new cribs were erected on the Briggs and Ferguson property, and they have proved immensely profitable. Buckley was unable to secure a satisfactory lease of these cribs after the expiration of the present year, so he bought them outright and is now proceeding to maintain his position, in conjunction with Ballerino, as boss of the whole crib business in Los Angeles, as he formerly was in San Francisco.

BUCKLEY'S PROGRAMME.

The programme of Buckley is to reelect Snyder as Mayor, and secure a majority of the Council, either Republican or Democratic, or mixed, that will appoint a Police Commission favorable to the crib interests.

Buckley's reputed nephew, John Heaney, looks after his property interests here, while "Eddie" Morris, the Democratic political wiseacre, who may always be seen in front of the Nadeau cigar stand, handing out chunks of political advice to the faithful, is said to be looking after the political interests of the blind boss, who returned to his northern home soon after the Democratic city convention.

The Buckley and Ballerino monopoly has raised some resentment in the breasts of small individual crib owners and saloonkeepers in the Eight Ward, who complain that the magnates are robbing them of their business. The adjoining saloonkeepers are especially sore, as all the macs and crib women in the Buckley-Ballerino dens of vice must patronize the Basket saloon, which is doing an immense business as the result of the big Bs' enterprise.

TROPICO.

MANGLED BY TRAIN.

TROPICO, Nov. 14.—Matt McGlory of Blue Island, Ill., who was stealing a ride on a Southern Pacific stock train, was terribly mangled and probably fatally injured this evening. Half a mile from the depot, he fell off the train upon the track, and the wheels of half of the cars passed over his left arm, severing that member and crushing his body severely. A physician was called, and accompanied the unfortunate sufferer to Los Angeles on a passenger train, and placed him in a hospital. The victim of the "beating" habit and wheels is only 26 years of age. It is believed he cannot recover.

TERRIBLE FALL.

Frank R. Marsh fell from the boiler wall at the Pacific Art Tile Company's plant last evening, and sustained painful injuries, which might readily have been extremely serious. It was a drop of but eight feet, but Mr. Marsh struck on the hard cement floor, and his right knee joint was broken in such a way that a long time will be required in healing. The young man's head came in contact with a nail keg as he fell, and his tongue and upper lip were severely cut, and his cheek gashed. He is not internally hurt, and is receiving treatment in the California Hospital, Los Angeles.

Anxious to Do Right.

The children had quarreled, and Willie had struck Tommie. Instead of returning the blow, Tommie turned and ran down the hall.

"Where are you going, Tommie?" asked his mother.

"Kitchen," answered Tommie, tersely.

"What for?"

"You said if anybody was mean to me to heap coals of fire on his head, an' I'm goin' for the coals."—[Chicago Post.

ROBERT J. BURDETTE has written for The Times Magazine of the coming Sunday some reflections made on his tour eastward.

"Lots of men suddenly become near-sighted when they start out to look for work."

When a man starts out to buy a $15 suit, he must be mighty near-sighted if he can't see the superiority of ours. The unusual "smartness" of the woolens, the dash and style of the cut, and the excellence of the tailoring are there—and the fact's recognized by every looker who knows what's what.

FORD TRACT COTTAGES.

$2250 AND UP.

12 TO 15 MINUTES FROM BUSINESS CENTER.

If you want to see a pretty home in an elegant location, for a small amount of money, go out to the Ford tract and look at our cottages. Do you know of any place in Los Angeles where you can buy as handsome a cottage on as pretty a lot; where the streets are graded and graveled; where the cement curbing is in; where the cement sidewalks are down; as one of these cottages in the Ford tract? Think of it! Every modern improvement, just as good as you can get in the older locations where the prices are from $3000 up, for a cottage of the same size. Go out to the Ford tract and see for yourself just what this proposition is. We have an office on the tract and will extend to you every facility for the examination of the homes now building. Take Main st., Maple ave., or San Pedro street cars, direct to tract.

FAKE HAIR PREPARATIONS

Do Hair no Good, But Often Cause It to Fall Out.

Many hair preparations are "fake" because they are merely scalp irritants. They often cause a dryness, making the hair brittle, and, finally, lifeless. Dandruff is the cause of all trouble with hair. It is a germ disease. The germ makes cuticle scales as it digs to the root of the hair, where it destroys the hair's vitality, causing the hair to fall out. To cure dandruff, the germ must be killed. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Newbro's Herpicide is the only hair preparation that kills the dandruff germ, thereby leaving the hair to grow luxuriant.

What a Chemist says of Uricsol
A cure for Rheumatism

WESTFIELD, N. J., Oct. 15, 1901.

MESSRS. C. LAUX & Co., Los Angeles, Cal.:

GENTLEMEN—Having had the opportunity of testing your preparation for the treatment of the Uric Acid Diathesis, very appropriately called "Uricsol," it is a pleasure to be able to say that it has made itself deserving of much esteem and confidence.

The opportunity was one of which the manufacturers had neither knowledge or intimation. The incident of acquaintance was brought about by a happy chance. Edward U. S. Holmes was in China at the earlier date of the Boxer outbreak, and the first Peking horror drove him from the Celestial Kingdom. Suffering terrible exposure before he sailed, and still worse exposure while a passenger on a freight steamer, he reached this country invalided with rheumatism. At a place called Turner, not far from Salem, Or., he found friends. The disorder, muscular and articular combined, had possession of him in a most aggravated form. It was then that his friends obtained Uricsol from Woodard, Clark Co., Portland, (Druggists). His report, as given on August 6th, on his coming to Newark, was in four words, "it cured me promptly." The case was one of much interest, although full particulars were not brought, and led to the laboratory acquaintance, the samples being obtained through a Salem druggist from the Portland druggist—the person ordering it having the impression that Woodard, Clark Co. manufactured it.

I have no testimonial to write. Mr. Holmes' case is mentioned simply to state the circumstances of introduction. The results of laboratory and somewhat limited clinical research present several striking points of interest. To these I desire to call particular attention, in proof of the solution deserving the esteem and confidence to which reference has been made.

It neutralizes the uric acid and without overstimulating the kidneys. This, of course, is the secret of its success, as a neutral substance will not produce detrimental effects.

It does not disturb the digestive processes.

It controls the action of the heart without depressing it, and without causing any exhaustion. In reducing the pulse it does not cause any nausea or other disagreeable action.

It acts in accordance with nature's own laws in controlling the nerves of voluntary motion.

It does not impair the quality of the blood. In other words, it does not impair the constructive energies of the system.

It has an action on the liver which is very closely alterative.

It seems to produce a mild physiological stimulation of the intestinal glands.

These several facts concerning physiological action go to accentuate its value as a uric acid solvent.

WILLARD H. MORSE, M. D., F. S. S., etc.,
Consulting Chemist.

If you are suffering with rheumatism we wish you would try our Uricsol. We are so sure that Uricsol will help you and cure your trouble that we are willing to give you your money back after you have used it faithfully if you received no benefits.

Uricsol was not put on the market simply to sell, but to cure your rheumatism, and we know it will cure rheumatism because it has been curing it for 2½ years. Physicians in and about Los Angeles prescribe Uricsol in all cases of rheumatism and if it were not for the ethics of the profession would be glad to recommend it in writing.

Uricsol removes rheumatism because it dissolves the uric acid in the system and eliminates it, and it is the uric acid which is the cause of rheumatism. Uricsol cures long standing cases of rheumatism, tones up the system, creates an appetite and acts as a tonic besides a uric acid solvent. It does not harm any part of the body and can be taken indefinitely without any injury whatever.

Uricsol will be sent to any address in the U. S. upon receipt of price, $1.00, if your druggists do not supply you. 5

UNCLAIMED BAGGAGE AND ITS CONTENTS.

DEAD BODIES OCCUPY SOME OF THE PARCELS.

One Man Lost a Box Containing Four Hundred Dollars and Recovered it After Four Years—Attempts to Claim Damages for Baggage Never Lost.

[Denver Post:] Once upon a time a Frenchman living in Salt Lake City murdered a fellow-countryman and freighted the body to Chicago in an air-tight zinc box. Neither the crime nor the disposition of the corpse was regarded as very remarkable, but the fact that concealment of it continued for a year made two continents wonder. It came about in this way:

The zinc chest was inclosed in a dry goods box and carefuly nailed in. Then the murderer billed the bulky package to a fictitious address on South Jefferson street, Chicago. Of course, the box was never claimed, and it lay, as a consequence in the seclusion of a railroad storage-house for a year. The law requires this as a protection to shippers.

When, at the end of a year, the accumulated boxes that no one claimed were sold at auction, a subrban resident paid $2.75 for the decayed body of a Frenchman, whose name is believed to have been Jean Prosper Chazel. The latter's slayer was never caught, for the Coroner's jury decided that the deceased was another man, who turned up alive two years later.

This remarkable mystery may not often be paralleled by the mysteries that attach to the great number of trunks, express packages and boxes of freight that go unclaimed every year in the hands of the railroad officials, but many an agent has expressed surprise at the negligence or queer judgment that has made the periodic auction sales of old baggage a necessity. Every railroad has its storage-house for unclaimed goods, and in the depots of all large cities may be found deserted corners in which the spiders festoon their tapestries between these inanimate castaways of uncompleted voyages.

No auction sale has ever been held to dispose of union depot goods, but the railroads sell out every few years. The Rio Grande Railroad turns its accumulations over to the Rio Grande Express Company for storage, and the latter sell them with its own unclaimed packages. Its next sale will probably occur next year.

"A case like this occurred at the depot once," said Foreman Julian. "A woman left Denver for Colorado Springs, supposing that her trunk would be cared for by a boarding-house keeper. But the latter sent it to the depot and failed to inform the owner, who later became very sick and did not learn where her baggage was for eighteen months. We had to let her have it for a nominal cost."

Alfred H. Lee, baggageman of the Rio Grande, has been with the department for a great many years and he has a considerable fund of baggage lore in his head. He says a large part of the unclaimed trunks that pass under his notice is the property of miners who jump around without knowing where they will stop. The average value of a piece of lost baggage is not very large, else the owner would not be so careless about it. Occasionally a traveler dies and his relatives do not know where to find his baggage.

"But the amusing part of the business," said Mr. Lee, "comes when they file claims for damages against us. I am in correspondence now about a telescope grip that was stolen from the platform at Leadville. I believe the owner stole it himself, for we have just found out that he is serving time in the County Jail for vagrancy. He sent in a bill for $54, some of the items being a razor, $5; pair of shoes, $5; underwear, $5 a suit; pair of socks, 50 cents, and two shirts at $3 each. What do you think of that?

"Not long ago a woman in Topeka wrote in that her trunk had been lost in Denver on the way from Telluride to Kansas. She laid claim to $500 and declared the trunk contained mining stocks, silk dresses and various other articles of value. She described her baggage minutely, gave the number of her check and related various other details that gave an air of probability to the story. It was so important a claim that I wrote to Telluride and was told there that the woman did not have a trunk when she left. Then I had the Santa Fé people in Topeka look her up and they found she was a dead-beat. The evidence, so far as the checks went, was all in our favor, so we dropped correspondence with her. She didn't write again.

"Recently the Union Pacific people mislaid a small telescope that belonged to a woman in Cheyene. When she found this out she put in a claim for a trunk and contents valued at $175, employing attorneys to press her case. While this was pending, the telescope was found behind a pile of trunks and it was sent on to the claim agent at Omaha. The latter started at once for Cheyenne and called for a conference with the attorneys and their client.

"'Is this yours?' asked the agent presenting the valise when the woman appeared with the lawyers.

"She could not say a word. When the telescope was opened it was found to contain a hypodermic syringe and a few stockings. The lawyers made the woman pay the agent $35 for his trouble."

It remains for Cromwell Tucker, freight claim agent of the Rio Grande, to tell a story that equals some of the "Treasure Trove" romances.

"Fifteen years ago," said Mr. Tucker, "a man came running into my office with a most anxious look on his face.

"'Is this—the freight—department?' he began, breathlessly.

"'This is the place,' I replied as he paced back and forth before me.

"'My box,' he continued, speaking in short sentences. 'Have you got it? Can I have it? I have just arrived in town.'

"I inquired his name and learned the particulars of his quest. A box he had shipped four years previous had never been redeemed and he now wanted to claim it.

"'You are certainly lucky,' I said, 'but you will have to hurry. We are selling out all unclaimed freight this morning at 10 o'clock. It is now 9:30. Come with me.'

"The two of us went in a hurry to the storage rooms, where the auctioneers were preparing for a sale. The man passed among the boxes and soon came to one which he identified. The storage cost him $35, but this he paid willingly.

"Without waiting to remove the box, he tore the top of it off and dug into the bottom. He pulled out a small bag and emptied twenty $20 gold pieces, or $400, out of it in my presence.

"'This explains my anxiety,' he said, as he drew a long breath.

"Then he explained that he had been traveling in the East, and had not been able to call for his freight."

LONG FASTS OF SNAKES.

Some Remarkable Facts Gathered by the Révue Scientifique, Paris, Regarding These Reptiles.

[Public Opinion:] M. J. Pellegrin has written to the Zoological Society of a curious case of fasting of a serpent, and in this connection it may be stated that frequently among the ophidians there are observed cases of fasting, the duration of which is extraordinary. Among serpents in captivity individuals are noticed which, although side by side with those who willingly accept the food given them, obstinately refuse all and every sort of nourishment. This state of affairs cannot be indefinitely prolonged, but death frequently does not occur until after a lapse of time which in many cases is very great, as will be seen from the following interesting particulars:

At the snakehouse of the Museum of Natural History in Paris facts of this nature are noticed frequently, and August Dumeril cites the case of a snake of North America which remained fifteen months without taking nourishment, and a rattlesnake which only ate at the end of twenty-six months. M. Vaillant cites the case of a pelophile which is still living after twenty-three months of fasting, and a python who only took food at the end of twenty-nine months. This observer further reports the case of two pelophiles which died of inanition, one after three years, the other after the extraordinary period of forty-nine months that is more than four years.

The case which we wish to especially notice here is remarkable not for the duration of the fast—which was sufficiently long—nearly two and one-half years—but above all for the loss of weight of the animal, that is, nearly two-thirds of the original volume. According to the investigations of Chossat at Geneva, experiments which were made on warm-blooded animals for the most part, it seems that death occurs independently of every other cause when the subject has lost 40 to 50 per cent. of the original weight. M. Pellegrin reached the same conclusion with reference to ring snakes, which, after being submitted to absolute fasting—that is, deprived not only of food, but of water—died on the average after losing 38 per cent. of the original weight. In the cases of those submitted to relative fasting—that is, not deprived of water—death occurred after a loss of 43 per cent. of the original weight, but the duration of life was with them three times greater.

It is not the same in the following cases: The 17th of November, 1899, there was placed in the snakehouse of the museum a superb reticulated python of Japan, which measured nineteen and one-half feet in length, his coloration being living and brilliant, his diameter enormous, and his activity denoting the most flourishing state of health. Furthermore, he manifested a dangerously aggressive disposition. He was offered the most diverse foods, but all were obstinately refused. Sheep, rabbits, geese, ducks and chickens were in turn offered, and while at times he stifled these in his coils he left them without touching them. He contented himself with frequent bathing in his basin, and this fact is important, as death comes much quicker with the ophidians submitted to an absolute fast.

The python continued to refuse food and began to decrease in volume, the brilliant and glistening color present at first giving place to a dull, gray color, and at the commencement of 1902 he was surprisingly thin, being nothing more than skin and bone. Completely apathetic and inoffensive, he allowed himself to be handled with impunity, remaining perfectly inert, rolled up in the corner of his cage. At different times it was sought to feed him by means of eggs placed in his mouth, but this nourishment produced no result, and his body rapidly became covered with sores, fragments of gangrenous skin were detached from the creature, and the odor was very disagreeable. It was observed that partial and successive death of the organs preceded in a way the total death, which occurred the 20th of April, 1902; that is, after two years, five months and three days of fasting.

The animal weighed at the time of death twenty-five kilos, the initial weight having been seventy-five kilos. Thus the reduction was fifty kilos, or two-thirds of the original weight, a remarkable figure, which seems to prove that sometimes with the larger adult ophidians, submitting voluntarily to a relative fast, death does not occur until after a loss of weight much greater than Chossat thought.

LEARNING TO BREW.

Japanese Student is in New York for That Purpose—Is an Enthusiast for His Work.

[New York Tribune:] Mashashi Fujita of Hokkaido, Japan, is a student at the American Brewing Academy, in Chicago. Mr. Fujiti entered at the beginning of the fall course. His purpose is to become thoroughly instructed in the art of brewing, having come from Japan to America for the sake of learning the craft of a beer-maker.

The Japanese are cultivating a fondness for American beer. When a year ago Managing Director Ayemura of the Sapporo Brewing Company, in Japan, made a tour of investigation in Germany, England, France and the United States, in the interests of beermaking, he selected, after a

[illegible]ENZ DEPARTS FOR GRAND CANYON.

[illegible]TLE CRIPPLES TREATED [illegible] LOS ANGELES.

[illegible] of Great Austrian Surgeon [illegible] Joy to Many Homes and [illegible] to Medical Profession—Four [illegible] Performed Yesterday.

[illegible] children, that were cripples, [illegible] girls and one boy, have cause to [illegible] with gratitude the visit of [illegible] Lorenz, the great Austrian [illegible], who reversed the decree of [illegible] and corrected the deformities [illegible] would have been a burden to them for life. The great [illegible] departed for the East last [illegible] leaving behind him homes where [illegible] great joy has entered, the [illegible] and respect of the men here [illegible] profession, and the admiration [illegible] who have watched his [illegible]

[illegible] from his skill in surgery, and [illegible] discovery of the bloodless [illegible] in correcting certain deformities Dr. Lorenz has been voted a [illegible] because he associates hu[illegible] with his profession; because the [illegible] beseeching mother that came [illegible] with her child, met with the [illegible] and assistance, if it could [illegible] that the wealthiest received. [illegible] has also been of great benefit [illegible] physicians and surgeons of [illegible] California, who have witnessed his operations, and profited by [illegible]

[illegible] morning he operated on four [illegible] at the Good Samaritan Hospital. Two of them were the most [illegible] cases that have come under [illegible] hands in this city, and [illegible] the hardest he has ever [illegible]

[illegible] child to be placed on the [illegible] Grace Lyall, 5 years old, [illegible] parents reside at No. 142 Ave[illegible]. She is the beautiful, brown[illegible] with the two cute pigtails [illegible] examined by Dr. Lorenz at [illegible] College on Thursday. The [illegible] been a pitiful cripple from [illegible] having been born with both [illegible] dislocated. Ever since she has [illegible] old enough to walk, she has [illegible] around on crutches, with both [illegible] bones pressing up against [illegible] of the hips.

[illegible] Lorenz held out hope to the [illegible] on Thursday, and they came [illegible] yesterday morning. They were [illegible] disappointed. It took the united [illegible] of three strong men pulling on [illegible] body and legs to bring the [illegible] into their natural positions. It [illegible] a herculean task, that the [illegible] and swayed and marked [illegible] skin of the unconscious in[illegible] with great purple lines; but [illegible] the strain began to tell, and [illegible] surgeon pronounced the work [illegible]

[illegible] Gracie was dressed in a pair of [illegible] cotton panties, and the [illegible] and the plaster of Paris cast [illegible] on. When it was all over a [illegible] observer would have wondered [illegible] girl could exercise her limbs. [illegible] the legs were pressed sideways [illegible] right angles from the body, [illegible] feet pointing downward. A [illegible] frog making the inward [illegible] would have about the same out[illegible]. The professor had a solution. "She may exercise by riding [illegible] and placing her feet on the [illegible] he said.

[illegible] end of six months or nine, [illegible] the bandages may be removed, [illegible] said, and then the legs may be straightened. When this is done she will be six inches taller than she was before.

Hardly less remarkable than the case of Grace Lyall was that of George Cann, 8 years old, whose father is a well-known local musician. This is the only boy yet operated on, and the oldest child during the professor's demonstrations here. It was also the only case that was not congenital dislocation of the hip. The boy met with an accident five years ago, and since that time has been suffering with tuberculosis of the thigh. Dr. Lorenz was obliged to use a knife to cut away the tendons that bound the leg, and after that the operation proceeded as in ordinary dislocation.

Lela West, aged 4½, whose parents live at No 123 North Broadway, was speedily disposed of, the deformity being the common dislocation of the hip.

The little girl who had the distinction of being the last of the great surgeon's subjects in this city was Gladys Wagner, who lives at No. 724 West Second street. She is 5 years old, and was born with both hips out of place. The first operation of the day was repeated, and the girl was pronounced cured of her deformity.

During the afternoon Dr. Lorenz enjoyed himself with the many friends he has made since his arrival, and last night he took the train for the East. After a short stop at the Grand Cañon, he will proceed to St. Louis, and from there he will return to Vienna.

It may be that besides by the crippled children he has made whole, the memory of Dr. Lorenz will be perpetuated in another way in Los Angeles. Before he left, he was asked if he would allow his name to be given to a local hospital for deformed children. He assented, and encouraged the idea. It is planned to have this a free institution for poor cripples who are susceptible to treatment. It is said that a wealthy resident of this city has already donated the site for such a hospital, and a sum of money besides. Those who are behind the proposition say that there is money enough in sight for founding such an institution. Dr. P. C. H. Pahl, who has offices in the Potomac Block, is authority for the statement.

HAD A CLOSE CALL.

Street Car Slid Against Southern Pacific Train—Passengers Escape Serious Injury—Asphaltum on the Track.

A peculiar accident occurred to a Boyle Heights car on the Los Angeles Electric Railway yesterday, at the S.P. Railroad crossing at First and Alameda streets. As the car approached the crossing the gate was lowered by the watchman, and the motorman applied the brakes, but the workmen in filling the space between the granite blocks where the new track has been laid, left some great dabs of asphaltum on the rails, and the car slid along like a toboggan, forced its way through the frail gate and rammed its nose into a passing passenger train.

The motorman, finding that the car did not respond to the air-brake, jumped from his car, the current being off and the brakes on, thus possibly saving his life. The car struck the engine, the front being crushed and it was thrown from the track. It was well filled with passengers, all of whom were badly frightened at their narrow escape, but none were actually hurt except a man named Arnold, who was jostled from his feet and had his back hurt by falling on the floor of the car.

WILL TEST THE LAW.

Socialists Decide They Will Deliver Orations in Parks Despite the Ordinances of the City.

The first arrest of what will probably be a series, and the first step on the part of certain Socialists to test the city ordinances which forbid the delivery of orations in the Sixth-street Park, occurred yesterday afternoon, when, after having been repeatedly warned, J. B. Osborne was arrested in that park for having violated the ordinance. The arrest was made by Patrolman Hill acting directly under orders from police headquarters.

Osborne is a blind man, and is said to have been preaching doctrines which were almost anarchistic. The police warned him that he was violating the law, but he defied them. Out of pity for his condition, the officers refrained from arresting him for several days, but as his utterances became more and more rabid, he was finally taken into custody. He submitted to arrest cheerfully, and it was stated by those about him that this was but the beginning of another crusade by the Socialists to play the martyr act, and an effort to test the ordinance. It is expected that the blind Socialist will return to the park today. If he does he will be arrested again.

"This is Gertrude. She lives near me. It sort of embarasses me to talk about Gertrude. But anyhow perhaps you notice how soft and white her hands are and what a nice complexion she's got. She says BORAX does it. The other fellows all like Gertrude, but I don't. Anyway I wouldn't say so if I did."

THIS IS IMPORTANT

Complexions are ruined most often by the soap which is left in the pores. You would probably feel hurt if you were told that your pores are full of soap. It is undoubtedly true however. The soap simply wont rinse out with plain water. Use BORAX in the water and notice the difference in the feeling of your face. Notice how long your hands feel clean. This is because the soap is rinsed out of the pores. To preserve the skin and complexion, to be thoroughly cleanly, and to keep soap out of the pores, one must use BORAX in the water for both cleansing and rinsing. Nothing else acts in the same way. Not too much. An even teaspoonful is enough.

Ask your druggist for "20 Mule Team Borax"

There are substitutes adulterated with sal soda which is very injurious

MISS JULIA BRITTON

A Young Society Lady of Augusta, Georgia.

1515 Estes Street,
Augusta, Ga., May 16, 1902.

I TAKE pleasure in joining the large number of testators who have been cured through the use of Wine of Cardui. It is certainly a very remarkable curative agent, and while it is pleasant to take and mild in action it is very strong and positive in curative ability. Since early womanhood I suffered from extreme nervousness and seemed unusually sensitive to climatic changes. A slight cold or too great heat would upset me and headache and general indisposition would result. My stomach was easily upset and I would frequently have heartburn, sour stomach, and the heavy feeling you experience when you have indigestion. I was also irregular and had severe monthly pains, all of which showed me that I was entirely out of harmony with health. I naturally desired a change and doctored for several months, hoping for better health. I was however disappointed to find that the medicine afforded me no relief. I noticed your ad in the street car and I bought a bottle of Wine of Cardui on my way home and great was my joy to find that within a few days it brought me great relief. My food seemed to digest without trouble, and the headache soon disappeared altogether. I kept using it until I had taken five bottles and felt that I had never invested any money in my life which brought such great returns. Within two months I was like a changed woman. My aches and pains disappeared as if by magic and new life and activity seemed to course through my veins. I began to enjoy out door life, long walks and exercise as never before.

It is indeed gratifying to experience such a remarkable change in body and mind which perfect health brings, and believing that your medicine is well worthy of full confidence and endorsement I am glad to give it both.

Julia Britton

Young women cannot too carefully guard the monthly function. Women as a rule look upon this great function of nature as a trouble instead of a blessing. They seldom consider that it relieves the body of poisonous wastes and that a suppressed or a scanty flow is invariably a forerunner of sickness. Because Wine of Cardui perfectly regulates the monthly function hundreds of thousands of women owe their lives to it. Wine of Cardui as a regulator of the monthly function not only purifies the blood but it relieves weak and nervous women of troubles which doctors not only did not cure but do not often diagnose correctly. In thousands of cases of so-called "debility," "nervousness" and "tired, worn out feeling" Wine of Cardui by regulating the menstrual flow, has proven the remedy that was needed. If your doctor is doing you no good, secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui and take it in your home. It will cure you but you will only be one woman among thousands with the same experience. Remember Wine of Cardui cured Miss Britton. Accept no other medicine as a substitute. Give Wine of Cardui a fair trial and health will be yours.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

Hospital Furnishings Needed.

The directors of the Christian Hospital at Hope and Pico streets have sent out letters to all the churches of the Christian denomination in the city, asking for contributions on Thanksgiving Day, to be used in refurnishing the hospital.

Thanksgiving Committee.

Mrs. Clelland talked before a meeting in Temperance Temple, yesterday afternoon, upon the subject of temperance teaching in the Sunday-school. The following committee was appointed to assist Mrs. Bertha Johnson in her Thanksgiving dinner at the Good Samaritan: Mrs. Ada R. Hand, Mrs. Laura T. Carter, Mrs. M. T. Boyd, Miss Budd, Miss Barnvather, Miss Clelland.

Car Fare Free.

It is announced that free transportation on the Hollywood line will be given all who wish to attend the opening of the new trolley line to Elysian Park today. The cars leave the corner of Fourth and Hill streets at regular intervals or can be taken at any point on the route to Echo Park road or Hollywood. Refreshments have been provided for visitors at Scott street and Echo Park road and at the terminal in Elysian Park.

Lost in Los Angeles.

George Boyd, aged 65 years, is lost somewhere in this city. His friends are making as thorough a search as possible for him, but they have not succeeded in locating him, and last night they asked the police to assist. Boyd is a stranger here and has been visiting E. G. Greening of No. 2506 East Second street. He left that place yesterday, and not being familiar with the streets, failed to return. He did not even know the number of his friend's house. A liberal reward will be paid for his return to the proper quarters.

Banquet Committee.

The committee which will make arrangements for the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce, February 21, 1903, has been appointed. It consists of A. B. Cass, Frank P. Flint, R. H. Howell, A. M. Edelman and Louis F. Vetter. The sub-committees are as follows: Hall and Menu, Louis F. Vetter; Speeches, Frank P. Flint; Music, R. H. Howell; Badges and Invitations, A. M. Edelman. The banquet will be held on February 21, instead of on Washington's birthday, as is customary, because the latter date falls on Sunday.

Blockade on Broadway.

At 5 o'clock last evening, when traffic was at its height the contractors at the new Mason Operahouse put a complete blockade on Broadway, extending all the way across from their place of business. A huge half of the cantilever proscenium arch, long enough to reach from sidewalk to sidewalk, and weighing about fifteen tons was stuck squarely across the street, effectually preventing the passage of even a bicycle. After nearly half an hour's tremendous exertions, however, horses and men succeeded in starting the great girder, and all went merrily.

Philolethea Anniversary.

A throng of invited guests attended the anniversary dance of the Philolethea Club at Kramer's last evening. The club was just two years old, and the celebration of its birthday proved one of the happiest functions of its career of successful events. The large hall was dressed with vari-colored flowers and crepe paper in becoming style. Over the heads of the dancers swung a huge canopy of paper, done in the club's colors, crimson and white. Each chandelier and incandescent bore a burden of floral beauty and fragrance. The programme was a unique contrivance in the form of a cupboard.

Thought it Was Suicide.

Rayner Roe went into a First-street barber shop yesterday and feeling that he was about to have an attack of epilepsy to which he is subject, he took a dose of medicine to ward it off, but was too late. His action was seen and when a moment later he fell to the floor in convulsions, those about him thought he had attempted to commit suicide. He was sent to the Receiving Hospital where the doctors diagnosed the case as strychnia poisoning and treated him accordingly, the treatment being heroic in many respects. When Roe came to his senses he told them he was an epileptic, but he did not know until later what had been done to him.

Orpheum in Denver.

When Manager Meyerfeld of the Orpheum circuit passed through Los Angeles yesterday he gave out the news that he had just been to Denver and had there purchased a large block on which he intends to erect the finest Vaudeville house in America. The investment amounts to half a million. The site for the new theater is on Welton street between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets almost opposite the Masonic Temple. The new theater will be most elegant in design and will seat 2200 people. Work on the house starts at once, and it is expected that the theater will be completed by next August. This will be the twelfth house operated by the Orpheum people.

Camino Real.

Interest in the road plan of El Camino Real, as illustrated of late by the special exhibit in the Chamber of Commerce, has been so great that it has been decided to extend the exhibit until Christmas. Today the exhibit will consist of sketches and many photographs outlining the "Royal Road" and the complete or partial journeys upon it. These journeys are illustrated by the grouping of the pictures of the missions contained within them, beginning with the group of San Diego, San Luis Rey and San Juan Capistrano, leading into Los Angeles from the south, and continuing on with San Gabriel and San Fernando, etc. A committee will be in attendance to explain maps and give other data on the subject.

MODERN vs. "HAS BEENS."

When the sailboat "hooks up" to the steamboat she learns that she's but a "has been."

"Has been" boats and "has been" tailors are in the same class.

The old-fashioned tailor is the fellow who buys enough goods at a time for one suit—and pays high prices because he buys little. His methods are wasteful. His styles are always the same. His business is without system.

But his customers help him to make up what he loses.

We carry a $30,000 stock of woolens alone, save money on the buying, get the best fabrics, our business is perfectly systematized, our styles are the up-to-date styles. You save money because we save it for you.

Suits $20 to $65.

RESULT ON GOVERNOR.

Canvass Indicates Only Slight Change.

Work of Commissioners Not Yet Ended.

Seventh Ward Expedition of "Corney" Pendleton and Stanton.

The canvass of the vote of Los Angeles county has progressed to such an extent that the official returns on Governor were given out last night by the Board of Election Commissioners. The footings are as follows:

Pardee	17,470
Lane	11,159
Brower	1,140
Pardee's plurality, entire county..	6,311
Pardee's plurality, L. A. City....	2,515
Pardee's plurality, outside city....	3,796

Separating the Los Angeles city from outside precincts, the vote stands:

	Pardee.	Lane.	Brower.
Los Angeles city.	9,230	7,315	721
Outside city	7,640	3,844	419
Totals	17,470	11,159	1140

WORK STILL INCOMPLETE.

While the vote on Governor is announced, the election commissioners have not made the final footings on any candidate. The clerks employed to record the vote in the books provided for that purpose still have before them the returns from about thirty precincts. They will not complete this work before tonight.

The returns from the 185 precincts in Los Angeles county have been checked for such errors as may exist, but the exact official returns cannot be given out until the vote for every candidate in every precinct has been recorded.

Tally sheets from some precincts are still held by the election commissioners awaiting the arrival of derelict election officers. When they make the technical corrections that are necessary, the returns will be entered in the proper places, and the canvass will be complete.

Unofficial footings of the official figures indicate, however, that the vote of the county will not differ materially from the very complete returns published in The Times the second morning after the election.

No changes of consequence have been made in the vote announced for any candidate, the work of the election commissioners having been more of a technical nature. Corrections of the mistakes of election officers, who failed in many cases to fill out blanks properly, constituted the principal duties of the commissioners. The task of recording the vote in the manner required by law was the most arduous of all, and will not be completed until this evening.

It probably will be late Monday evening before the final column of figures is added, and the name of the last candidate is reached. Then the total vote of the county on every candidate, and on every proposition submitted to the people, will be announced officially.

The canvass progressed with some delay yesterday, owing to the presence of election officers from many precincts, who appeared in response to subpoenas to make corrections on returns. Some errors were discovered in the remaining country precincts, and another batch of officers was summoned to appear before the board today.

The work of the Board of Election Commissioners will not end with the announcement of the official vote. Nearly two thousand demands for salaries, rent and other expenses must be audited, and there are many other details that must have attention before the Supervisors lay aside their temporary titles of commissioners.

They will not be sorry when the end comes. It has been the most difficult canvass that ever was conducted in Los Angeles county. Beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning and continuing until nearly midnight, there has not been an hour when a quorum of the Election Commissioners was not present. Some of them have been there all the time, hardly stopping for meals, and it is to their close attention to the matter that the canvass has been expedited.

The clerks employed in recording and checking the returns also have worked assiduously and their brains are surcharged with figures and tally marks and names of candidates.

When the work is completed the Election Commissioners will issue certificates of election to successful candidates who filed their expense accounts and otherwise complied with the law.

PLANS INCOMPLETE.

BANNER COMMITTEE NAMED.

A sub-committee of five members was appointed yesterday by Chairman Bradner W. Lee of the Republican County Executive Committee to make arrangements for receiving the prize Republican banner, which is to be brought to Los Angeles on the 29th inst. by Governor-elect Pardee and delegations from the Union League of San Francisco and from the Oakland Alliance. Those who compose the committee are Willis H. Booth, Thomas Hughes, Frank J. Thomas, W. P. Jeffries and James W. Long. Upon request of the members, Chairman Lee and Secretary Leeds will act with the sub-committee.

Full power to arrange the details of the event was delegated to the subcommittee, which will meet at noon next Monday to take up the work.

Plans for receiving the banner have not been formulated to any degree of certainty. Several propositions are under consideration, but there is difficulty in determining how best to celebrate the occasion.

Advices from the north are to the effect that a large crowd will come on the special train that is to leave San Francisco on the 28th inst., arriving in Los Angeles the following morning. Governor-elect Pardee, to whom has been assigned the mission of delivering the banner into the hands of Los Angeles county representatives, will be the principal passenger. With him will be probably 150 members of the Union League of San Francisco, in whose hands the banner has rested since the Presidential election of 1900. Fifty members of the famous Oakland Alliance also are expected, and ladies with the party probably will make a total of 250 northerners who are coming south to learn how Los Angeles won the day for the Republican party. A special rate of $15 for the round trip has been made for those who travel on the special train.

"CORNEY" AND "PHIL" IN SEVENTH WARD.

POLITICIANS VISIT BREWERIES AND MANY SALOONS.

Pendleton and Stanton Call at Resorts Frequented by Some of the Voters Who Aided in Their Election to the Legislature.

"Corney" Pendleton and P. A. Stanton made the round of the saloons in the Seventh Ward yesterday afternoon. Bartenders in several of the places visited by the pair said the politicians were "squaring up" election debts.

"Corney," whose election to the State Senate from the Thirty-eighth District was made possible by Democratic votes in the Seventh Ward, is deeply indebted for the support he received in that section of the city. Stanton also benefited in the same quarter, receiving substantial Democratic support in his candidacy for Assemblyman from the Seventy-first District.

In some parts of the Seventh Ward there is a saloon on every corner, and one in the middle of every block. There are also many lodging-houses, and the floating population is large.

It was in this ward that Pendleton and Stanton were charged with colonizing voters.

The chief clearinghouse for such voters is the saloon. If there's anything "doing" in the way of purchasing votes, it is done in saloons.

Was there anything "doing?"

Yesterday's trip of these two shining political lights would indicate that there was.

Saloon proprietors and bartenders virtually admitted that Pendleton and Stanton had other things in mind than the buying of drinks when they made their calls yesterday. But the saloon keepers in great measure are under the thumbs of the breweries, who helped in the Pendleton fight, and they couldn't go into details.

"Corney" and "Phil" started from the corner of First and Spring streets at 2:30 o'clock. The barbers' idol had just returned from San Francisco, where he had been investigating the prospects for election as president pro tem. of the Senate, and Stanton let his real estate business drop for the time being.

They made their first stop at the Mineral saloon, corner First and Los Angeles streets. They remained inside about ten minutes. Going east on the south side of First street, they turned into the doorway of a saloon half way to Los Angeles street, but, looking up at the number, they did not enter. They had struck the wrong place. Turning directly across the street, they went into the barroom at No. 121, over which is a lodging-house. Their stay in this place was about five minutes' duration.

The next call was made at the "200," corner First and Los Angeles streets, where they remained a long time. Upon emerging, they started east again, and at San Pedro street they entered into a discussion, "Corney" thinking they should turn onto the side street, while "Phil" waved his arms toward the east. Finally they proceeded a short distance south on San Pedro street, and entered a small plumbing shop.

Then they had a long walk east on First street to Vine, and entered Engert's saloon, just across the street from Wieland's brewery. They slipped out of a side door at this place, and went over to the brewery, where they remained a long time before resuming their tour, which, as yet, was but begun.

Their steps were steady, and their voices were clear at this point, indicating that their errand was something else besides accumulating drinks.

What was it?

"Yes, 'Corney' and Stanton were in here a few minutes ago," said the bartender in one of the saloons. "They said they were 'squaring up.'"

"Were they paying their election debts?" queried the reporter.

"Well, I guess that's what they were doing," was the reply, and with a knowing smile, that spoke volumes, the man behind the bar refused to answer further questions.

"Stanton and Pendleton just left here," said the bartender, at another saloon. "They are fine fellows. They always pay up without any question. The 'boys' treated them all right, and they treated the boys all right. They can't thank the Republicans for what they got, and I guess they know where to come when they want votes."

A man who is familiar with the methods of politicians in the Seventh Ward said the tour of the two legislators-elect was made for the purpose of settling accounts that had been run in their names at the various saloons during the campaign. It was said that many saloon-keepers were unwilling supporters of the Republican candidates, but that they were whipped into line by the breweries.

It was represented to the saloon-keepers that Pendleton secured the repeal of a law requiring saloons in the city of Los Angeles to pay the county license of $15 per month, although it is declared that Pendleton did not have a finger in this pie, and that he deserved no help from the saloon men on this score.

DAVIS WILL CONTEST.

EXPECTS TO GAIN BY RECOUNT.

"I shall ask for a recount of the votes cast for Senator in the Thirty-eighth Senatorial District," said Le Compte Davis yesterday, in speaking of his apparent defeat by "Corney" Pendleton.

"The returns show that Pendleton's plurality is but 165, and the change of but 83 votes in my favor would give the election to me. In the event of a contest all rejected ballots will be examined, and as there were several hundred such ballots in the district, it is likely that I may gain much from this source. There also is the possibility of error in other ballots, leading me to believe that I am justified in requesting a recount.

"The expense of a recount is not so great as many imagine. It means no more than the appointment of a committee from the Senate to conduct the count, and the pecuniary outlay will be very slight."

Campaign Opens Monday.

Two meetings will mark the opening of the Republican city campaign Monday evening, and during the following two weeks two or three meetings will be held every evening in different parts of the city. Byron L. Oliver will address the Second Ward meeting, which will be held Monday evening in Temperance Temple, corner Broadway and Temple street, and an Eighth Ward rally, to be held in Painters' Hall on Aliso street, will be addressed by Oscar Lawler. Representatives of the Municipal League will attend both meetings for the purpose of explaining the provisions of the proposed charter amendments, Maj. H. T. Lee being assigned to the Second Ward and Charles D. Willard to the Eighth Ward meeting.

Political Briefs.

Colored Republicans will meet this evening at Lincoln Hall, No. 130½ South Spring street, to organize for the city campaign.

Joseph Maier states that the brewers do not desire an increase of the number of saloon licenses in Los Angeles from 200 to 250. He says they are satisfied with the situation as it stands, and that no attempt will be made to induce the Council to swell the number.

BARD WON'T RESIGN.

Senator Spoils a Sensational Story from the North.

A rumor was wired down from San Francisco last evening that Senator Bard had sent his resignation to the Governor. A Times reporter immediately communicated by telephone with the Senator at his ranch home at Hueneme, and he unhesitatingly denied the assertion. "I have not the slightest intention of resigning my seat," said the Senator. Senator Bard has repeatedly given The Times this assurance. Certain political elements have been trying to frighten him into resigning since his severe illness in this city; but the Senator has declined to be frightened, and has emphatically declared his intention to be in Washington at the opening of Congress. He again repeated this announcement of his purpose last evening.

HIS MOTHER DOESN'T WANT HIM AROUND.

HIS FATHER RAN OFF AND GOT RID OF HIM.

He Has Been in Jail Most of the Time of Late, but Judge Conrey Sent Him to Whittier State School Yesterday.

His father doesn't want him around, and his mother doesn't want him, and nobody wants him, so a miserable little vagabond, who happened to be tagged with the name of Jesse Garner, was sent over the road to Whittier yesterday.

JESSE GARNER.

As far as the boy is concerned, he is glad of it. Nothing good ever happened to him, anyhow, and this will save him the trouble of changing jails so often.

He is usually in jail, anyhow. Not that he has ever done anything particular, but he has no home nor any one to look out for him. The police gather him in for a vagrant and he has to do time in the City Jail. When they let him out, he tries to creep out of the way like a stray cat. Then a constable picks him up in the country districts and he does time in the County Jail for a variety. So runs his biography.

He is only a miserable shivering little tyke of 15. His clothes are rags and his face is thin and peaked. His skin, which ought to be rosy and all freckled like a turkey egg, is white and wan with the curious pallor which comes from being locked up too long in jails.

His face is wistful and pathetic, yet it is a face that bears the cruel stamp of a cynical knowledge out of all proportion to the years. He "knows the worst too young."

Yesterday, he was brought up before Judge Conrey for examination as an incorrigible. He told the judge his story with the simple indifference of one who has stopped caring.

His father lives in Arizona. Quite awhile ago, his father and his mother ceased to live together. He went to live with his father. One day the father left him to go out and look for work, and never came back. The boy was too much bother.

He made a pitiful journey into California to look for his mother. He thought she was somewhere here.

"How did you get here?" asked the judge, kindly.

"Rode the brakebeams," said the child, listlessly. He was plainly not much interested in the affair. He didn't care what they did with him.

When he got out in Los Angeles, he hunted and hunted for his mother, but it was such a big place that he couldn't find her.

He drifted about the streets and slept anywhere or nowhere. Finally, he got into the Newsboys' Home, after he had been arrested a few times.

Some woman became interested in his case, and took him home, but it was too late. The boy was done for. The bitterness had come into his heart, and the curse of the Wander Lust, which makes men wander and wander and wander for always over the face of the earth, had eaten into his soul. He had become a cold-blooded skeptical little Ishmaelite. He stayed at the lady's home for awhile, and then ran away. Then he got arrested again. And after all, a jail, when you get used to it, is about as satisfactory as any place, he judged.

There was nothing to do for the court, but to send the boy to Whittier, and the boy—oh, well, it was all right. After all, there is nothing in life, but three meals a day if you are lucky, and considerably fewer if you are not—so he thought it was all right. He had heard that Whittier meals are pretty good.

WILSHIRE DIVORCE CASE COMES UP TODAY.

PROMINENT AND WEALTHY YOUNG PEOPLE UNHAPPY.

Desertion the Technical Charge When Parties Live Apart in the Same Mansion—Husband from Ohio, and Wife Former Kentucky Belle.

Mrs. Nathaniel F. Wilshire has sued her husband for divorce on the grounds of desertion. The case will be tried today before Judge Allen in the Superior Court.

There will be no contest, and the irksome matrimonial bonds will doubtless be severed quietly and expeditiously. The charge of desertion is a technical one, as Mr. and Mrs. Wilshire are both living in the same house, the beautiful home at No. 2722 South Hoover street. Both man and wife possess ample independent means, and there will be no prayer for alimony.

The young couple have occupied a prominent position in local circles of wealth and fashion. They came from the East several years ago, Wilshire being the son of a wealthy Cincinnati family, and his wife, formerly Miss McQueen, a reigning Kentucky belle.

"Nat" Wilshire, as he is commonly called, is very widely known in local clubdom. He is an expert golf player and an enthusiastic devotee of other popular pastimes of the genteel sporting life. Mrs. Wilshire is young, fair and vivacious, and has numberless friends hereabouts.

Neither of the principals will discuss the suit at all. It appears to be a mutual agreement to disagree on account of general incompatibility.

IS HE WIFE-BEATER?

Monroe Markham, Formerly of This City, Arrested in San Francisco—Wife Says He Beat Her.

Monroe Markham, up to a few months ago a resident of Los Angeles, was arraigned in the Police Court at San Francisco Thursday on a battery charge preferred by his wife. Mrs. Markham alleges that her husband has been in the habit of beating her, and has threatened her life on several occasions. When the case came up for trial yesterday she showed her determination of pressing the charges, as her case was represented by counsel, in addition to the prosecuting attorney. A suit for divorce is inevitable.

Mrs. Markham was well known in Los Angeles. She married Markham four years ago, and owned at that time the Colonade and the Aldine hotels on South Hill street. Besides this she had a flourishing millinery business.

According to her story, Markham was a sponge and a coward. In an interview given to a San Francisco paper she had substantially the following to say: She married Monroe Markham four years ago in Los Angeles, when he was virtually a pauper, and she was possessed of a comfortable fortune. Shortly after the marriage she gave up the Colonade and the Aldine to make a home for her husband. It took him but a short time to draw all of her ready money, and then she was left without any means to pay the household expenses. Three months before their baby was born, Markham struck her across the face with his fist because she would not supply him with the money that she had set aside for taxes.

"Mr. Markham," she said, "had been a commercial traveler, but after our marriage he did nothing. I furnished the home, bought his clothes, paid his initiation fee in the Masonic lodge, paid for the uniform he bought, and every expense of our household. He was continually asking me for money, and I gave him $5, $10, or whatever I had to spare, and whenever he expressed a desire to have anything I told him to buy it and send me the bill."

They went to San Francisco last August, where, she claims, she set up their household, and continued to pay all bills. Then, according to her allegation, he struck her frequently, threatened her life, and abused her twelve-year-old boy. All she asked was a little kindness, but nothing ever pleased him. Then he wanted to buy some stock in the Pacific Wireworks Company, so that he might get the job of manager, and Mrs. Markham gave him the money. He bought the stock, and had it written in his name.

The last "straw" was a coal-oil heater which he demanded should be bought to replace a coal stove. He grumbled over this, says Mrs. Markham, and wouldn't show the servant how to work it. Mrs. Markham reproved him for his ill temper, and he struck her in the face. Then she swore out a complaint, charging him with battery. When arrested he couldn't furnish bail, and had to languish in prison, for Mrs. Markham is determined that he shall be punished. It is said taht the pathway of the couple was not strewn with roses when they lived here, and that their friends were constantly expecting an outbreak.

Markham secured his release from custody on furnishing bond and after being made to promise that he would not attempt to visit his home pending a settlement of the proceedings. Mrs. Markham continues to occupy the family residence in San Francisco with her son.

ESPEE WORKED BY GRAFTERS.

Bogus Workmen Secure Free Rides East.

Mock Blanket Bundles Pass Them Along.

Ingenious Scheme for Outwitting Employment Agencies and the Railroad, Too.

The Southern Pacific Railroad detectives and the Los Angeles and San Francisco employment agencies are camping on the trail of a syndicate of grafters, that can give the ticket scalpers three flushes in the deck, and beat them with a club. So far as the returns have come in, the Southern Pacific has furnished gratis transportation to the East for about 500 people, and the end is not yet.

For some months the Espee has vainly endeavored to get the quota of men necessary to fill its gangs of bridge carpenters, pile-driver men, steel layers and construction gangs, but without avail. The big appropriation of $3,000,000 for new work has laid almost idle, because labor could not be secured.

As a special inducement, the employment agencies were given carte blanche in the matter of transportation as far East as Ogden, and men were especially hard to get for Ogden and Nevada at first, but presently they began to ship, and the hearts of the employers were made glad—momentarily.

In spite of the fact that men were shipped, and a crowd was always reported "on the way," nobody arrived. Occasionally a man would come, but notwithstanding his cordial reception he would usually be missed the following morning, apparently not being able to stand the unwonted kindness. The result was that a glimmering of the truth began to dawn in the minds of the railroad officers, and the word was passed down the line: "Don't ship anybody to Carlin, Wadsworth, Reno, Salt Lake or Ogden that hasn't a roll of bedding."

It was cheerfully assumed by the confiding railroad men that if a man carried a roll of bedding, he must be subject to periodical spells of industry.

It was feared there would be a falling-off in shipments after this order, but the railroad employers consoled themselves with the reflection that such men as they did get would be the real thing. Strange as it may seem, however, nothing of the kind occurred, and the usual number of men appeared, only they had nice new rolls of heavy bedding.

The impression at once prevailed at the shipping points that at last the labor market had loosened, and now bona fide workmen were going to the front, and it was with much indignation that the shippers received the intelligence that still no laborers were arriving. The men were passing Truckee all right, there was no other place for them to get off, and the employment agencies gloomily came to the conclusion that the men were either being kidnaped en route, or else the foremen at the other end were lying.

They said so.

There was a short period of silence and then came an order to all the gate inspectors of the Southern Pacific to examine the "rolls" of every man who presented himself with bedding and Southern Pacific passes—then the clammy, melancholy, truth came to light. The rolls consisted merely of a cheap—very cheap—cotton quilt wrapped around a wad of worthless papers and rubbish; the whole neatly tied into a roll with a rope. One package opened yesterday at the Arcade Depot had inside the quilt a choice assortment of odd sizes of old shoes and rubbers evidently picked from the city dumps—only these and nothing more.

Now all "bedding" has to pass muster and shipments are not so numerous. The men discovered with the bogus bundles were questioned as to twhere they got them and all said they were sold to them by a man who disclosed to them that method of getting cheap transportation as far as Ogden. The "rolls" were sold for the uniform price of $1 each, the commision to the employment agencies was about $3, and thus for $4 a man could secure transportation for which he must otherwise have paid $35.

On the sales of "rolls" the speculators, who are suspected of being proprietors of shoddy clothing stores, have made a very neat sum, for the outside quilt was harly more than two layers of cheesecloth; and besides in many cases the vendors received fees for disclosing the cheap method of inducing the railroad to bunco itself.

OUT OF THE ABYSS.

A threatened blocade of cars on Broadway was obviated yesterday afternoon in a novel and effective manner. Near the corner of Second street a large truck, heavily loaded with iron pipe, suddenly tilted into one of the yawning chasms of the Broadway pavement—it would hardly be possible to avoid one or another—and stuck fast, resisting all efforts of the powerful team to dislodge it. The tongue of the truck protruded across the northbound track. The first car to be halted was No. 157 of the Grand-avenue line. A rope was made fast to the wagon-tongue and then to the car, and with a reversed current the car quickly jerked the freighter from the abyss and sent the truckmen on their way rejoicing.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

At a meeting of the High School Congress yesterday the following officers were elected: President, John Haas; vice-president Carrie McConnell; secretary, Bessie Price; teasurer, Fred Hodgson. Steps were taken toward joining the Oratorical League, now being formed among the preparatory schools of Southern California.

GOOD LOCATIONS.

The lot, 98x170 feet, northwest corner Grand avenue and Fifth street, has been purchased of W. D. Stephens by W. B. Stewart, consideration named, $15,000. Mrs. D. B. Rawson buys of Henry Jackins, through Willard & Buck, 160x100 feet, on the northeast corner of Potter Park and Moore street, unimproved; consideration named, $13,000; and will improve with flats.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE—OFFICIAL DOINGS.

Yesterday the Board of Public Works decided to request the City Attorney to draft an ordinance restricting the use of public streets for yard purposes by railway companies.

During October the circulation of the Public Library exceeded that of any previous month in its history.

Robert E. Price, who is alleged to have kidnaped his wife, came up before Judge Shaw yesterday on divorce proceedings.

Musselman Company, advertising agents, have sued the Sunset Telephone Company for damages, because of alleged inefficient service.

A. M. Austin, a real estate agent, has sued the Norris & Rowe show for damages.

Bert Maxwell, charged with a misdemeanor in having enticed away the wife of Anton Cherney of Chicago, was yestreday acquitted in the Police Court.

AT THE CITY HALL.

LIBERAL PROVISIONS OF AN OLD ORDINANCE.

CITY FATHERS GAVE SOUTHERN PACIFIC THE EARTH.

Now That the Railway Company Wishes to Build a Fence of Cars About it Citizens Strenuously Object—How Mr. Moore Weathered the Storm.

Some remarkable ordinances were passed by early City Councils. Few have come to light, however, more liberal in their provisions than one that figured in a hearing before the Board of Public Works yesterday. It was passed in the days when the Southern Pacific Railway Company "owned the whole works." A few streets, more or less, are bequeathed to the company quite as a matter of course.

And the sins of the fathers have been visited upon the children even unto the third and fourth generation. In 1873 the Southern Pacific Company wanted a right of way into the city. An ordinance was passed on July 26 of that year giving all of San Fernando street and Mission road and that portion of Alameda street "lying between the depot of the Los Angeles and San Pedro road" (whatever that may mean) to the Kentucky corporation.

The Council decreed that these streets "be and the same are hereby set apart from the public highways of the city of Los Angeles to the unreserved and unrestricted use of the Southern Pacific Railway Company."

During the recent rain Alfred Moore was going home one evening when he found his way blocked at Alhambra avenue (formerly Mission road), by a long train of freight cars. He was only a few blocks from home, but there was no way around the train. For awhile he sat in the pelting rain thinking that the train would move on. When the cold water had drizzled down his back until he was thoroughly soaked, he tried argument on the engineer. That haughty individual consigned him to the torrid hereafter, and thereby greatly damaged the feelings of Mr. Moore.

About the time that he had decided to abandon his horse and walk home, the train pulled up sufficiently to allow him to cross, But Mr. Moore did not appreciate the treatment he had received, and he applied to the Council for legislation that would prevent a repetition of that hour and a half wait in the rain.

In his communication, Moore recited that the company has laid three tracks on that portion of Alhambra avenue, and is using one for yard purposes. Frequently cars stand on the track flanking the cross roads in such a manner that it is impossible to see whether a train is approaching on the main tracks. This condition is regarded as very dangerous to those driving across the avenue.

There is a doubt whether the former Council had the right to grant any such sweeping privileges to the railroad company as are contemplated by the ordinance, and the matter is now in court. For the further relief of the residents the board yesterday recommended that the Council instruct the City Attorney to draft a special ordinance restricting the use of streets for yard purposes.

J. T. Saunders of the street department appeared before the board yesterday and showed that the city has exerted such control over the street since the grant as to change the name and establish the grade of sidewalks. These facts are cited to prove that the city has jurisdiction over the streets despite the remarkable ordinance passed in 1873.

Banner Book Month.

All previous records were "smashed to smithereens" by the Public Library last month. The circulation of books was larger than ever before in the city's history. There were 78,983 books in circulation, as compared with 75,330 last May, the largest previous circulation. Such a circulation as this places the local library alongside those of the largest cities in the land. Of the total circulation, 57,180 represents home use, and 21,803 use in the library reading-rooms. The total membership in the library is now 22,335. The total number of books in the library is 80,611.

Promotions Confirmed.

Yesterday morning the Fire Commission confirmed the promotion of Stephen Queirolo as captain of Engine Co. No. 9, and J. G. Todd as lieutenant of Hose Co. No. 4.

Dangerous Viaduct.

Fred L. Scofield has petitioned the Council to compel the Pacific Electric Company to place lights at either end of the Daly-street viaduct across Alhambra avenue. It is said that five horses have been seriously injured in the last few weeks by being driven upon the open approaches of the viaduct.

Dairyman in Trouble.

It is alleged by Milk Inspector Hood that Antone Falcinelli of the Purity Dairy has been peddling too much pure water with his milk, and a complaint has been secured for his arrest. Tests of milk from Falcinelli's wagon showed about 15 per cent. too much water. Milk tests show that an excellent grade of the lacteal fluid is being sold, only one or two dairies venturing to disregard the requirements.

It is announced that the next annual meeting of the Good Roads Association will be held in St. Louis April 26 to 30, 1903. It is expected that between 5000 and 10,000 delegates will be in attendance, with delegates from at least fifteen foreign countries.

A YOUNG woman, well known in Southern California, has been traveling among the Caucasian Mountains. She tells of some of her intensely interesting experiences in an article which will appear in The Times Magazine the coming Sunday.

AT THE COURT HOUSE

KIDNAPED HIS WIFE; YES, HIS OWN WIFE.

HE CARRIED HER AWAY TO GEORGIA BY FORCE.

Desperate Firm of Advertising Printers Brings Damage Suit Against Sunset Telephone Company for Alleged Inefficient Service—Jacques Franc Tells of Running a Washing Machine.

The fame of the bold young Lochinvar was shoved back among the dusty broken statuary yesterday by a young Georgia lawyer named Price, who came before Judge Shaw on divorce proceedings. Price kidnaped his own wife.

The trouble was that Mrs. Price wanted to live in California, while Price insisted on living in Georgia.

Price simply picked the fair lady up, and despite her protests and against her vigorous efforts carried her away to Georgia.

It was a curious combination of circumstances. It came out in an application of the wife for alimony pending her suit for divorce.

Her name is Adina E. Price. She was married a few years ago to Robert E. Price of Georgia. They didn't get along very well.

Finally she went to visit her parents in Louisiana and neglected to come back.

When her people moved out to California and settled in Pomona, she came with them instead of going back to her husband.

One day the door bell rang, and there stood the deserted Price. He had come across the continent for her.

He told her that he had a job in a real estate office in Los Angeles. So one day she went into town with him and they made up. She said she would go back to live with him providing that they should live in this State.

One day they went for a little train ride together. She claims that he told her that they were going out to one of the suburban towns. She took notice finally that they seemed a long time getting there, and he admitted then that they were on the way back to Georgia, where he was going to run for the State Legislature. She didn't have any money, so she couldn't get off the train.

Price, at her request, accommodatingly wrote back to his wife's mother. He said he was taking her back home to Georgia, and added cheerfully, that she was "cutting up some."

They lived with his family for a while in Georgia, and the wife finally came back to California on money furnished by her husband's father.

She wants a divorce from him on the ground of non-support.

Judge Shaw could not find it in his heart to make an order yesterday, however, compelling her husband to furnish the money for the coming divorce suit.

HELLO GIRLS' VICTIM.

SUED TELEPHONE COMPANY.

"Line is busy now," "Out of order," "Don't reply."

That made Musselman Company, a firm of advertising printers, so angry that they filed a suit for damages against the Sunset Telephone Company yesterday.

They might have known that some day a betrodden worm on the other end of one of these eternally busy lines would turn. This one has come bellowing (maybe you never heard of a bellowing worm) for vengeance against the whole tribe of "hello girls."

Day before yesterday the Musselman Company put a big advertisement in The Times offering 5 cents to anybody who could manage to call them up by telephone. They had evidently come to consider it quite a feat.

The sequel came yesterday when a suit for damages for alleged inefficient service was brought against the 'phone company.

The plaintiff claims that, although it was paying $6.50 a month for the service, its line was reported "out of order" and "taken out," and "no reply," and that the company lost considerable business. What seems to be a point of soreness is that they had an attendant hired to answer telephone calls.

It is alleged as part of the claim for damages that plaintiff had to pay $27.50 for advertising the offer of 5 cents to any one who could get the number; that the plaintiff had to pay 5 cents each to thirty-two people who successfully performed the feat; that it cost 64 cents postage to pay them off; $1.62 for stationery and a stenographer's services in sending the money, and $5 for the services of a clerk to answer the 'phone.

The plaintiff throws in a gratuitous statement at the end of the suit that an agent of the telephone company called immediately after the appearance of the advertisement, and that his promises of better service has been kept. Nevertheless the plaintiff thirsts for damages.

The amount asked for is $1536.36.

ESTHETIC FRANC.

RAN WASHING MACHINE.

Jacques Franc, the esthetic young Socialist, fired a shot or two in his own defense in his lawsuit yesterday. The gun kicked. Before he got through Franc must have wondered which side his witnesses were trying to testify for, anyhow.

A sorrowful looking man named J. B. Wagner went to the stand to give Franc a glowing character sketch. When they got him on cross-examination, the witness had to confess that he had heard people say that Franc had acted dishonorably with the last man who worked his ranch for him; that he had heard his actions in the present case called into question; that he had heard of his having been unfair in his dealings with another man who worked in the arroyo for him. When they asked him if he hadn't heard about Franc's escapade with the wife of another man who went away with him and then mysteriously disappeared, Wagner suffered a lapse of memory.

Franc, as one of the last licks in the case, gave some testimony. To his evident horror, he had to tell about how he was running a washing machine the first time he ever saw Reese, the defendant in the case. But he found a way to put it in a very polite and dainty manner. He said he was "officiating at the washer."

They got to firing around neighbors' idle talk in the case until it got positively funny at last. One of the lawyers entered an objection to one of the questions on the ground that it was purely hearsay, but Judge Trask waved him gleefully aside.

"We are up in a balloon in the very realm of hearsay now," he said. But he added: "If attorneys understood how courts look at this sort of testimony (character witnesses,) I think they would not waste a great deal of time over it."

CIRCUS ELEPHANT

SCARED THE HORSE.

The circus elephant and the "monks" in the cage passing by have been responsible for a damage suit filed in the Township Justice Court yesterday against Norris & Rowe, the proprietors of the trained animal show.

The plaintiff in the suit is a real estate agent named A. M. Austin. He alleges that he had a $200 horse hitched in front of his office at No. 110 South Broadway and it became scared when the parade passed by. It is a dog and pony show primarily, but in the procession there were monkeys and camels and elephants and lions.

The horse began to plunge, and, so plaintiff alleges, threw itself against the curb and hurt its shoulder. For the injury to the shoulder of his $200 horse Austin wants $275 damages.

COURT NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

HIGGINS IS FREE. Jackson Higgins, the old-timer who took a pot shot at City Marshal Willet of Monrovia because he tried to turn off his irrigating ditch water, was released yesterday from jail. The trouble over the water rights had been peacefully adjusted, so it is to be assumed that the lives of the Monrovia constabulary are safe for the present. At the time of his examination, Higgins's lawyer contended that it couldn't be possible that Higgins was actually shooting at the marshal, because if he had, the marshal would not be here to tell about it.

HANSLER'S EXAMINATION. John Hansler, who shot his wife near El Monte and then tried to blow his own head off, will be examined for murder Tuesday, the 25th. Hansler is said to have been playing 'possum over in the jail. He was supposed to have shot half his face away, and has been coddled and pampered in consequence. The other day Jailer Murphy discovered that there is nothing particular the matter with him.

FOR MALICIOUS PROSECUTION. Somebody has joggled the old Williams row at Long Beach and got it started again. John Williams has sued T. W. Williams for $10,440 for alleged malicious imprisonment. Williams, T. W., is an officer, and Williams, John, is the man who had defended himself and got free when the lawyers couldn't get him loose.

ROGERS' FEE. Earl Rogers, who says he is meekly trying to take a fee he couldn't collect out in trade, was sued yesterday by Mrs. Julia Covarrubias. She wants to recover from Rogers possession of the horse, "Steve White," which is valued at $400. She not only wants Steve White, but $100 damages. Rogers says please, he would like to have that little fee they have overlooked, and they can have "Steve White."

THREATENED HIS WIFE. Mercedes de Yeasa was divorced from J. E. de Yeasa in Judge Allen's court yesterday on the ground of extreme cruelty. Her husband used cuss words at her and poked a revolver in her face.

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

BERT MAXWELL SET FREE BY A JURY.

ESCAPADE WITH ANNIE CHERNEY WAS NO CRIME.

The Barkeeper Shook Hands With the Jury—Mistake of Two Men Who Tried to Run a Bluff on the Detectives.

Bert Maxwell, charged with a misdemeanor in having enticed Annie Cherney, wife of Anton Cherney of Chicago, to come to this city and live with him as his wife, was yesterday acquitted by a jury in Justice Austin's court.

The facts developed in the trial are these: Maxwell was living in Chicago as a member of Mr. Cherney's household, both men being bartenders. In January last Maxwell came to California and accepted a position as a gin-mixer at Avalon. In March Mrs. Cherney convinced her big-hearted husband that she needed travel, and he sent her off on a visit to Catalina, that she might recuperate her "shattered" health. Whether the big fellow implicitly trusted his friend, Maxwell, or failed to connect Catalina with California does not appear, but be that as it may, Mrs. Cherney, who is a fascinating creature, appeared at Catalina, restored her shattered health in the company of her husband's friend, and in May returned again to her home in Chicago, Maxwell furnishing her the money to go.

There must have been some unpleasantness concerning this outing, for in June Mrs. Maxwell left her home without stating her destination, and in due time landed in Los Angeles, Maxwell having removed here and gone into the service of the Van Nuys Hotel as bartender.

When Cherney came here in search of his wife he located her at a house on Eleventh street, where she was living as the wife of Maxwell. After sensational scenes in the Police Court, Mrs. Cherney consented to return with her husband, she having been convicted of adultery, and sentence was suspended during her good behavior. In Maxwell's trial the deposition of Cherney was used against him.

Yesterday Maxwell was placed on the stand and he denied every allegation of the prosecution, until he came to the question:

"Did you occupy the same bed?"

He hesitated for some seconds and then very quietly said:

"Yes."

T. G. Gray was put on the stand by Maxwell's attorney for the purpose of introducing a letter, which he had received from Mrs. Cherney written while she was going back East with her husband, a fortnight ago.

Gray was climbing all over himself and the witness chair in his anxiety to answer Attorney Allender's questions. He smiled like a split pumpkin, fairly gushed at the jury and sung out his triumphant monosyllables in a manner that caused Justice Austin to tell him that he was entirely too previous and wanted to talk too much. Then his demeanor changed to that of injured innocence and he looked like a whipped kid.

The letter, nor nothing concerning it, would be admitted, but the reporter got to see it. It abounded in loving and affectionate references to "Dear Bert," and in no end of chilling ones to "that man" with whom she was traveling to Chicago, and she referred to herself as a "bunch of ice."

Allender bordered closely upon free-love doctrines in his argument to the jury, but when Attorney Chambers emphasized it, Allender squealed.

The jury, however, was mightily impressed with that same argument, for it only required ten minutes for them to agree and fill out their verdict for presentation to the court, although Justice Austin's instructions were clearly in favor of conviction.

As the jurymen filed out Maxwell, like a persecuted hero, shook hands with each one.

Bad Place to Run a Bluff.

When Jim King and John Nolan were drunk on Thursday evening they waltzed into the Police Station and bearded the lions in the detectives' office.

They went in to clear up a mystery, and they were not backward about expressing themselves. They wanted to know why a certain prisoner was being held in jail, and gave Capt. Bradish and his cohorts to understand that they knew a thing or two. It all went very well until, flushed with the meekness in which their strictures of the department were received, they felt emboldened to cut loose with too much billingsgate, when, much to their mortification, they were seized and confined in the City Jail as drunks.

They came up before Justice Morgan yesterday, when King was given five days, and Irwin, who had been the more offensive, was handed down seven days.

Now they'll be good.

Police Dots.

Louis Collier and M. E. Collier were each fined $10 or ten days in the City Jail, and O. W. Gereke, G. W. Buckner and W. B. Logan got exactly half as much. These are the parties who engaged in a saloon fight at Sixth and Broadway on Thursday night.

Clarence Howard, the messenger boy, was arraigned on two charges of obtaining money on false pretenses by the issuance of fake bills, supposed to come from the office of the District Messenger Service. His hearing was postponed until this afternoon.

Charles Pierce, who cinched the satchel of W. H. Childers, was given 100 days in the City Jail.

A suspicious vag named F. Holland was given a twenty-day sentence yesterday.

Joaquin Murietta was sentenced to sixty days on the chain gang for petty larceny.

Tunbridge Wells (Eng.) provided on the opening day of the present century the first municipal telephone service in that country, and now has decided to sell its system to the National Telephone Company. This decision gives a great shock to the agitators of schemes for breaking the control of the company through municipal competition.

MEN'S DISEASES.

Sixteen years of success and constant growth of practice is certainly practical demonstration that argues the merit of my work. Is there the slightest probability that if unable to back up all my claims I would have won and retained the foremost place among specialists treating men's ailments? Could I fail to cure and yet succeed as I have? My practice is the largest because I invariably fulfill my promises.

Weakness. I not only cure "weakness" promptly, but I employ the only treatment that can possibly cure this disorder permanently. It is a system of local treatment entirely original with me, and is employed by no physician other than myself. This may seem a broad assertion, but it is just as substantial as it is broad. So-called "weakness" is but a symptom of local inflammation or congestion, and a radical cure is merely a matter of restoring normal conditions throughout the organic system and this I accomplish thoroughly and with absolute certainty.

Contracted Disorders. In the treatment of contracted disorders I offer a service such as no other physician can render. The remedies I employ have a thorough and positive action in cleansing the membranes of all infection and subduing all inflammation. My manner of application insures absolute thoroughness, and removes every possibility of a relapse or a chronic stage. My cures are not only thorough, but are accomplished in the briefest time possible.

DR. O. C. JOSLEN, THE LEADING SPECIALIST.

Reflex Ailments. Often the condition appearing to be the chief disorder is only a reflex ailment resulting from some other disease. Weakness sometimes comes from varicocele or stricture; skin and bone diseases result from blood poison taint, and physical and mental decline follow long-standing functional disorder. My long experience in treating men enables me to determine the exact conditions that exist and to treat accordingly, thus removing every damaging cause and its effects.

Varicocele. Under my treatment the most aggravated cases of varicocele are cured in a few days' time. There is no pain, and it is seldom necessary that the patient be detained from his occupation. Normal circulation is at once restored throughout all the organs and the natural process of waste and repair are again established. If you are afflicted with varicocele, consult me at once. Delays can but bring aggravated conditions and serious complications that will impair vital functions and involve the general health.

CONSULTATION AND ADVICE FREE.

I want those who stand in need of such service as I render to come to my office for a personal interview, in order that I may explain to them the nature of their troubles and the methods I employ in treating like cases. Consultation is free and confidential, and you place yourself under no obligations whatever by coming to talk with me about your case.

My colored chart of the male anatomy will prove instructive to those who cannot call for consultation. It will be mailed, free, sealed, and under plain wrapper.

MILLION AND HALF DOLLAR OIL DEAL.

Western Union Gives Option on Valuable Producing Property to Pacific Oil and Transportation Company.

NEGOTIATIONS of significance to the oil industry in this State are pending, a deal of great magnitude having been entered into by the stockholders of the Western Union Oil Company of this city.

This deal which is probably the most important trade in oil in California since the sale of the Petroleum Development Company's Kern River property to the Santa Fé Railway several months ago, is for the transfer of the entire holdings of the Western Union to the Pacific Oil and Transportation Company of San Francisco. The capital involved is in the neighborhood of $1,500,000.

Details of the transaction were made public yesterday by J. S. Slauson, president of the Western Union Oil Company, who announced that an option has been given William Matson of the Pacific Oil and Transportation Company to purchase 9000 shares of the entire capitalization, amounting to [illegible] shares. This option was given by eight of the nine principal stockholders of the Western Union Oil Company, including J. S. Slauson, H. Jevne, I. W. Hellman, J. D. Bicknell, W. H. Perry, A. H. McKay, H. J. Woollacott and Thomas Hughes, who pooled their stock, granting an option until April 1, 1903, the price agreed upon being $150 a share. The only large stockholder not in the pool is J. D. Hooker, who preferred to retain his interest in the company.

In addition to the stock of the Western Union on which such option was given, a similar option was granted the same interests on the capital stock of the Los Flores Land and Oil Company, practically owned by the same parties. The property of this company adjoins that of the Western Union, and the consideration named is $175,000.

The holdings of the Western Union Oil Company consist of the principal oil-producing territory of the Santa Maria oil field in Santa Barbara county, eight producing wells, a large production of oil, a plant well equipped, and many valuable contracts. The company was organized in this city over two years ago, and is the pioneer of the Santa Maria, or Western Union oil district. Considerable capital has been expended in development, and its wells are now producing from [illegible] to 600 barrels a day, sufficient to fill all present contracts, but they are capable of turning out nearly 2000 barrels daily. The oil is of an excellent grade, being a higher gravity and better product than that of the Kern River district. One of the chief advantages of the field is its close proximity to the ocean, a four-inch pipe line now connecting the wells with tidewater. Contracts were recently let by the company for eight more wells, three of these are about completed.

Several months ago the Pacific Oil and Transportation Company absorbed the Alcatraz Oil Refining Company, taking over the asphaltum mine at [illegible] and the large oil refinery at [illegible] Landing. A contract was thereafter entered into with the [illegible] Union Oil Company for all [illegible] that it could supply. A four-inch pipe line was run from Alcatraz [illegible] to the oil wells, and other important improvements made. Some of the oil is now being treated at the refinery, but a greater portion of it is shipped by water to outside markets.

The corporation, which includes in its directorate such well-known capitalists as J. A. Bock, W. B. Crocker, W. G. Irwin, William Maston and George I. Cameron, controls a line of steamers, running between this coast, Hawaiian Islands and the Orient, and already has large contracts with sugar planters of the islands. It is branching out, and now that there is prospect that the high tariff of crude oil imported into Mexico will be modified, the company will probably seek to enter that market, if the pending deal is consummated.

It is behind the deal and with the control of the Western Union property the Pacific Oil and Transportation Company would be in a position to supply almost any contract that might be offered on the Coast. Besides being able to reach the San Francisco producers on a footing to compete with the Standard, the possibilities in other markets are almost unlimited.

Stockholders who have pooled their holdings are confident that the deal will be consummated, and declare that it is the intention of the purchaser to more than double the present output. Only a corner of the territory has been developed, and indications are that a field in many respects as important as Kern River, will be opened up in Santa Barbara county.

NO OIL IN CAMELBACK.

The Camelback Oil Company operating in the Camelback district, near Phoenix, Ariz., has not yet been able to find the liquid fuel, but instead is reported to have made a gold strike. For several days the drill pounded in a ledge of white quartz, and an assay of the pulverized ore brought to the surface by the sand pump shows that it carries $1.25 in gold to the ton.

This company has suspended operations on the well owing to a lack of funds. But a committee has been appointed to make another raise.

MYSTERY OF CORPSE BELIEVED SOLVED.

AUGUST SCHULT OF LOS ANGELES PROBABLY MURDERED.

Last Seen in San Pedro in August and Books on Decomposed Body Found in Gulch There Identified by His Brother.

It is believed that the body of the man found in the deep gulch between Seventh and Eighth streets in San Pedro Monday afternoon is that of August Schult, who was an employé of the Golden Gate Compress Yeast Company, No. 605 South Olive street, Los Angeles. The two memorandum books found on the corpse were identified yesterday by Theodore Schult of this city as those of his brother, but a careful examination of the remains revealed little, owing to their decomposed condition.

Theodore Schult went to San Pedro in company with a younger brother and said that he wished to examine the personal effects of the dead man, as he thought the description given in The Times tallied with that of his missing brother. He explained that he and the two other brothers went to the Harbor City August 28. August was to go to San Francisco that evening, while the other two left for Catalina Island in the forenoon.

Since that time nothing had been heard of August, and the other members of the family think perhaps he was murdered. Theodore said that his brother carried a valuable watch and $40. Neither money nor watch was found on the body discovered Monday.

Numerous accounts in one of the memorandum books showed where certain amounts of yeast had been purchased from H. Jevne. The notations were from August 1 to August 15, in each case stopping abruptly on the latter date. These facts, together with the supposition that the dead man was in a business where he had use for yeast, indicate that Theodore Schult's story is true, and that the body is that of his brother. The fact of the missing watch and money make the murder theory plausible.

C. A. Lucas, the San Pedro undertaker, yesterday removed the body to Harbor View Cemetery, where it was buried at the expense of the county, as the Schult brothers were not certain as to the identity of the corpse, and preferred for that reason not to go to any expense on their own account.

ANNUAL FOOTBALL EVENT KICKED OFF TODAY.

UNIVERSITY AND POMONA COLLEGE TO SETTLE IT.

Hoyt School Eleven Wants to Come Here for Game—Yesterday's Baseball Exhibition and the Offs and Ons of Other Sports.

Football is at flood tide these days. There are games and rumors of games on every hand.

Today two of the most interesting contests to be witnessed in Southern California this season will be played.

The annual intercollegiate tussle between the University of Southern California and Pomona College will be pulled off at Fiesta Park this afternoon, while the Perris Indians will do battle with the pigskin squad of the Reliance Athletic Club of San Francisco, at Riverside. Both games will be for blood.

Never before in the annals of intercollegiate events has there been greater rivalry or has more interest been taken in any athletic event than is manifested in today's contest for the gridiron supremacy of the Methodist and Congregational schools.

George S. Hinckley, president of the Pomona Athletic Association, says "nearly the entire Pomona student body will come down to witness the game." They are loaded with songs and yells and will give royal support to the defenders of the blue and white.

The Pomona football squad is in perfect condition and its friends have the utmost confidence in Pomona's ability to down the university contingent again this year.

Coach Treager has put life into the Claremont players. Every maneuver is executed with snap and every one of the eleven men backs it up.

The game from the visitor's point of view will be as good as Pomona College can make it.

If the enthusiastic rally at the University of Southern California Thursday night is any criterion, the Methodist collegians will not be outdone in college spirit by the Claremont boys today. A large crowd of rooters representing all the departments of the local institution will be on hand and will yell for the gallant defenders of the cardinal and gold, as if their very lives depended upon the outcome of the battle of these football kickers. A neat hand book of songs, composed for the occasionfi has been printed, and every U.S.C. man will have one. The local team is in condition to make a splendid fight and the game they will play today is sure to be a much better exhibition of football than many believe the team can put up. They have a good line, and what is considered the best back field the team has ever had. Men of large experience in football, who have kept in close touch with the work of the team and have noted the great improvement in its playing during the last few weeks, are confident that the University of Southern California will win.

A victory would mean more to the local college than to Pomona, for it would be purely a school victory. The U.S.C. boys have no coach to come in for a large share of the honors, for the team is a strictly college institution trained by talent in the school.

The line-up will be the same as published in Friday's Times. Ferguson and Cromwell will alternate as umpire and referee.

Word has been received here that the Berkeley eleven has agreed to allow Bemis Pierce, the famous Carlisle player, now coaching the Perris team, to participate in the Thanksgiving Day game in Los Angeles.

Unless the Berkeley faculty interferes, Pierce will don the moleskin. He plays a guard and not the least interesting feature in the contest will be the struggle for points between this veteran redman and Berkeley's celebrated guard, Overall.

A project is on foot to bring the football eleven of Hoyt School, a preparatory institution near San Francisco, to this city some time in December to meet the local High School team. The Hoyt team played a tie game with the Belmont eleven, neither side scoring, and as that coincides with the result of the High School-Belmont struggle in this city, the proposed contest should be a close one.

Ralph Hoyt, son of the head of the northern school, was with Messrs. Knight and Sheehan in regard to the enterprise.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC WILL EXHIBIT.

ITS ATTACHE HERE ON RETURN FROM ST. LOUIS.

J. Schwartz, Globe Trotter, Linguist and Representative of Southernmost Republic, Says Los Angeles is Just Like Buenos Ayres.

J. Schwartz of Argentina, who was attacé of the Argentine Republic in charge of its exhibits at the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, arrived at the Westminster last night.

He has been in St. Louis in the interests of his government, looking into the plans of the coming World's Fair there, and stated last night that he has received word from Buenos Ayres that Argentina has practically decided to make an exhibit of its products at the exposition. He expects to have charge, and is now on his way to the southern republic to make the arrangements.

Mr. Schwartz is an Austrian by birth, but has spent most of his life in the service of the Argentine government, and has a firm belief in a great future for the most southern republic in the world, which, he says, is now rapidly progressing along the most modern lines of growth.

"Few Americans," he said, "have any conception of Argentina and its present prosperous condition. In the great city of Buenos Ayres, the capital, which is the largest city in South America, civic improvements are of the most modern order, and about 40,000 of the population are English-speaking people. The foreigners are rapidly developing the great resources of the country. In the thirty-two normal schools in and about the capital, the majority of the teachers are Americans."

After a stroll through the streets of Los Angeles last night, he was particularly impressed with the likeness of the city to his home capital, where the climate is almost identical, he said, and the architecture strikingly similar.

"The immigration to Argentina," he said, "at present averages about 100,000 people a year. There crops of all kinds are always certain and very large. In the republic there are 34,000,000 head of cattle and 110,000,000 of sheep.

"In Argentina fuel is quite a problem, most of it being coal from Australia, and if California could manage to get its crude oil there by some manner of cheap transportation, it would have an immense market."

In speaking of the progressive spirit of the Argentine government, he made the interesting statement that it is at present supporting in different schools in the United States and Canada, sixty students, sent here to learn chiefly scientific agriculture. These picked students have their transportation paid, and are provided $75 a month for living expenses, during a four-year course.

Mr. Schwartz has had a varied experience as a globe trotter, much of it spent in exploiting in different quarters the possibilities of his chosen country, and he converses in eleven different languages. He claims to have crossed the high Andes on four separate expeditions.

Judges ii, 7-19: "The Time of the Judges."

THE CONNECTION.

After Joshua's parting words they set up a stone of witness under the oak by which he stood. He lived in retirement a little while and then died, full of honors. For several hundred years they were ruled by judges and this book of "Judges" gives an account of that period—at least of some important events in the period. The book opens with an account of how the several tribes treated the people whom they found in Canaan. Some drove them away; others allowed them to remain. Most did the latter. The result was disastrous to the morals and religion of God's people. The lesson gives us a glimpse into the people as they were affected by Joshua and his helpers, as they did when left to themselves, and as when God intervened.

THE LESSON.

I.

"The People as Influenced by Joshua." (Verses 7-9.)

"(7.) And the people served Jehovah all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great work of Jehovah, that he had wrought for Israel. (8.) And Joshua, the son of Nun, the servant of Jehovah, died, being a hundred and ten years old. (9.) And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnath-heres, in the hill country of Ephraim, on the north of the Mountain of Gaasch."

The people were mightily under the influence of Joshua. Their fidelity to God on his account is a tribute to the value of good men. Their failure to serve God on His own account is a revelation of their weakness. External pressure toward righteousness is good as an expedient, but unless it leads to eternal promptings to righteousness for its own sake, it is good only while it lasts. They loved Joshua and wanted to please him. They feared Joshua, and they shrank from his rebuke and his righteous wrath.

They were loyal to God even as long as the good men lived who had been associated with Joshua and had also seen those great demonstrations of God's love and power. There is always need of right leaders. The King or President communicates his moral sentiments to the people. So also do the Governors of the States and the Senators and Congressmen and legislators and judges and City Councilmen and Mayors and justices of the peace and policemen. The religious character of Mr. McKinley was of greatest worth to the American people.

They were somewhat loyal as long as that generation lasted whom Moses and Joshua had trained in the wilderness and in those early years in Palestine. The generations coming on evidently had not responded to training and were not prepared to keep up the moral quality of the former.

The length of time they felt the influence of Joshua was considerable, for he was one hundred and ten years old when he died. According to the Egyptian standard, that was the ideal length of life. His old age was, if anything, more impressive than his middle life and that held them to God by unseen bonds. Care is taken to tell us where he was buried, and modern exploration locates the grave about nine miles south of Shechem. His death must have impressed them, too, and perhaps for some time they were held to loyalty by the great reverence now mingled with awe in which they held his memory.

II.

"The People When Left to Themselves." (Verses 10-12.)

"(10.) And also all that generation were gathered unto their fathers; and there arose another generation after them, that knew not Jehovah, nor yet the work which he had wrought for Israel. (11.) And the children of Israel did that which was evil in the sight of Jehovah, and served the Baalim. (12.) And they forsook Jehovah, the God of their fathers, who wrought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed other gods, of the gods of the peoples that were round about them, and bowed themselves down unto them; and they provoked Jehovah to anger. (13.) And they forsook Jehovah, and served Baal and the Ashtaroth."

This was awful defection. Notice that it was a new generation. Of this new generation that went so woefully astray several things must be remembered.

(1.) They had not been well trained, for since they entered on the land they had done very little else than get possession of it.

(2.) They had no tender memories of His marvelous doings, for they were too young to know much about the experiences in the wilderness, and they did not regard His works as personal to themselves.

(3.) There seemed no great men to impress them with noble characters.

(4.) There was no one ruler to command their loyal support of God's worship. God was their king alone, but they were not sensitive to His presence. They were children and needed a strong, controlling hand. If their parents had trained them well in the law of God they would have stood the test. But because they did not rally to the worship of God, they did not support each other. They were dwelling apart as independent tribes and learned to live for themselves instead of for each other.

(5.) The presence of the old nations still among them was a constant temptation. We see how these heathen were allowed to remain when they should have been driven out with haste. God's people cannot be preserved from vice while living sympathetically with vicious people and making no protest against their vices. Those heathen had their altars and other symbols to attract the Israelites; they were a people of influence; they appealed to all the baser emotions and downward tendencies of the Israelites. The result of it was that instead of the heathen abandoning their gods and asking to be incorporated into the life of Israel, the latter forsook God and took up the worship of the false gods. Baalim is plural of Baal, and the word means "lord." The high lord of the country was so called. Baal was the masculine god and represented the powers of nature. Ashtaroth was the female god, and her worship was full of bestial orgies. "Baal was worshiped in the use of images of wood, stone, bronze, silver and gold and pillars of stone. These images and pillars were set up by the side of altars as places of sacrifice, upon high places, either on hills or artificial mounds, towers or roofs of palaces, and sometimes in temples. Baal was worshiped by kissing his images, enthusiastic dances, cutting of the person and other ecstatic rites by incense and sacrifices, but the choicest sacrifice was an only son. The favorite form of sacrifice to his consort, Ashtaroth, was prostitution." The worship of God required purity, a sense of sin, confession, cross-bearing. The sensuous and sensual had a powerful fascination for them. The people who illustrated those forms of religion were among them and had an added personal attractiveness for their culture and skill and for the fascination of an evil character.

It must not be thought that they intended to give up God entirely. No, no. They would keep him as only one of their gods. Nor did all of them go into idolatry. Doubtless a goodly number remained true, and made their protest against the sin and the disgrace.

The writer of the history makes clear the heinous and inexcusable character of their idolatry by allusion to what God had done for them. It was in the face of His goodness that they sinned. He had stricken off the shackles of their slavery, had led them to this home and given it to them, had given them a most wonderful system of laws and most gifted leaders, and had won for them most marvelous victories. And still they treated Him thus. But, as said above, there was a goodly number of people who never bowed the knee to Baal, and there was a latent religious vitality that could at times be aroused to righteousness. The statement that "they forsook the Lord and served Baal and Ashtaroth shows that they consecrated licentiousness, making a vicious religion of it, while men today sin the same way, without giving it a religious sanction. Ashtaroth had the attributes of Venus, Juno and Minerva, so that both religion and culture were wedded to vice.

III.

"The People Under God's Discipline." (Verses 14-16.)

"14. And the anger of Jehovah was kindled against Israel, and he delivered them into the hands of the spoilers that despoil them; and he sold them into the hands of their enemies round about, so that they could not any longer stand before their enemies. 15. Whithersoever they went out, the hand of Jehovah was against them for evil, as Jehovah had spoken, and as Jehovah had sworn unto them; and they were sore distressed.

"16. And Jehovah raised up judges, who saved them out of the hand of these that despoiled them."

God was angry at them. His anger was not vindictiveness or wounded vanity or weakness, as it is apt to be with us. But it was wounded and disappointed love, thwarted purposes of the loftiest, most necessary character. He saw their moral suicide. He could not but be disappointed and angry. His grief was great. It was God-like. He would not have done wrong if he had swept them out of existence with one hot breath of wrath. But that would have lost Him His people, and His prospects for a nation holy enough to be ready for the coming of the promised Savior. It would have been a blow to all prospect of righteousness in the world. The only hope is to reclaim these people. But is such a thing possible? Is there any hope for the boy who steals the money which his father has stored up for old age? Can the girl be reclaimed who abuses the kindness that has been shown by her mother and uses it all to bring disgrace upon that mother? Most fathers and mothers will try to reclaim them, anyhow, even if others thought there is no hope. God does so, too. How did He go about it?

(1.) He punished them. His love would require that they suffer. Every sin must be punished, else it is no sin. This punishment was not vindictive, but it was retributive, paying them back. They had followed their enemies in their religion and vices, and now they are put into their hands. Robbers, invaders and the Canaanites generally had an easy time subduing and enslaving Israel. They had chosen the gods of the nations, and now those gods must be relied on to deliver them. No part of the country offered them relief. God and their enemies were too much for them. They were in sore straits and became penitent.

(2.) When they repented He raised up good leaders who liberated and led them and brought back a new era. Then they would have His favor till another lapse into idolatry, when another judge would be raised up.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

It is always hard to live far above the people round us, but we cannot imagine how hard it was for Israel to cleave to Jehovah when all nations around were bowing before Baalim and Ashtaroth. So let us not be too hard upon the apostates in Israel, but "consider thyself lest thou also be tempted." We have all of us one human heart, and these wayward generations were not "sinners above all men that dwelt" on the earth then, or that dwell in so-called Christian lands now. A man's God is that which he values most, and to which he devotes the strength of his love, his trust and his effort. Are there not, then, shoals of idolators among us? And do not the best of us often and often depart from the living God, and bow before popular idols, worshiping money or position or reputation or love or, baser still, sensual pleasures and animal delights? How often we have slid down from the elevation of lofty thoughts and aims, almost without knowing it, and found ourselves bowing before some Baal or some voluptuous Ashtaroth, among a crowd of worshipers.—[Maclaran.

The chief duty of the Semitic world at the time of the conquest of Canaan was Baal (Lord.) He was the sun, while his wife, Ashtaroth, was the moon. These divinities were worshiped among surrounding nations under different names, Moloch of the Ammonites, and Ishtar of the Babylonians being identical with the great god and goddess of the Sidonians. But though Baal himself was supreme, there were hundreds of local Baals (Baalim.) Every town and village had its altar dedicated to some tutelary Baal, whose special function was usually indicated in the name by which the place was called. For instance, Baal-hamon means one who posseses or rules a multitude, a populous place; Baal-hermon, the possessor of a thing devoted or consecrated to God; a mountain thought to be near or identical with Mt. Hermon. It is a remarkable fact that Mt. Hermon (Jebel esh-Sheikh) was devoted to the worship of Baal, as numerous ruined temples on his slopes now testify. Baal-tamar (palm) was the tutelary deity of a place near Gibeah; his special function was care of the palms; and so on.—[Howie.

TRUTHS TO IMPRESS.

(1.) That the chief need of any nation is good men.

(2.) That truth and righteousness must prompt from within as well as press from without.

(3.) That in childhood is the time to implant the germs of morality and religion.

(4.) That it is hard to hold oneself above the principles and practices of the people around us.

(5.) That devotion to the same bestial gods can be found among us.

(6.) That God never ceases to work for our restoration to holiness.

(7.) That punishment is designed to bring us to penitence.

(8.) That we must all work for a national type of character that will be righteous and intelligent.

(9.) That all our rulers are to be reverenced as representatives of God.

Two district captains of the Ninth Assembly District of Chicago have been held by Magistrate Barlow in bonds of $4500 each, to answer charges of violating the election law.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Comments on the uniform prayer-meeting topics of The Christian Endeavor Societies, The Epworth Leagues, The Baptist Young People's Unions, etc.

By William T. Ellis

Topic for November 16: "For Me."—(Isa. liii, 6; Luke xxii, 19-20; Rom. v, 6-8; I John iii, 16.

Religion cannot be universal unless it is also individual. It is not for all men unless it is "for me." It must be for humanity one by one, ere it can be for humanity in the mass. For, after all, humanity is only an aggregation of individuals. God deals with the world man by man. A large part of the sweetness and power of the gospel lies in the truth that it is applied to every soul personally and distinctively. Each one of us is as real and as individual to the Savior as the disciple who leaned on his breast at the last supper.

"For me" is the message that runs through all the word of God. "For Him" should be the message that runs through all the works of man.

Christianity differs from human religions in many particulars, and in none more so than in the way it exalts man. False and man-made faiths abase him but the gospel of Christ consistently makes for the dignity and nobility and divinity of humanity. By every means in His power, God endeavors to lift man up into nearness to Himself. He invests him with privileges and characteristics that raise him above the angels; indeed, as the psalmist says: "Thou has made him a little lower than God." To exalt man's character, God created him in His own image, gave him the divine powers of a sovereign will, holds personal fellowship with him, welcomes him into His presence in heaven, and, as the climax of all His efforts on man's behalf, esteems him of sufficient worth to send His only Son from his seat on heaven's throne to suffer ignominy, shame, and death, all that man might be saved from the power and consequences of sin.

"For me" He died that for Him I might live.

Since any life—my life—is important enough to occupy the thought of God, and to merit the gift of the divine life, then it surely is too important to be wasted in a round of trivialities. This truth, that Christ died for me, is a sobering one. It halts the foolishness and vanities and selfishness to which my life is prone. My life is worth living at its best, if it was worth the Savior's death. The love of Christ constrains me to cleaner, higher and more purposeful living. My life must be made worth while to the world, since God has shown me that it was worth while to Him. There is no incentive to royal living like the cross of Christ.

The image of God upon man is the stamp that proves him of greater worth than anything else in the universe.

God glorifies man that man may glorify Him.

Since God emphasizes my personality, so must I. If he views me as myself—as a special and peculiar bit of his handiwork—I must not disappoint him by making my life a mere copy of some other person's life. In my own way—or, better, in His own way—I must work out my own personality, and express my own individuality. If my life is not like other lives, and if I have not the powers and virtues of other men, I am not to grieve. I have my own gifts and my brother has them not. It is my sacred duty to be myself, my best and divinest self, without attempting to conform my life to the standards of other men. For I come nearest to God's plan for me when I most truly express the personality which he has bestowed upon me. And that alone is success.

If I mean so much to Jesus for salvation, I should mean more to Him for service.

Jesus lived a lowly life to do a high service; so I may fulfill an exalted mission in a humble sphere.

A certain American statesman once said, "I have no time for individuals." That is one memory of him that his friends would like to forget, for the words showed the man at his worst. The man who says he is too big to bother with individuals only shows thereby his own smallness. The Lord Himself is supremely interested, he tells us, in individuals. His relations with every man and woman are as personal as if he had never created any other souls. Every human being that draws the breath of life is an object of special concern to the Almighty. The love of one person for another is not more definite and real than the love of God for each of us.

Jesus never grew weary of His service for me, so my service for Him should be service unto the uttermost.

In his distress and desolation David cried, No man careth for my soul," and his words have found an echo in thousands of lonely hearts since. But over against that Old Testament word must be written the New Testament message, "He careth for you." Since Jesus lived and died in loneliness, no man can truly utter that cry of the forsaken spirit. Now, the Savior cares for the least of us with a warmth and a definiteness and a sympathy which pass our power to tell or to understand. As truly as though each of us were the only soul needing salvation, Jesus died for each of us. His love and sacrifice are so personal, and so directly related to the individual, that only the full knowledge of heaven can make them plain to us.

AFIELD IN OCTOBER.

Bob White! Bob White! Thy challenge rings
Across the stubble brown,
Bob White! Bob White! The north wind brings
The challenge into town.
The littered pages on my desk
Do rustle in the wind,
As if of crisp October leaves
They fain would me remind.
They whisper me of copse and wood;
Of sumac's flaming red;
Of field and meadow brown and sere
Since gentle summer fled.
They whisper me—ah, who can fail
To take the challenge of the quail!

GOLD NOT USELESS. In his annual report, United States Treasurer Roberts says: "The advance in circulation in the volume of gold, including certificates, within twelve years, by the large sum of $433,703,516, is the measure of the greater strength of our circulation. The addition during the last fiscal year was $61,966,174. The increase in the future can hardly be less than $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 a year. The mines are thus confirming the gold standard steadily and invincibly. They are creating an inflation of currency, which keeps pace with the enterprise and industry of the country. They are contributing to an advance in prices in general commodities, and add [illegible] to the prosperity of our people. For the immediate present, and [illegible] for a few years at least, the flow of gold will be in such large volume as to lift the volume of currency to the highest level of all needs of business. Our currency keeps more than equal pace with the population. After considerable fluctuations in previous periods, the population, in the last fiscal year, advanced 1.7 per cent. and the circulation, per capita, 1.5 per cent.

"On June 27, the gold certificates outstanding for the first time exceeded in volume the United States notes, and [illegible]. They stood on June [illegible]. By October 1 they were [illegible], and by November 1 [illegible].

The remedies [illegible] are not all needed here, and [illegible] of them, at least, consent [illegible] now be obtained.

[illegible] COAL MINING. For some [illegible], more especially since the [illegible] here in the United States [illegible] Norwegians have been turning attention to the large and [illegible] coal fields on the southwest [illegible] of Spitzbergen. Fisherman while [illegible] coastal waters had observed [illegible] of coal. Their stories [illegible] interest at home and the coal [illegible] were examined as a possible [illegible] of profit. Several companies [illegible] formed to carry on coal [illegible] in these new fields and there [illegible] confidence in Norway that [illegible] Arctic enterprise will be profitable.

[illegible] States Consul Nilson writes [illegible] that the coal of Spitzbergen [illegible] adapted for the manufacture [illegible] gas. The fuel burns with a [illegible] and is extremely combustible. [illegible] although Spitzbergen is in the [illegible] coal may be mined there [illegible] advantage. In the first [illegible] has been found that no large [illegible] required to start the work, [illegible] civilized countries, [illegible] ground to buy, no difficult foundations to build in the way of shafts, and as the land is not inhabited there are no property considerations to interfere. Transportation from the mines to the ships will be inexpensive, the situation of the mines favoring the towage by rope of railroad cars loaded at the mines.

Considerable work has already been done. The mining engineers on the ground give their opinion that the cost of coal will not exceed $2.40 per ton. They say that with a force of sixty workmen, 25,000 tons may be taken out annually. The coal can be transported only in the summer, but the works may be kept going the year round.

In Sweden some of the best steel-making iron ores are being mined in large quantities many miles north of the Arctic Circle. The only railroad now existing in the Arctic regions carries the ore from these far northern mines to the Baltic; another Scandinavian Arctic enterprise that will give a busy aspect to the southern shores of the Spitzbergen archipelago is likely soon to be well developed and as prosperous as iron mining in Arctic Sweden.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKETS

Walnuts have taken a jump to 11 and 11¼ cents in carload lots, and the tendency is reported still upward. The holiday demand is in prospect, and a scarcity of product is also used to account for the stiffening market.

Fresh ranch eggs remain firm at 35 and 36 cents per dozen for prime stock.

Butter and cheese are firm.

Potatoes, onions, vegetables and beans remain firm, as heretofore.

Poultry is scarce, and wanted to meet a good demand.

Game, on the whole, is more plentiful under a good demand, but doves and rabbits are scarce, with the trade hollering for rabbits.

STATE OF TRADE.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade tomorrow will say lower prices for railway stocks than at any time since last March do not necessarily indicate a loss of traffic nor a setback in business. On the contrary, there were numerous evidences that manufacturing and transporting interests have not sufficient facilities to meet demands, although plants and equipment are now of greater efficiency than at any previous time. Distribution of merchandise is fully maintained, preparations being made for a heavy holiday trade and frequent complaints of tardy deliveries testify to the heavy consumption. Prospects for continued activity are bright because of unprecedented harvests, prosperity in the agricultural sections assuring a good demand for other products. Threatened labor controversies have been averted in some cases, wages being advanced, while a number of increases were voluntarily given. Railway earnings continue to advance, the first week of November showing a rise of 4.8 per cent. over 1901, and 15.2 per cent. over 1900. High temperature retards retail trade in seasonable goods. Aside from the expected decline in prices of pipes and tubes, there has been evidence of weakness in iron, and all the recent concessions were caused by the competition of new plants rather than diminished business. Failures for the week number 241, against 215 last year, and 24 in Canada, compared with 27 a year ago.

Bradstreet's Review.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say that trade industry and transportation continue active, despite drawbacks caused by warm weather, scarcity of fuel and car and motive power shortage. Cold weather is needed to stimulate consumption of heavy winter goods from retailers' hands, whatever complaint there is heard regarding collections being attributed to this cause. Activity with jobbers has, owing to the advanced stage of the season, been transferred from regular staple lines to holiday goods. These latter are in exceptional active demand, the outlook being that distribution far in excess of any previous year will be realized. More than usual activity is, however, noted in spring goods, which are being ordered more freely than in average years. This is taken to indicate widespread confidence in prosperous conditions next year. Little or no improvement is noted in the fuel situation, which particularly affects steel and iron manufacturers, many of whom are reported discouraged by their inability to fill orders now on their books. A heavy volume of winter goods is moving on previous orders. Collections, except where affected by weather conditions, remain exceptionally good, and a large majority of cities report payments fair to good. Furniture manufacturers are reported unable to keep up with orders, and hardware jobbers have all they can attend to. On the Pacific Coast, shipments of merchandise are very heavy, and many wholesalers are behind on orders. Car shortages retard shipments of lumber. Wet weather in the Northwest and West has stimulated the demand for rubber goods. The lumber trade is still quite active, notwithstanding the advanced state of the season, and the only complaint is as to backward deliveries. Other building materials are quite active. The boot and shoe business is in good shape. Leather is firmly held. At eastern markets, shipments are smaller than of late and tend to increase as the period of stock-taking approaches. Sharp differences are notable in the iron and steel trade, accordingly as the cruder or more highly finished forms are considered. The flour market is apparently in good shape. New orders are not numerous, but the mills are busily employed on old business. Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending November 13, aggregated 4,440,160 bushels, against 5,715,555 bushels last week and 4,983,704 bushels this week last year. Wheat exports since July 1 aggregate 101,584,652 bushels, against 117,182,318 bushels last year. Business failures in the United States for the week ending Thursday, November 13, were 205, against 148 last week, and 213 in this week last year. In Canada, the failures number 10, as against 24 last week, and 30 this week a year ago.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

SHARES AND MONEY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—A renewal of heavy liquidation in the stock market this afternoon and a violent drive by an organized bear party, caused a disorderly slump to the lowest prices of the week. Even at the final rally, due to the scramble among the bears to cover their short contracts, which lifted prices one o three points above the lowest of the active stocks, the prices of not a few of the important stocks are lower than before this week. At the extreme declines, which were made early in the final hour, losses of from 3 to 7¼ were shown by the stocks which bore the brunt of the bear attack. St. Paul led with a 7¼-point decline from yesterday; Rock Island 6½, the preferred 7; Baltimore and Ohio and Louisville, 5½ each; Canadian Pacific, 5; Northwestern, 4¾; Colorado Fuel, 4¾; Reading, 4; Pennsylvania, 3¾; and a number of the Pacifics, coalers and other stocks three points or over. The fierceness and suddenness of the raid came as a surprise, owing to the character of the support given to the market at the opening decline, and the eagerness shown by the bears, who sold short yesterday to cover and take their profits. The rapid tumbling of prices gave rise to the usual crop of rumors of financial difficulties and probable failures, which gave active employment to some of those pointed at in the making of denials. The wiping out of the margins and the uncovering of stop-loss orders dislodged a great mass of securities which have been overhanging the market. No doubt very heavy speculative losses were involved in some of this selling. The knowledge of the precarious situation of some very active long accounts doubtless figured in the formation of the powerful bear party which broke the market. Some of the selling today was alleged to be by large holders of stock, who have maintained their holdings for a long time and through all the periods of late advances. These holders have seen immense paper profits melt away with the disintegration of prices, and were driven to sell out today to avoid losses. There was no immediate news on which to base the attack upon values beyond the prospect of a poor bank return tomorrow. Even this prospect was rather favorably modified today by the disclosure of a return flow of currency from the interior on the regular express movement of over a million dollars. New York exchange at Chicago also rose to 10c premier. The loss on sub-treasury account of $4,409,000 is therefore modified to the amount of over a million dollars. Sterling exchange was also lower, and there seemed to be offerings of loan bills in the market. But the general sentiment in Wall street was one of depression, owing to apprehension that stringent money may recur before the end of the year. The recent succession of pessimistic utterances by leading banking authorities on the subject of bank credits and the currency has had a notable influence on Wall-street sentiment. Yesterday's announcement by the Pennsylvania company of a 10-per-cent. increase in wages would be equal to a large proportion of the amount at present paid in dividends, was a disturbing factor, in view of the recent discussion of this very subject. Pennsylvania and its affiliated stocks were the first in the market to show acute weakness. The announcement of a bank suspension in Boston was also taken advantage of by the bears, and speculators at that center were supposed to be aimed at by the raiding tactics in some stocks. The bond market was in sympathy with stocks. Total sales $4,665,000. United States 2s and the old 4s declined ⅛ per cent. on the last call.

GENERAL EASTERN MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Unfavorable weather, strengthened corn, with higher markets abroad and a good export demand, were responsible for the strength in wheat. Trading during the first part of the session was on an enormous scale, but later in the day there was a quieter feeling, although the market was active right up to the close. A leading bull operator was credited with selling a large line, but it was stated that his buying greatly exceeded his sales. Realizing sales were on a large scale, but the demand was always heavy enough to bring about a rallying after a momentary decline. The close was strong and near the top. December opened ⅛ to ¼ higher, at 72⅝@72¾, and after selling at 72⅝ advanced to 72¾. The close was ½ to ¾ higher at 73⅛@73¼. There was a wild scramble to get December corn. As a result, the price went up to 1⅝ over yesterday's closing figures during the first half of the session. There was liberal realizing at the advance and a reaction followed, but the close was strong. Wet weather and light receipts with predictions of continued rains today, caused a stampede among shorts, who are beginning to entertain doubts as to their ability to secure enough contract stuff to fill orders for December delivery, as grading continues extremely poor. December closed ⅝ higher, at 52¾. Oats were dull and featureless. The close was steady, with December a shade lower, at 29⅝. Provisions were quiet, and about the only feature to trading was a fair demand for pork. The strength in grains helped provisions, and the close was steady, with lard and ribs a trifle weak. January pork closed 2½ higher, lard 7½@10 lower, and ribs 2½ lower.

The leading futures closed as follows:

ANAHEIM.

NO MARRIAGE LICENSE.

ANAHEIM, Nov. 14.—B. Frank Cheever and Addie Hunt of this place applied at the County Clerk's office for a marriage license. Cheever gave his age at 32, and stated he had never been married before, and Addie gave her age at 21, smiling, and at the same time admitting she had been married before, and had secured a divorce in less than a year, and had taken her maiden name. After that statement the clerk informed the blushing pair it was "all off," so far as he was concerned, as he did not care to violate the State law by issuing a license to a party who had been divorced within a year. They left the office in disgust.

RIVERSIDE COUNTY.

COURTHOUSE BUILDER CHOSEN.

RIVERSIDE, Nov. 14.—The Supervisors today opened bids for building the new Courthouse. The contract was awarded to F. O. Engstrum of Los Angeles, the lowest of a number of bidders. Engstrum's bid is $137,750.

REDLANDS.

ORANGE ORCHARDS IN DEMAND.

REDLANDS, Nov. 14.—Real estate dealers report a constantly increasing demand for orange groves. Extra good prices have prevailed. D. W. Sargent received $17,500 for a ten-acre orchard, while C. E. Owen got $15,000 for a like number of acres. Not a few owners find themselves temporarily tied up by the options which they have given on their places to the "Southern California Orange Trust," and some of them are restless for fear that they may be called upon to part with their properties at the figures offered them by the combine.

REDLANDS BREVITIES.

While Redlands is enjoying delightful weather and the tourists are greatly pleased with it, yet they can hardly perceive how it is possible for the lofty mountain peaks to be covered with a mantle of snow, while even light wraps are not needed here.

Last evening steps for organizing a local camp of the Sons of Veterans were taken. Interested persons assembled in the City Trustees' room. Rev. F. A. Wales called the meeting to order, and L. R. Moore was chosen chairman, with Prof. D. C. Reed as secretary. An adjournment was taken until Wednesday evening, when the organization will be perfected.

Somewhat of a sensational disclosure has been made in this section regarding a movement favoring State division. It comes to light that numerous secret societies are being established in the small towns and outlying districts, which have for their expressed purpose the advancing of this idea. It is claimed that the interests of Northern and Southern California are so different that it would be best for each section to "go it alone." The new societies have avoided entering the larger cities.

County Tax Collector L. I. Coy had a novel experience here the other day. County taxes are due and according to a pre-election announcement he came up from the county seat bringing the tax rolls of this city to accommodate the taxpayers and save them the trouble and expense of going to the Courthouse to pay. He did a land-office business and when he made a rush to catch the last train for the county seat he left a long line of disappointed taxpayers standing in the rain awaiting their turn.

VENTURA COUNTY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

OXNARD, Nov. 14.—H. E. Brooks, a Prescott (Ariz.) attorney, representing Mrs. Hattie Monihon in a case that is pending in the District Court of Yavapai county, Ariz., between A. J. Monihon, a former resident and lawyer of Ventura and now of Los Angeles, and his wife, Mrs. Hattie Monihon, has been in Ventura part of the week. His visit caused considerable local excitement, as it was followed by the arrival of A. J. Monihon, the taking of lengthy depositions before Notary Edgar Sharp of Oxnard, relative to Mrs. Monihon's suitability to be the custodian of the child of the couple. Trouble first arose in Arizona several weeks since, by Monihon's abduction of the child, which was followed by his arrest for carrying concealed weapons —a pretext to hold him. Then a writ of habeas corpus was issued to Attorney Brooks to gain possession of the child.

Out of this has grown the present case, and the attempt of Monihon to show that his wife is an unsuitable person to have charge of the child.

Mrs. Monihon was formerly one of the most beautiful girls of Ventura. Her mother, Mrs. J. C. McDonald, and numerous prominent members of her family, now reside there and are highly respected.

VENTURA.

IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.

VENTURA, Nov. 14.—The Ventura Improvement Company has been organized to promote the welfare and prosperity of the city. The company is now in the process of incorporation. An organization meeting has been held. It has been decided to incorporate for $20,000, with 400 shares at $50 each. The five directors will be E. P. Foster, J. S. Collins, F. W. Baker, J. S. Blackstock, N. Pelrano. The amount subscribed is $12,000. What is known as the Cody property on Main street has been purchased for $4000. The frame building will be removed and a two-story brick block erected. The ground floor will be occupied by the postoffice. A complete new postoffice outfit will be installed in the new building.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Superintendent of Schools George L. Sackett is making arrangements for the annual Teachers' Institute, to be held in this city the week of December 15. The programme promises to be attractive and strong. Among the notable lecturers will be Prof. Dudley of the University of Wisconsin, President S. T. Black of the San Diego Normal; Superintendent Hyat of Riverside county; Miss Rogers of the San Diego Normal; President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of Berkeley.

POLITICAL CHANGES.

It has been announced by the Auditor and Recorder-elect that J. L. Argabrite will retain J. B. Wagner as deputy. Sheriff-elect E. G. McMartin will have J. J. Salcido of Oxnard for jailer. J. A. Barry is prominently mentioned for Under Sheriff. This would be a popular appointment.

L. B. Slosson will continue as deputy under Clerk George E. Ferrand. Albert Ayers will remain with Assessor James A. Donlon.

The candidates are filing their election expense accounts with the County Clerk. The certificates of election have been issued. W. I. Rice has filed his $60,000 bonds as Tax Collector.

HUENEME.

NEWS BREVITIES.

HUENEME, Nov. 14.—The beans and beets have been generally harvested and many of the fields are ploughed and ready for the rains. Beets not yet taken to factory may be seen stacked in immense piles about the fields awaiting an order for hauling. The bean shipments are light; the only shipment being on Saturday, of 480 sacks by the steamer Ramona.

The heavy rain Monday raised the Santa Clara River to a high roller, and the torrent pouring into the sea has caused the waters about the wharf and some distance around to become very muddy.

G. R. Mullinix and family, who arrived Monday from Kentucky, have settled temporarily in the Barr cottage, east of town, but expect to make Hueneme their permanent home.

Mrs. Firth and son, Charles, who, for five months have been visiting Mrs. Charles Donlon, have returned to their home in Arizona.

Rev. G. S. Wright and family are spending the week in Los Angeles.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.

LABOR IS ALL EMPLOYED.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Nov. 14.—The conditions in San Luis Obispo from the standpoint of labor have never before been so good. There are no idle men and it has been found impossible to commence the construction of several buildings already contracted for, owing to the scarcity of carpenters.

Mrs. C. S. Lane died yesterday at the advanced age of 77 years. She was one of the pioneer women of this county.

Bids for the construction of the California Polytechnic School in this county will be opened on November 22.

Higuera Lodge, No. 194, A.O.U.W., received a visit last evening from the District Deputy, J. C. Brown. A banquet was served in his honor.

San Luis Obispo Lodge, No. 322, B. P. O. Elks, will hold the annual memorial services of the order Sunday, December 7. Warren M. John will deliver the memorial address.

Mrs. Banning has returned to Los Angeles after a visit with Mrs. J. H. Hollister.

John Cameron is in Los Angeles.

THE DAIRY.

Characteristics of Autumn Made Butter.

The educational butter tests being conducted by the Department of Agriculture continue to be of much interest. Prof. E. H. Farmington, in discussing the September butter, which he examined, said that the chief defect was an acidy, or sour, flavor. There was also a slightly weedy flavor, and still another, called by the trade a burnt flavor. The acidy or sour flavor may be caused by many things. One butter-maker stated that farmers delivering hand separator cream had been advised not to wash their machines more than once a day, and he stated that this was the cause of frequent defects in the butter. Sour starters also cause sour butter, and allowing the cream to become ripe is also another cause.

Buttermilk may sometimes be used as a starter, but it is not to be recommended, as defects from one churning may be carried to another. The weedy flavor is very common. The extreme drought and heat of a year ago killed out the grass in many places, and the rains of the season now about closed gave the weeds an opportunity to develop. One sample of pasteurized butter contained this flavor as strong as any of the raw cream butter. Pasteurization does not remove this taint in milk or in cream. To overcome this difficulty, Prof. Farrington advises skimming the very rich cream and diluting it with a clean starter, which does not contain any of the weedy flavor. The burnt flavor is a peculiar one, and probably due to some fermentation that gets into the milk, either from feed at the farms or from defective washing of the dairy utensils. This may be overcome by aerating the milk and skimming the very rich cream.

A fishy flavor was noticed, but probably not more than 10 per cent. of the tubs showed this. A number of packages were badly mottled. These mottles may be worked out, if granular butter is allowed to stand in the churns until the moisture is strained out of it, after which the salt is spread over it evenly. The butter is then partially worked, and allowed to stand for a half hour or more, and then it is given another working, and allowed to stand again for another half hour to an hour, when working is completed. Such a practice as is described will overcome the mottles in nearly every case. Another defect in the texture of the butter was the presence of too much moisture. This may have been partially due to the temperature at which the butter was held in the storeroom. Of course, the buttermakers are not responsible for this. Compared with June entries, September butter was probably 10 points lower. This condition was due chiefly to the feeding of the cows, and the care of the milk by the patrons. However, the statement which accompanied each lot of butter showed that the methods of ripening were more nearly up to the standard in September.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Cheap Poultry Houses.

The lot consists of seven acres and the chickens run at large in it. The houses were all new, having been built in the spring and summer of 1899. House No. 1 is 12x16 feet on the ground, and consists of a gambrel roof set on 2x4 inch sills on a tight wall laid in mortar. The roof or house, for all it is is a roof, is made of 1x8 inch grooved roofing and the joints covered with 3-inch strips. The gable ends are made of the same material. It is lined throughout with tarred paper, making it water and windproof.

The roosts are 1x4 inch strips and are hung from the purlins and come to within 3 feet of the ground. There is a tight floor 1 foot below them to catch the droppings. This arrangement gives the fowls the entire floor space to live in, and by using plenty of straw it answers for a scratching shed. It is the cheapest house, for the room it contains, that can be built, and cost me $20. It has a door and a large window in the south side. The nests are made of large tobacco pails and cracker boxes. Some are hung on the sides of the building, while others are in the corners on the ground. The latter are covered and have a hole cut in the end to admit the hens. This is greatly prized by Miss Biddy, as she can get out of sight to lay her golden fruit.

House No. 2 has a basement, but is built in the same manner above, making it two stories. Two sides are dug into a hill, but the other two are on a level with the ground. It is 14x16 feet, outside measure. The walls are 1 foot thick, of grout or concrete, and 6½ feet high. The basement is 12x16 feet inside, and 6 feet high in the clear, as 2x6 inch joists are used for floor timbers and floored over tight. There are six windows in the basement, and three in the upper part. The basement will not freeze in the coldest weather. This house complete cost $55. The floors in the basement and in house No. 1 are of sand or gravel, raised a little above the outside level, and are always clean and dry. These houses will accommodate 150 fowls.—[The Orange Judd Farmer.

THE FARM.

Emmer Profitable.

This grain is not generally grown in Kansas but it seems well adapted to the soil and climate. In Jackson county this year, Case Broderick raised a crop which was exceedingly profitable. About the middle of March he sowed fifty bushels of seed on thirty-three acres of fall plowed ground. The seed was put in with a press drill, which was followed by a heavy roller. The idea was to use a bushel and a half of seed to the acre. The ground was dry during the latter part of March, and all through April the weather was very cool. The emmer came up in about ten days and grew steadily. May 1 it commenced spreading or stooling.

The light frosts of April seemed to make no impression on the plant, and as the seed had been drilled east and west, the severe winds of that month did no harm. After the plant commenced stooling and spreading, the weeds were effectually smothered and the crop had nothing to contend with. The insects did not trouble it nor was it blown down during the wind and rain storms. The oats in adjoining fields were badly injured. The emmer was harvested before the grain was overripe. It was thrashed in the field, averaging thirty-two bushels to the acre. There was about two tons of straw to every acre, and Mr. Broderick found that this straw was very valuable as roughage for cattle.

The grain takes the place of oats and is superior in some respects. When it is remembered that this crop was grown on land which had raised continuous crops of corn for many years, it can easily be seen that the results were very satisfactory, both as to grain and straw production. Better ground would have undoubtedly produced much better yields. Mr. Broderick believes that emmer, if planted early, will be exceedingly valuable for Kansas. In addition to his own experiment, two other farmers in Jackson county this year raised very fine crops. One of them produced fifty bushels per acre.

Moderate Yield of Castor Beans.

Returns from the castor-bean sections, grown in a few counties in Illinois, Missouri and Kansas indicate the yield per acre about normal and the quality generally fair to good, but from an acreage, in many cases, slightly below that of previous years. There is the old complaint of unprofitableness. Prices in the main do not differ materially from last year and growers generally receive $1 to $1.20, occasionally little more. The quality of the Illinois crop is generally good, but in Kansas much of it grades only poor to fair. Yields vary from five to eight bushels per acre, occasionally as high as ten or twelve, and at times below five.

In Illinois the acreage is about the same as in 1901 and in instances a heavy yield is reported. In Bond county acreage about 20 per cent. smaller than usual, yields five to seven bushels per acre, and the quality, as a rule, is good. Prices range from $1.05 per bushel at Pierron to $1.25 and $1.30 at Greenville. In Clinton county acreage full, yield and quality much better than usual; prices $1 to $1.10 per bushel. Jefferson county fields yielded as high as ten to twelve bushels per acre. Farmers are realizing about $1.25 for their crop, compared with $1 to $1.15 a year ago. An overabundance of rain caused a greatly-reduced acreage in Wilson county, Kan.; yield about seven and a half bushels per acre, but quality poor and farmers are receiving $1 to $1.25 per bushel. But few beans were grown in Neosha county, and the yield as a rule was very poor. Lincoln county, Okla., produced very few this season, farmers having to a large extent abandoned this industry—[Orange J. Farmer.

Many Take Courses.

The enrollment in the University of California for the year 1902-03, exclusive of students in the short courses in agriculture, or in the summer session, will approximate 3500. Of these, 700 will be in the colleges of medicine, law, dentistry, pharmacy and art, in San Francisco, and 2800 in the college of letters, social sciences, natural sciences, commerce, agriculture, etc., chemistry, mechanics, mining and civil engineering in Berkeley. The enrollment in the four years' course in agriculture is 67, and the freshmen in the college of agriculture number 16. These figures, however, fail fitly to represent the number of students who are receiving instruction from members of the faculty of the college of agriculture, for many students who are registered in other departments devote their time either wholly or in part to agricultural subjects.

For example: Forty students were enrolled last year for Prof. Hilgard's general introductory course in agriculture, 36 for his course in the chemistry and physics of soils; 40 for Prof. Wickson's course in horticulture, 41 in an advanced course in horticulture; 29 took Prof. Woodworth's course in entomology, 22 his course in plant diseases; 22 were enrolled for Prof. Jaffa's course in the composition and use of human foods, and food adulteration, 21 in his course in animal foods and feeding; 32 in Prof. Shaw's course in the beet-sugar industry; 16 took Mr. Colby's course in insecticides and fungicides; 22 studied plant diseases with Mr. Bioletti; 28 studied stock breeding and dairying under Prof. Anderson; 21 studied viticulture, and 18 distilling materials with Mr. Twight; and in the year 48 students were enrolled in the courses in irrigation under Profs. Mead and Wilson.

Two short courses are announced by the college of agriculture for the ten weeks from October 7 to December 18 of the present fall. One will be a short course in dairying, and the other a short course in agriculture and horticulture. New fields of work are now being entered by the university in agriculture and allied subjects. A department of irrigation has been established, headed by Elwood Mead. Prof. Mead is aided by Assistant Prof. James M. Wilson. The courses in irrigation engineering are designed to aid students in the colleges of agriculture, civil engineering and law. Instruction in dairy husbandry has been organized by Prof. Leroy Anderson and Dr. Archibald R. Ward. A barn has been built for an experimental herd of cattle. A four years' course in the sugar industry has recently been organized, under the direction of Prof. George Wright Shaw.

STOCK RANGE AND LAND.

Warning to Stockmen.

For several years I have been warning the live-stock owners of the West that "it's time to tumble" concerning the public land problem. Newspapers all over the country are publishing accounts of conflicts between cattle and sheep men; it is being realized that all the people are interested in the proper handling of public lands. Live-stock men may wake up some bright morning and find that they will not be consulted to any alarming extent when the final adjustment is made.

In an article on the world's meat supply in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post, A. G. Leonard of the Chicago Union Stock Yards Company says:

"Because cattle will not graze where sheep have fed there is bitter and unceasing warfare between the cattlemen and the sheepmen. Scores of human lives and hundreds of animals have been sacrificed in this feud, and will continue to be until the national government steps in and enforces a permanent, fair and satisfactory adjustment of the differences now existing between the fiercely-opposing interests. This is one of the serious problems now confronting the meat industry of America."

If the stockmen of the West do not get together soon and say what they want, Uncle Sam will certainly step in and settle the fight. United States deputy marshals, patrolling the deserts, may be heard of in the near future.

Too many western stockmen fail to realize the danger from the publication of such exaggerated pictures as recently appeared in Leslie's Weekly, republished in this issue of the Ranch News.

Land ownership and control are proper and cannot be headed off. It will pay all stockmen to get in out of the wet without further delay and buy or lease the land they want to use.

The operations of the national irrigation act will force the situation. All the public lands are dedicated to the reclamation fund and a fight to prevent the best use of the public lands is, therefore, a fight against making our worthless deserts into homes for the people. It's time to tumble!—[Ranch News.

Legislation to Help Stockmen.

The national Live Stock Association has begun a search for its friends among the Congressmen. President Springer and Secretary Martin have sent a circular letter to every member of the present Congress and to candidates for Congress to be voted for this fall. This circular calls attention to House Bill No. 14488, "to provide Federal inspection and taxation of mixed goods and the marking of the same." Introduced by Hon. Charles H. Grosvenor of Ohio, and known as the "Shoddy bill." Its purpose is to require a label to be put on goods made of part shoddy and part wool. The ruinous competition of the cheap, unsanitary shoddy with pure wool has greatly depressed the sheep industry of the United States, the officers of the association asserting that the amount of shoddy used in the manufacture of "woolen" goods is equal to the fleeces of 40,000,000 of the 63,000,000 sheep in the United States.

The association asks every Congressman where he stands on this subject.

The stockmen also want to have a live-stock census every five years. If the government finds it profitable to collect frequent statistics of the grain crops of the country, cotton and manufactures, there can be no valid objection to collecting statistics on the meat supply just as frequently. One is as important as the other. More than 8,000,000 farmers and stock raisers are interested in this measure. They represent $5,000,000,000 of invested capital, and besides being a protection to the producer and consumer against the speculator, a law of this kind is due this great army of agriculturists and it should be enacted.

L. G. Powers, chief statistician of the Agricultural Department, says the figures compiled from such a census would be given to the public in six months after all are gathered.

HAVE YOU ANY OF THESE

Symptoms of a Very Common Trouble?

There is no disease so common in the United States as Catarrh because it appears in so many forms and attacks so many different organs.

It is a common mistake to suppose that catarrh is confined to the nose and throat. Any inflammation of the mucous membrane wherever located accompanied by abnormal secretions, is catarrh. Catarrh of stomach or bladder, or intestines is nearly as common as nasal catarrh and much more serious, although it is true that stomach catarrh and catarrh of other internals organs is the result of neglected nasal catarrh.

A new remedy has recently appeared which so far as tested seems to be remarkably effective in promptly curing catarrh, wherever located. The preparation is sold by druggists generally under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and in addition to being very palatable and convenient, possesses extraordinary merit, in many cases giving immediate relief from the coughing, hawking and constant clearing of the throat and head, those symptoms with which everyone is familiar who has ever suffered from colds in the head and throat.

Catarrh is simply a continuation of these symptoms until the trouble becomes chronic and grows gradually worse from year to year.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, are composed of Hydrastin, Red Gum and similar antiseptics and catarrh specifics, from which it will be seen that no secret is made of the ingredients and also that no mineral poisons are used, as is the case with many well-known catarrh medicines.

For catarrh of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes, for catarrh of stomach, intestines or bladder no preparation is so safe and gives such rapid and permanent results as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50c for full-sized package. You can use them with assurance that you will not contract the cocaine or morphine habit as the results from this catarrh cure are apparent from the first day's use.

[NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.]

PASADENA BAPTISTS TO SOAR HEAVENWARD.

THEY PROPOSE TO BUILD A VERY HIGH CHURCH.

Specifications Prepared for Prettiest House of Worship in Town—Chief of Police Plays Lawyer—Berkeley-Wisconsin Football New Year's.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 26 South Raymond avenue, Nov. 14.—Plans and specifications for the prettiest church of the "City of Churches" are being drawn by Architect Driscoll. It will be the Baptist edifice to be erected on the northwest corner of Marengo avenue and Union street. As the specifications will be [illegible] next week, an idea may be given [illegible] of what the beautiful improvement will look like. The church will have its principal front on Marengo avenue, 87 feet, and 128 feet on Union street. The main tower will be 100 feet in height, while the larger portion of the building will be 56 feet in height from foundation to dome. The material will be of brick or stone, or both, according to the figures given by the bidders, as $40,000 is to be the limit of cost.

The handsome new Methodist Church has been criticised as a bit "squatty." Observers say that its cornices should have been at least four feet higher. The Baptists will get nearer heaven. They think they have improved in several respects on the plans of the Methodist structure. One of the improvements will be a twenty-foot glass dome or skylight, over the audience room, and a twelve-foot one over the Sunday-school room, that will light up the interior as bright as day. At the Methodist Church electric lights have to be burned to help the sun out.

The handsome entrance on Marengo avenue to the Baptist Church will be arched and reached by a few steps from the street. Through a ten-foot loggia on Marengo avenue, and a nine-foot [illegible] on Union street, the church will be entered. On the ground floor will be the primary room, 28x28 feet; kindergarten, 15x28; social room, 40x71; kitchen, 14x20; spacious cloak rooms.

The whole seating capacity of the church will be 1620, of which the auditorium, 60x60, will seat 900, and the Sunday-school room, 40x71, will seat [illegible]. The Sunday-school room and audience room are so arranged that they can be thrown together. There is a Sunday-school gallery seating [illegible], and audience room gallery [illegible]. These are reached by [illegible] from the loggias. The pastor's [illegible] room, convenient to the rostrum, will be 17x17, and will be situated [illegible] southeast corner of the building, [illegible] the main tower. Along the [illegible] of the building will be [illegible], committee room, choir [illegible] gallery or loft, pastor's [illegible] room, robing rooms, Bible [illegible] etc.

[illegible] has spent much time [illegible] in securing the very [illegible] as to the conveniences for [illegible] ceremony. The pool will [illegible] right of the rostrum, and [illegible] be robing rooms across the [illegible] stated that the persons to [illegible] will leave their dressing [illegible] company with an attendant, [illegible] a small flight of steps and [illegible] water unseen by the congregation. This will give them a chance [illegible] sputter, with no one to [illegible] the attendant. Then they [illegible] curtains into the pool [illegible] the pastor awaits them.

[illegible] the gallery floor are the class [illegible] adjoining the Sunday-school gallery, organ room, 15x16, two large [illegible], ladies' parlor in the [illegible] corner, 22x34, and convention [illegible]. The ladies' parlor, with all [illegible] appurtenances, will have an [illegible] from the kitchen on the ground [illegible]. So the new church will be the [illegible] church in the city provided with [illegible] service.

[illegible] pipe organ, first-class heating and [illegible] and the interior finish will be [illegible] for in later contracts. The [illegible] are to be in within a few weeks, [illegible] the contractors are not going to be [illegible]. A year's time to finish the [illegible] may be allowed.

CHIEF IN NEW ROLE.

[illegible] of Police Freeman made his [illegible] as an attorney yesterday. It was [illegible] case of Leon Snow, who was [illegible] his preliminary examination [illegible] charge of grand larceny. The [illegible] Attorney did not appear, and [illegible] quizzed the witnesses, and [illegible] two of them were harpooned fearfully. Snow was bound over [illegible] in the Superior Court. He is [illegible] jail.

[illegible], whose right name is believed [illegible] Vogel, was caught early last morning with a wheel belonging [illegible] F. Baker. Snow was attempting [illegible] the seat. When placed on the [illegible] stand, Snow gave his age as [illegible] gave an opening for the [illegible] legal prowess. Snow had a [illegible] union card aboard, which [illegible] that he has belonged for three [illegible]. He had to own up that the [illegible] don't receive fellows under 18, [illegible] he lied to the union as to his [illegible]. The culprit had shaved off a [illegible] beard in hopes of looking kiddish [illegible] that he might be sent to Whittier [illegible] of the penitentiary. But [illegible] didn't make good.

[illegible] E. L. Siverts, a South Fair [illegible] bicycle dealer, came in [illegible] skewering at the hands of [illegible] Attorney's understudy. Siverts [illegible] purchased a wheel that is alleged to have been stolen by Snow. [illegible] accosted by a policeman who [illegible] Snow's deals, Siverts said [illegible] wheel had been purchased by [illegible] of his. The bike was afterward found in the shop, and Siverts [illegible] over the ropes, knocked [illegible].

[illegible] police have learned that the [illegible] is an old offender, having [illegible] time in San Francisco for breaking [illegible] a house and stealing a bi[illegible].

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS.

[illegible] Charles Coleman of the [illegible] of Roses Association returned yesterday from a week's north[illegible]. He conferred with the Berkeley [illegible] eleven, and received encouragement that the team will come [illegible] play here on New Year's Day. [illegible] punters are scratching their [illegible] heads of hair and [illegible] it over. Manager Decoto is to [illegible] know the result in about a [illegible].

[illegible] University of Wisconsin is the [illegible] opponent for Berkeley at the [illegible] writing. Manager Clifford G. [illegible] is to be here to confab [illegible] Tournament of Roses president [illegible] the 22d inst. Wisconsin has [illegible] strongest teams in the Middle West this year, and Berkeley is feeling pretty "fit" since its defeat of Stanford. The Wisconsin-University of California game would therefore be a good one, you see.

The Tournament Association has arranged for printing a number of souvenir mailing cards, decorated with photographic prints typical of the fete.

CRASH OF STEAMERS NARROWLY AVERTED.

CLOSEST CALL FOR THE HERMOSA AT SAN PEDRO.

Ship Coronado Becomes Unmanageable and Tears Up Southern Pacific Wharf, and Bannings' Vessel Barely Escapes Being Cut in Two.

SAN PEDRO, Nov. 14.—What would have been a very serious accident, destroying many thousands of dollars worth of property, and probably causing the death of several persons, was narrowly avoided last evening, when the steamer Coronado crashed into the wharf of the Southern Pacific Company and barely escaped a collision with the Banning Company's steamer Hermosa.

Both vessels were steaming at a high rate of speed in opposite directions. The Hermosa was making for her berth, in front of the Southern Pacific's wharf depot, while the Coronado was leaving port for Ventura, after having finished discharging a cargo at the wharf of the Crescent Lumber Company, East San Pedro. When the larger vessel (Coronado) steamed past the Salt Lake station, she discovered the Hermosa coming into the harbor, and sounded two distinct whistles, calling for the starboard side. In rapid succession three sharp whistles, denoting danger, were signalled; then another three, and still another. The Hermosa answered, and began to draw back, but not until half a minute before the Coronado crashed into the wharf and knocked out several huge piles and a space of wharfage fully forty feet square. Had the Hermosa kept on her course half a minute longer, she would undoubtedly have been cut in two.

Capt. Peterson, master of the Coronado, could not account for the accident, but said that he thought probably the steering gear was out of order, as the vessel became uncontrolable. If his ship had not turned unexpectedly, and to the surprise of the pilots, there would have been no damage caused.

It is estimated that $1000 will be required to replace the piles and wharfage that was destroyed by the Coronado. The figures are considered small, in view of the fact that such imminent danger to life and property was so narrowly estopped.

TRIBE OF BEN HUR.

The Tribe of Ben Hur organized a local chapter here last evening, with twenty-five applicants taking the degree. It is said that a number of young men and women will be initiated at the next meeting. The order is new in San Pedro.

FISHERMEN SAILED OFF FROM SAN NICOLAS.

BELIEVED TO HAVE REACHED SAN PEDRO LONG AGO.

Possibly not the Same Who Were Supposedly Marooned on the Desolate Island—Novel That Deals With Santa Catalina History.

AVALON, Nov. 14.—The story of three young men marooned and supposed to be starving on San Nicolas Island, through the failure of the fishing boat in the employ of the McGimpsey Fish Company to return for them brings out the fact that about ten days since Mexican Joe and George Michaelis, who were up near the west end of the island, encountered three young men in a skiff, who said they had come from San Nicolas and were bound for San Pedro. Their story was that they had expected a boat to bring them provisions, but having waited three weeks, and their supplies having been reduced to a few potatoes, they thought they had better attempt to reach home than to remain there to starve. So they rigged a crude sail with a 2x4 scantling, in their skiff and set out for the mainland. They were out two days and a night before they turned up at Catalina, and they did not know where they were nor what island this was, as they had lost all reckoning. They were supplied with some food and then started on their course for San Pedro. Later that same day, Capt. Macdonnell, while fishing off Long Point, met the young men and talked with them, and as the weather continued good that night and next day, he thinks they surely should have reached San Pedro in safety. There is a question whether these are the same men who have lately been supposedly marooned on the island. They may still be there.

ISLAND BREVITIES.

"The Adventures of Torquay," a novel which purports to give some of the ancient history of Santa Catalina Island, written by Prof. C. F. Holden, is read with great interest by the islanders. History and romance are ingeniously interwoven and a meritorious work has resulted. The book is illustrated and Avalon Bay, which the author designates as "The Bay of the Moon," is depicted with a lot of big canoes and surrounded by numerous indian tepees.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Massey of Somerville, Ky., Miss Grace Hall of Bluffton, Ind., and L. E. Bemiss and wife of San Francisco are registered at the Metropole. Mr. Bemis is purser on the Japanese steamship American Maru, and is on leave of absence to enjoy his honeymoon.

DEATH OF MRS. JANE C. PERRY.

REDONDO, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Jane C. Perry, mother of L. J. Perry, superintendent of the Los Angeles and Redondo Railway, died at the home of her son yesterday morning, of paralysis. Mrs. Perry was a native of New York, aged 78 years, 7 months and 6 days. She had been a resident of Redondo a number of years, and was the founder of Redondo's free reading-room. The funeral services were conducted today by Rev. Mr. Rowell of Los Angeles, and Rev. Mr. Jenkins of Redondo, at the Congregational Church, after which the remains were taken to Evergreen Cemetery, Los Angeles, for burial. A large number of relatives and friends followed to the grave, to show their last tribute of respect to the deceased, who was beloved by all who knew her. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful.

WHITTIER.

LARGE DITCH CONTRACTS.

WHITTIER, Nov. 14.—Word was received here today that Chaffey & Stowell, owners of the East Whittier ditch line and plant, have let big contracts. The company has been putting down wells, installing a 250-horse-power pump and increasing its facilities at the headworks in the cañon. These are well under way and now the company has let two contracts for extensions to the ditch. The first is for a thirty-six-inch cement pipe line from the present terminus in East Whittier to the Orange county line; the second for a thirty-six-inch cement pipe line south to Los Coyotes. Both contracts are to be pushed to completion within sixty days, and a large force will begin work at once. The company is making all its improvements in a very permanent manner, and the water will have no chance to become contaminated from the time it leaves the wells until it reaches the termini of the pipe lines. Thus the ranchers will be given water suitable for domestic purposes as well as for irrigation. Within a day or two a third large contract will be let. This will be for another pipe line, running from the end of the main line to the 2200-acre tract of land purchased a few weeks ago by the Townsend-Robinson Investment Company. Isbell & Gregg of this city, who are largely interested in this company, say that they only wait for the completion of this pipe line and for the Huntington-Hellman electric railroad to be definitely located before platting a townsite on their property.

FILLING ALL SCHOOLS AT LONG BEACH.

TOWN'S RAPID GROWTH MAKES MORE BUILDINGS NEEDED.

One Six-room Structure Now Under Way Will Probably Be Filled as Soon as Completed—Honors to Late Miss Owen.

LONG BEACH, Nov. 14.—If the number of school children of Long Beach keeps on increasing, as it promises to do, a schoolhouse famine is in prospect.

The total enrollment of pupils of the primary and grammar grades of the public schools of the Long Beach district, for the first month of last year's term, was 600. The enrollment of those grades for the first month of this year was 887. The second month's enrollment this year ran up to 915. Last year's second month was considerably less than the enrollment for the first month, but the third month's figures leaped well ahead. The increase for the third month of this year seems likely to be much larger than that of a year ago. The attendance has kept close to the enrollment, showing that not many of the children are kept away on account of sickness or other reasons.

The building, which is under construction at Sixth and Daisy streets, will not be completed for about two months. When completed it will serve to relieve the congestion in the western part of the town, but it will not afford all the relief desired. It will have six rooms. If it be found necessary to employ two more teachers for the primary and grammar grades that building will then be full.

Some of the teachers now have fifty pupils under their care. On a basis of forty pupils to a teacher there are enough pupils enrolled to fill the building as soon as it is completed. Several rooms are being hired as temporary quarters, while the new building is being completed.

In the Alamitos territory there has been a large number of lots sold lately, and on a good many of them houses are going up. As soon as completed, most of the houses will be occupied, and it is expected that the occupants will come mostly from places outside the Long Beach school district. If that expectation is realized, there will be urgent demand for more accommodations at the Alamitos school, where every seat is now occupied.

At the Signal Hill and Burnett schools more desks have been called for, showing that there has been an increase in pupils at those places also.

In the High School the accommodations last year were not all occupied. There has been a considerable increase in the pupils of that institution, and every available space in the assembly room has been filled with a desk. That is not sufficient, and additional desks have been placed in other rooms.

MISS OWEN HONORED.

The funeral of Miss Isabel Owen, one of the teachers of the Long Beach High School, who died Monday at Glendora, took place in Azusa Thursday afternoon. The Long Beach High School was closed for the afternoon and Supervising Principal Morgan and the teachers attended the service. The pupils of the High School sent a floral remembrance, and also adopted resolutions fitting the occasion. Miss Owen was a teacher in the High School for two years. She was reappointed for the present year, but failing health kept her from pursuing her chosen occupation, and a substitute was employed.

BLYTHE KNEW FIELDS.

The murder of Harry Fields, a dance-house keeper of Tonopah, Nev., whose heart was cut out by a woman inmate of his place, as reported in today's Times, is of more than mere general interest here. B. M. Blythe of Long Beach, who has mining interests at Tonopah, knew Fields well.

"Fields was a genial, big-hearted fellow, and apparently a much better man than is usually found in that line of business," said Mr. Blythe today. "He was one of the first to respond when any one was reported in want. He was not the kind of man of whom such an ending would be expected."

Her Life Might Have Been Saved

Two-thirds of the inmates of our hospitals are women. They are in most cases either for treatment or for an operation, made necessary by advanced stages of female troubles which have resulted in ovaritis, a tumor, or displacement of the womb.

"AN OPERATION NECESSARY."

How these words after the examination strike terror to a woman's soul, and with what regrets she hears them, when she considers that the operation has become necessary through her own neglect. Female derangements cannot cure themselves, and neglecting the warnings of nature only means putting it off until there is no cure. The woman who lets her trouble make headway pays the penalty of a dangerous operation and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at the best, and the operation often proves fatal when her life might have been saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration; or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, and the blues, they should remember that there is one tried and never-failing remedy; Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound at once removes such troubles.

READ THE FOLLOWING LETTERS.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot tell you how much good you have done me and how thankful I am to you for it. For five years I have not been free from pain for a day. I have had backaches, headaches, and those awful dragging sensations with leucorrhœa, and when menstruation appeared I was in such a condition I could hardly sit up. I doctored all the time, but nothing helped me, and I was told that an operation was necessary.

"Two months ago a friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No one knows what it has done for me and how thankful I am for it. It brought me the first well days I have had for five years. It did for me what doctors could not do, and I want every suffering woman to know about it."—LOUISE NAUER, 751 E. 166th St., New York City.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had terrible hemorrhages, being lacerated from the birth of my child. The doctor told me that if I would have an operation I would be well and strong. I submitted to it, but was worse than before; no one knows what I suffered. Finally a friend advised me to try your Vegetable Compound; I did so, and commenced to feel better; I continued its use, and it has done for me what doctors could not do. I am strong and well. If women with any kind of female troubles would only consult you before submitting to an operation they would be spared many hours of pain and suffering. I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me."—ANNA KIRCHHOFF, 156 E. 100th St., New York City.

WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Friday Morning Club.

"The keynote to art is soul, and composition, and all pictures must seek the realm of art through the door of perfect composition; an artist sees beauty in everything, and art is the beautiful way of doing things; therefore, in the hands of an artist, photography is a fine art," said Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes, speaking before the Friday Morning Club yesterday. The subject before the club for the morning was "Photography—Is it an Art?" and Mrs. Forbes, who is an enthusiast on the question, and whose work ranks with that of the leading professionals, presented an excellent argument in the affirmative.

"Photography," she said, in opening, "may justly be called the science of capturing shadows, and art, the application of skill in the production of the beautiful. If we accept this deduction, the theorem is easy; but for the most part photography is looked upon as a box, and art as a sentiment. Therefore our task becomes greater and we must either capture the sentiment or separate photography and art."

The speaker divided her subject into two heads, "What is Photography?" and "What is Art?" and then proceeded to join the two. The history of photography was given from the time when the first fleeting shadow was captured and made permanent by a Frenchman, Prof. Charles, in 1780, up to today, when photography is a science recognized in surgery, and often called to aid in the administration of justice. The work of Wedgewood, Davy, Niepce, Daguerre and Fox-Talbot was touched upon, and the credit given to Sir John Herschel for calling the attention of the world to the "fixing" qualities of hyposulphite of soda, thereby completing the science.

Daguerreotypes, ambrotypes, tintypes and photographs were all explained. The utilization of glass in the place of paper for negatives was stated to be the greatest benefit photography ever attained. Composition, lines and spacing, values of lights and shadows were mentioned as the basic principles of picture making, after that the soul of the artist must do the rest. Mrs. Forbes's exposition of the second part of her subject, "What is Art?" proved extremely interesting, and the paper was received with enthusiasm.

Mr. Forbes added greatly to the interest of the morning by a practical demonstration. He explained the modus operandi of selecting a good camera, dwelling upon the lens, bellows and shutter, spoke of different papers and developers, compared films and plates, and threw light on the dark and devious ways of enlargements. Numerous questions at the close of the talk made manifest the close attention with which the speaker was followed.

The programme next week will be in charge of the Book Committee, and Mrs. George A. Caswell—will consider the question, "Shall We Buy Books."

Afternoon Tea.

The first "at home" of the Ebell Club, held Thursday afternoon, was entirely successful, both old and new members joining in the efforts of those in charge to make the sociability of the occasion its distinct charm.

Mrs. William Niles, chairman of the House Committee, was in charge of the arrangements, and the ladies who poured were the following members of the board of directors: Mmes. C. N. Flint, A. L. Danskin, L. W. Blinn, P. A. Demens, T. T. Knight and Mrs. Frank King. The president, Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt, was the hostess for the afternoon. The Ebell suite and little tea rooms adjoining were opened into the central hall, and made dainty with plants and ferns. In the tea room delicious tea and dainty wafers and cakes were dispensed. There was a general attendance of the club. The hours were from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Classic Drama.

The Shakespeare section of the Wednesday Morning Club held an interesting session this week, with a large class present. The leader, Mrs. C. P. Dorland, gave a clear and concise outline of the differences between the classic and romantic dramas. Mrs. J. B. Foster read an article on the purposes and teachings of the "Passion Play." Mrs. C. S. Goodrich presented instructive character sketches of Eschylus, Sophocles and Euripides. Mrs. D. K. Trask read a short poem by Elizabeth Barrett Browning, describing the characteristics of these classic dramatists. "The Age of Pericles" was set forth by Mrs. H. C. Gower, and Miss Isabel Finney made interesting an outline of the rise of the classic drama. Miss Esther Hunt presented a clear account of the origin and development of the tragic chorus. Mrs. H. C. Carter gave an analysis of the play of Agamemnon. The remainder of the hour was devoted to a discussion of the "Passion Play," saints' plays, miracle plays and cycle plays.

The lesson for next week will conclude the work of the classic drama, after which the class will begin the study of "King John."

Alhambra Club.

The papers read at the meeting of the Alhambra Wednesday Afternoon Club this week were both interesting and profitable. Mrs. W. M. Northrup presented "Modern Philanthropy" in comprehensive style. It was an excellent paper, and illustrated the best forms of charitable work. Said the speaker: "True philanthropy should help others to help themselves. The indiscriminate giving of money is not proper charity." Mrs. Northrup gave some incidents of her experience as a kindergarten teacher among the poorest classes in Chicago, showing that self-help is the most beneficial. There was a full discussion of the State text-book question. This was opened with a paper by Prof. N. G. Felker, president of Woodbury. He showed the necessity for a better grade of text-books, and advocated a petition to the Legislature asking for a change. A committee was appointed to draft such a resolution, to be signed by the club members. Next week Mrs. Lou V. Chapin will give her second lecture on "Current History."

"PARDS."

BY MARY TALBOT CAMPBELL.

[Published under special arrangement with the S. S. McClure Co., New York.]

Montezuma, Colo., lies in the lap of the mountains at an altitude of over ten thousand feet. The town consists of a handful of houses, saloons, stores and two hotels, and when the season is at its height shelters between 200 and 300 souls, mostly miners.

"Unlucky Jack" McCormick, returning from a trip to Denver, heard the news that Jim Thompson had "skipped" the camp the week before, leaving his boy Billy to "cut his own trail."

"An' where's the kid at?" asked Jack.

"Don't know. He couldn't git no work with his weak heart. Guess he's bunkin' with the burros an' chipmunks. Seed him jes' now goin' up the county road lookin' mighty played out."

With an oath, Jack set out in pursuit of his favorite. His long strides soon took him past the Silver King, and around the next turn he saw what he sought, a half-grown lad, his head bowed in the supposed solitude, the whole slight frame shaking with sobs. Jack blew a trumpet blast from his red nose and was so occupied behind his red handkershief that he nearly passed Billy without notice.

"Hello, Jack! When did ye strike camp?"

"Jes' now, kid; but how goes it?"

"Oh, tol'able!" Jack was still too busy to look at Billy, and the boy was fast composing himself.

"Well, kid, I'm down in the mouth, an' blamed if I ain't plum homesick for some one to keer a durn whether I live or die!"

"Set down, won't ye?" said Billy, sidling along to make room on the flat-topped bowlder by the roadside. Jack McCormick doubled up his six feet of lank, loose-jointed body and, with an explosive sigh, sank by the boy he meant to befriend.

"What's up, pard?" asked Billy awkwardly, drawing nearer in boyish sympathy.

"Gawd knows; I don't, kid! Guess I'm jes' a six-foot baby. But I'm so lonesome I can't hardly eat nur sleep! Don't suppose yon know of a body that would come an batch with an unlucky cuss like me, do you?"

Jack felt the start the boy gave, but didn't look up.

"I could pay jes' a little for his help, cookin' the grub an' sich."

The mountains reeled before the eyes of the boy, dizzy from hunger, and a wild hope caught at his heart. With assumed carelessness he said, "Some man, ye mean, o' course?"

"Oh, no; not necessarily. I'd like bully well to have somethin' young about to hearten me up a bit."

A gasp, immediately followed by a cough, caused Jack to glance quickly at Billy, and he saw a ghastly face, in which the freckles appeared darker than ever. He longed to put his arm about the almost fainting child, but knew with whom he had to deal.

"Jack, on the square, would ye take me?"

"Bet yer boots, kid! But yer pa" — "He slid out las' week. Said he'd had 'nough o' women cattle an' kids an' I was to shift for myself."

Jack acted well the surprise he didn't feel and offered a horny right hand to seal the bargain. Inwardly he was wondering how on earth he was to get the boy up the steep, rocky trail to his cabin.

"What do you weigh, Billy?"

"'Bout eighty pounds."

"Well, would you do a feller a favor?"

"Cert."

"You see, I've got a bet with Bud Crow that I can tote seventy-five pounds without stoppin' from here to my cabin, an' so if you don't object I'll tote you, bein' as yer legs would wrap round me an' make it easier than dead weight."

"O. K., Jack! But jes' hones', maybe I don't weigh eighty now."

Jack rose hurriedly. Clearing his throat and stooping in front of Billy, he backed close up, reaching his hands over his shoulders, saying gayly:

"All aboard, pard, or we uns'll be late for dinner at the mine."

Two cold little hands took his and then clasped themselves about his neck as, with a great unlimbering, Jack arose, catching the skinny legs about his waist.

They were in the rocky road leading to the Eureka and Sunburst properties, owned by "Unlucky Jack." Billy thought the wind must be high as the world waved before him and the sighing voice of the pines filled his ears.

As Billy's head fell a dead weight Jack caught the slipping fingers, and, stumbling on, made all possible speed up the trail. The boy's weight seemed to grow as the dizzy way led ever higher, the slide rock making the footing difficult.

One more steep turn, and the little cabin came in sight. Jack staggered on to the door, the sweat pouring from him, and dropped the inert boy upon his bunk.

Looking down at the child, the strangely-gray look on his face frightened him. Shaking him, he cried: "Billy! Kid! Answer me, man!"

He seized a whisky bottle and forced a little between the boy's teeth, a faint sigh answering his effort. He rubbed both face and hands with the fiery stuff and soon had the brown eyes smiling up into his anxious blue ones.

"You jes' wait, pard," he cried blithely, "till I get some grub inside you!"

Rushing to the stove, he soon had the fire burning and water on for coffee. Bread and bacon were slung on the table, all with a great clatter and cheerfulness.

"Jack!" came a faint cry.

Turning, the man was awed by the look on the lad's face, and with one stride he had him in his arms, trying to lift him into some position easier for the poor, fainting heart, over which Billy's hand was tightly clutched. Jack urged more whisky, but the boy refused.

"No, Jack, thank ye! It was a short shift with ye, pard, but—a—a happy one! Hold my hand tight!"

Jack held tenderly the trembling, icy hand.

"My little ticker's running down—Jack—ma—uster say it was the only weak thing about her 'Billy boy.' I allus knew I might go suddint! The doc said this place was—too near heaven for a little sinner like me, an' pa wouldn't—couldn't take me lower."

Jack, with a rough shamefacedness, kissed the boy on the brow and rubbed his hair the wrong way. The brown eyes shone with sweet comprehension, gazing up lovingly into the blue ones, flooded with manly tears. The voice began more faintly, with many pauses: "Pa allus said there wa'n't no heaven, but ma—she said there was—an' I jes want to say that ef she's right an' et—she's staked me out—a claim—I'll go ye halvers, Jack, old pard! So maybe ye won—more—nor yer bet—when ye helped—her Billy boy — over — the range."

Soon after the camp rang with the rich strike of Jack McCormick on the Eureka! It was when he sought a last resting place for his "pard" that he found the paying lead.

PLAYING GOLF AT SEA.

How the Rage for the Game Overcomes All Impediments—Golf Course is Trifle Uneven at Times.

[Chicago Chronicle:] "As I stepped on deck from the saloon one morning on my return trip from abroad," said Frank M. Morris of "the Book Shop," who arrived in Chicago last week, "I heard a voice cry: 'You've sliced a drive and you're in the grass.' For a moment I wondered whether I was at sea or on the Exmoor links at home. I saw a gray ocean, which might have made a good golf links if it only had been solid, heaving against the sky, and Land's End, last glimpse of England, disappearing on our weather quarter. So I was quite sure our vessel was a night out from London and on the open sea. But there were people on deck undoubtedly playing golf—playing it with the absorbed, eager air that marks the devotee of the game on dry land.

"Ocean golf is one of the novelties of the transatlantic summer season. It was first introduced on the boats of the Atlantic Transport line, and has been taken up enthusiastically on the larger steamers of all lines. Mr. Morris returned on the Minnetonka, 14,000 tons burden, 600 feet from stem to stern, and with an after deck 200 feet long and forty feet in beam. Golf links had been laid out on this deck in the lee of the cabin.

"The golf course about the deck," said Mr. Morris, "consisted of nine circular chalk marks a foot in diameter in lieu of holes. The golf balls were shuffle-board disks, five inches across and an inch thick. The clubs were shuffle-board sticks, with ends hollowed out to fit the disks. With these clubs the disks were sent sliding about the decks by vigorous shoves instead of free strokes. The hazards of the course were furnished by a wheelhouse 20x30 feet in size, ventilators, two hatches, four donkey engines, a capstan, spars, coils of rope and a galleyway leading to the deck below.

"A good player could make a round of eighteen holes in half or three-quarters of an hour. The third hole required a display of skill and a slight knowledge of billiards. It lay snug behind a group of big ventilator funnels. The only way to reach it in a single stroke was to drive your disk against the side of the afterhatch and make it carom toward the hole. In driving from the fourth to the fifth hole you had to reckon with the wheelhouse, which lay between them. In working back from the taffrail to the cabin you entered on a little campaign full of difficult problems. The way was beset with such bunkers as a steam donkey, a scuttle over a galleyway, a number of ventilators and a capstan. In making the final hole you drove your disk straight from one side of the deck to the other through a three-foot alley between cabin and hatch.

"If there was a sea on and the boat rolled the difficulties of play became complicated. Then, in driving, you had to allow for the list of the deck. If your stroke was not sure there was the annoying possibility that your disk would turn on edge and roll a hundred feet or so down the deck and fetch up in the scuppers. When the disk went into the gutters the players said it was 'in the grass.'

"There was nothing but golf aboard from the beginning of the voyage to the end. Billiards, chess, whist and poker were waved aside for golf. Every passenger became as brown as a berry from playing golf on deck in the wind and sun. At times they almost fought for possession of the links. We had match plays, foursomes and one tournament."

DEAD BEAT HAD NERVE.

He Announced That He Would Travel Free and That's What He Did—Quiet Bluff Was All That Was Needed.

[Pittsburgh Gazette:] "Talk about nerve—pure, unadulterated nerve," remarked an old traveling man, as they whirled along over the road enjoying a good cigar and glancing from time to time toward the car door at each stop of the train, as traveling men are wont to do, thinking possibly a fellow-knight of the grip may bob into the smoker who may have a new story or be induced to help out in a four-handed game of pedro. "Yes, sir," he continued, "of all the nerve I ever saw, that fellow displayed the hardest article. I saw him on a trip over to Ohio, the other day. Leaving Pittsburgh, there was plenty of room, so I spread out for comfort. Being a local train, the car soon began to fill up. One stop quite a crowd piled in, among them a young farmer who was heavy on dress. He glued his eye on my seat as he entered, and into it he dropped.

"'Pretty good load today,' he said as he settled back. 'Yes,' I sizing him up and wondering he got his ideas of style; coat, trousers black, vest red dots, bright red neck cameo pin, black patent leath derby, kid gloves, no overco the thermometer below 40. Th the outfit. Then the conduct in with a gruff 'Tickets, please.'

"'Watch me fool him!' said young sprig, languidly, hold ticket concealed in the palm hand. 'Shouldn't wonder if you I answered, but I didn't believe conductor was a thundering low, and I wanted to see some of the fine feathers. As forward pretended to be but that conductor shook and a ticket out of him in began to be a little sorry young fellow, but he sat unconcerned.

"Then it came his turn. ductor touched his shoulder 'Ticket.' I trembled. The young er slowly raised his head, knight of the punch squarely eye with an expression that ly, 'How many tickets do you but he uttered not a word. ductor passed on, and only the er's clothes were heard above of relief and astonishment I I have seen other conductors and I have seen other fellows game and fail, but that young nerve was as far out of the as his sartorial makeup."
